JAPAN WILL SUBMIT TWO COUNTER PLANS TO AMERICAN OFFER

Sticks to Her Claim for 70 Per Cent Ratio in Cruisers.

WANTS EXTRA SHIPS AGAINST U. S. AIMS

She Counters Also on Cut in Submarine Tonnage With Basic Figure.

HER INDICATED REPLY REGARDED WITH HOPE

Briand Held Likely to Lose on Compromise of Two Limitation Plans.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, March 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Japan's reply to the American offer, with which the British now associate themselves, has been indicated to the delegation here although it will not be officially transmitted until ratified by the Tokyo cabinet and may possibly be subject to last-minute modification.

Japan, it is understood, will make two counter proposals, the rest of the American offer being accepted:

Sticking to her claim for 70 per cent in 8-inch-gun cruisers, Japan will suggest that if the United States lays down three extra 10,000-ton ships to come into commission after 1936, in addition to the fifteen to be built before that time, then Japan will build at the same time as America's extra three, two ships of 8,000 tons, carrying 8-inch guns. This would give Japan 70 per cent in 8-inch-gun tonnage.

Will Suggest Final Basic Figure.

Japan will counter the American proposal that she reduce her submarine fleet gradually, as ships become over age, to 52,000 tons, by suggesting a final basic figure of 60,000 tons with the further right to transfer 8,000 additional tons from the light-cruiser class into submarines, making a maximum of 68,000 tons.

These proposals are regarded in conference circles here with optimism. The United States is expected by the British to concede one 8,000-ton cruiser and the 8,000 tons of additional submarines above the offer of ten days ago.

This, or something near it, probably will be accepted and will bring Japan into line with the United States and Great Britain on the Rapidan basis, thus smoothing the path toward a treaty between the three powers.

Progress Waits Proposal.

Until this Japanese counter proposal is received there can be no further progress toward a three-power treaty, and today the conference waited on the pleasure of the absent French. Minister of Marine Jacques Louis Dumesnil returned alone from Paris today and will see Secretary of the Navy Adams tomorrow, but there is no reliable news about the intentions of Foreign Minister Aristide Briand whose tactics of cat-and-mouse toward the conference are not appreciated here.

The American and British chiefs met this morning and Prime Minister MacDonald saw Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, this afternoon. The former meeting, it is believed, dealt with "procedure," although both the British and Americans were extremely secretive about it. That word probably implies a discussion as to whether the other powers will grant France her desire to have recorded here a compromise on the rival methods of limiting naval power—by classes of ships or by total tonnage—which she can take to Geneva as an aid to disarmament discussions there.

As already stated in these dispatches, there is considerable doubt as to whether Great Britain and the United States, who made concessions on the method of limitation by categories to France in the hope of getting general agreement, will permit Briand to carry away this piece of booty since he intends to give nothing in return.

Plenary Session in Doubt.

Upon resolution of this question probably hangs the decision as to whether or not to hold a plenary session this week or early next week. There are many contradictory rumors about all this. The probability is that nothing has been decided.

MacDonald is understood to have told Grandi today that he objects to an open session in the near future at which disagreements would be expressed in public. The British premier's policy is now thought to be a three-power agreement to be negotiated with or without the presence of the French delegation in London, and if and when this is successfully concluded, to hold a plenary session at which the French and Italians could make final statements and the five-power conference be liquidated, with a three-power pact to follow.

But this does not meet with Latin approval and there are enormous dif-

Naval Parley Strain Tells on Delegates

Faces of Stimson, Grandi Betray Stress of Long Hours.

London, March 24 (A.P.).—Long working hours and late social engagements are beginning to tell physically upon many of the delegates and experts at the naval conference.

The British and the Americans, on whom a large part of the conference burden has been thrown during the last few weeks, are feeling the strain especially. It can be said that if the Americans are burning the midnight oil, the British are burning the early morning oil. They are working early and late.

Prime Minister MacDonald is under one of the greatest physical tests put up to any statesman in many years. As leader of the British delegation, Labor party leader in parliamentary sessions, and chairman of the conference, he is under a triple burden.

When the conference began, all the delegation members could be found on the job early in the morning, every one being at work at least by 9 a. m. lately few of them have been discoverable in their offices earlier than 10:30.

Secretary Adams Sails Toy Ships in London

London, March 24 (A.P.).—The chilly weather, which continues in England has failed to keep Secretary Charles Francis Adams from his favorite sport—yachting.

While the Secretary's last experience with yachts was when he visited Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V at Portsmouth, he has become enthusiastic for yacht models.

Those who stroll along the pond in Kensington Gardens these afternoons frequently halt to watch graceful models perfectly manipulated by a small gray-haired man who operates them with the experience of an old salt. Only a few friends recognize the man as Mr. Adams, however, and they remain only a few moments in order not to distract his attention.

DRINKING LAID TO PUPILS AT MERGER QUIZ

Eastern High Students Cited by Opponent of Reduced Car Fares.

SAYS RESTAURANT NEARBY SELLS RUM

Noonan Asks Free Rides That Savings May Go For Milk and Soup.

DISTRICT IS ASKED TO BEAR EXPENSE

Traction Combine Hearing Heard Before House Subcommittee.

A story of drinking by Eastern High School students was injected into the traction merger hearing at the Capitol last night.

Henry W. Lynn, 316 Sixteenth street southeast, told a House District subcommittee that he was opposed to granting reduced fares to high school students because of their drinking and smoking, and he then went on to cite what he said was an actual example of their depravity.

"Right down here by the Eastern High School," he said, "just a short ways from it, there is a place that sells lunches, &c., anywhere from sandwiches to pigs feet, in the front room, and they can go into the back room and buy whisky.

Quarter for Gill.

"I was in that place myself to get a shot, which I take occasionally, and while in there two high school boys came in and two girls, and they bought a half pint and the four of them drank it.

"Also while I was in there, a little girl about 9 years old came in and says, 'Mother says to send her a gill.' They put a gill in a half-pint bottle. She paid a quarter for it, and went out.

"That place is right close to the Eastern High School."

The members present — Acting Chairman Bowman, of West Virginia, and Representatives Lampert, of Wisconsin, and Hall, of Mississippi—had some difficulty in keeping Mr. Lynn on the subject of the traction merger. For the first five minutes or so he discoursed on his personal career.

Savings Would Buy Soup.

John J. Noonan, who since he sold out his traction stock has been devoting his time to a fight for free fares for school children, was the first witness last night.

He told the subcommittee that more than 17,000 children here are

PUBLIC HEARING IN CROSBY ROW IS CAPPER PLAN

ROUND-ROBIN SOUGHT CHANCE TO BE HEARD

Citizens Will Present Views to Senate on Friday.

WEST ALSO ALIGNS WITH PROTESTANTS

Former Commissioner Says General Is Not Eligible for Office.

A public hearing on the nomination of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, retired, as District Commissioner, will be held by the Senate District committee at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning, it was announced yesterday by Chairman Capper.

He called the meeting soon after the Senate had disposed of the tariff bill.

Shortly before this he received a round-robin letter signed by six trade and civic leaders asking for a chance to be heard on the nomination.

Signers of Letter.

The letter was on the stationery of the Washington Board of Trade and was signed by the following: E. J. Murphy, president of the Board of Trade; Charles W. Darr, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Mark Lansburgh, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association; John B. Colpoys, president of the Central Labor Union; H. Mason Welch, of the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association, and B. A. Levitan, of the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association.

The letter was filed along with three others protesting against Gen. Crosby's nomination.

West Is Also Protestant.

The first of these was received from former Commissioner Henry Litchfield West, who contends that Gen. Crosby, as a retired officer, is not eligible for the Commissionership.

Thus far no protests have been made against the nomination of Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer for the other Comissionership.

Missing Chemist, Girl Found Slain in Vienna

Cleveland Police Think Doctor's Companion Was Secretary.

Vienna, March 24 (A.P.).—Dr. Ernest Watzl, prominent chemist and inventor, of Cleveland, who disappeared near Pottstown, Pa., on November 7, 1929, was found dead this afternoon in his hotel room here. Josefa Kropej, also of Cleveland, was discovered dead with him.

The authorities said it was a case of double suicide and believe that financial difficulties were the reason.

They were both shot dead. According to the police, Dr. Watzl left a number of letters addressed to people in various countries. They said he had been met in Europe by Josefa Kropej, and the couple had come to Vienna together.

The police said the news of the deaths had been communicated to the American authorities and refused to make further statements.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 24 (A.P.).—Police believed tonight that Josefa Kropej, of Cleveland, who was found dead in a Vienna hotel with Dr. Ernest Watzl, Cleveland chemist, may be Mrs. Mary McGranahan, of Cleveland, who disappeared shortly after Watzl's automobile was found at Pottstown, Pa., last November 7.

DR. ERNEST WATZL.

Nothing has been heard from her since she disappeared and police believe Mrs. McGranahan might have gone to Vienna with the chemist.

Mrs. McGranahan was of Hungarian

Grundyism Charges Are Hurled as Coalition Bewails Measure.

DEADLOCK FORECAST AMONG CONFEREES

Bitter Battle Expected in Final Showdown for Debenture.

SEVERAL MAY SWITCH IF CLAUSE IS CUT OUT

Hoover Likely to Win Fight for Flexible Provision, Is Indication.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Senate version of the tariff, a big bulky thing 3 feet long, 2 feet wide and 6 inches thick, was finally passed yesterday, 53 to 31, with the Democrats and Progressives shrieking "Grundyism" so loudly that it almost lost its identity as the Hawley-Smoot bill.

With sugar, lumber and cement as the three-headed monster to be railed against from the housetops throughout the summer and fall, it went to conference, where it will remain for at least five weeks, thence to undergo another bitter fight over its debenture and flexible provisions.

The mild-mannered, white-haired little man who came into the Senate coincidentally with the breakdown of the coalition to provide the issue of Grundyism was not present when the vote came. He was away attending Secretary Mellon's birthday party in Pittsburgh and conferring on the question of whether he should or should not withdraw from the open in politics, but the grief-stricken Democrats and Progressives insisted that his spirit was present.

Regulars Make Little Defense.

Little defense came from the Republican regulars during a day given over entirely to the beating of breasts, but near the end Senator Glenn, of Illinois, inserted a newspaper item which listed some fourteen members of the coalition, particularly Democrats, who had made the present form of the bill possible, and who, if the charge of Grundyism is to prevail, must admittedly have come under its sway.

Indeed, the bill was finally passed with the aid of seven Democrats and eight Progressives. This, however, does not tell the real story, because of the eight Progressives at least five will vote against the bill if the debenture is stricken out and those seven Democrats were aided by several of their colleagues in putting the bill in its present form only to vote against it at the end in the kiowledge that it would pass nevertheless.

Two striking examples of this, not to single them out, were Senators McKellar and Brock, who voted for the duty on cement and then voted against the bill.

Still Firm on Debenture.

It has always been understood that the coalition intended to make a determined stand for the new flexible provision, which takes the flexible rate-making power from the President and restores it to Congress, but it developed yesterday that the outcome of the bill in the Senate has increased the coalition's determination for the debenture.

Senator Borah sounded this new call to arms yesterday when he declared that if the debenture is not retained now after the rates have assumed the form that they have agriculture will have gained nothing at all. Agricultural rates have been greatly boosted, even over the House bill, but on the theory that agriculture does not lend itself, generally speaking, to tariff assistance, it is contended that the only way these rates can mean anything at all is for the debenture to be retained.

Under this provision the farmer would receive one-half the tariff rate

SECOND HONEYMOON ENDS LOVE TRIANGLE

Borrowed Money Financed Wife's Trip With Another Man, Friend Says.

$11,000 SOON GAVE OUT

Detroit, Mich., March 24 (A.P.).—A husband and wife who were reunited after a tragically ending experiment in which the wife went away with another man to learn the quality of her love for him sent a message to friends today saying that they "intend to be happy once more."

The message came from "somewhere in Michigan," friends of the couple, Mr and Mrs. Benjamin March, said. "We are together once more," the friends were told. "We understand each other and will take up life again as though the incident that has passed never happened."

In the meantime, the body of the other man, Thomas A. Newton, 32, lay in Miami, Fla., where he ended his own life with a bullet last Thursday after Mrs. March had decided that she preferred life with her husband and 18-month-old daughter to continuing with him. Newton's wife, whom he married ten years ago, and his father, Thomas E. Newton, wealthy packer, were in Miami making arrangements to take the body to Orlando, Fla., for cremation.

The return of Mrs. March to her husband, who is curator of Asiatic art at the Detroit Institute of Arts, came after a trip with Newton which started February 24, during which the couple visited Bermuda, Cuba, and finally Florida. The trip, the husband said, was taken with his consent, after Mrs. March and Newton revealed to him the belief that

EUROPA MAY BREAK RECORD OF BREMEN

New Liner Nearing Port With Chance to Lower East-West Mark.

BROADCAST IS PLANNED

New York March 24 (A.P.).—Ploughing through a comparatively mild sea, but against headwinds, the new North German Lloyd liner Europa was averaging a speed of better than 28 knots today as she dashed off the final 519 miles of her maiden voyage across the Atlantic.

The Europa is expected to reach Ambrose lightship, the American finish mark of the Atlantic speed channel, around 6 a. m. tomorrow. If she passes the Ambrose before 5:54 o'clock she will have set a record for the crossing from Cherbourg Breakwater.

When the Bremen, the Europa's sister ship, made her maiden voyage last July, she set a mark of 4 days 17 hours and 42 minutes for the run. To equal this record the Europa must reach the lightship by 6:12 a. m. tomorrow.

The Bremen later lowered her record by 18 minutes, to 4 days 17 hours and 24 minutes. The Europa was four days out from Cherbourg Breakwater at 12:30 p. m. today.

For the fourth full day's run, ending at noon today, the Europa made 704 miles, an average speed of 28.16 knots. She was then 519 miles from Ambrose Light. The weather was clear.

The radio audience is to attend the arrival and the docking of the Europa tomorrow morning with the assistance of two broadcast chains.

Plans have been made by both NBC and CBS to give complete de-

SLEMP MAY OPPOSE GLASS FOR SENATE

50 Virginia G. O. P. Leaders Talk Over Prospects of Coming Race.

FOUR CANDIDATES SEEN

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., March 24.—If Virginia Republicans place a candidate in the field the coming November in opposition to Senator Carter Glass, Democratic incumbent, that candidate will likely be one of four men, it was authoritatively stated here today. The four are former Representative John Paul, of Harrisonburg; C. Bascom Slemp, Republican national committeeman and former representative from the Ninth District; Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, member of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission, and Robert H. Angell, of Roanoke, Republican State chairman.

More than 50 leaders of the Republican party in Staunton and Augusta County gathered here today at a luncheon meeting, which proved to be a preliminary gesture to the congressional campaign this fall. While no names of prospective Republican candidates were mentioned formally at the luncheon, it was learned that one of the four men mentioned is likely to oppose Senator Glass.

After today's meeting it was stated that the full Tenth District Republican committee would be called together here early in April.

No indication was given as to who will be selected to make the congressional race in the Tenth District. Duncan Curry, of this city, Republican State vice chairman, presided at the meeting.

ATLANTIC AIR LINE PAPERS ARE SIGNED

Planes and Dirigibles Will Cooperate, Announcement by Eckener, Mitchell Says.

HUGE FIRMS INVOLVED

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Co., and Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, tonight announced the signing of contracts with prominent financial and aircraft interests in the United States and Europe for the establishment of a lighter-than-air mail and passenger line across the Atlantic.

The contracts were signed by the International Zeppelin Transport Co., formed late last year in Delaware, and by the following other concerns: The National City Co., the Goodyear Zeppelin Co., Luftschiffbau Zeppelin (the German Zeppelin Co.), the Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Co., a subsidiary of the Union Carbide Co.; the United Aircraft Corporation, the largest aircraft combine in the country, and Aluminum Co. of America.

The announcement was interpreted as clearing away all doubt that plans for the transatlantic airship service, discussed for some time, would be pushed forward.

The signing of the contracts marks the first active cooperation between heavier-than-air and lighter-than-air craft in establishing regular mail and passenger service. Under the plan planes of United Aircraft will carry passengers from points inland to the Atlantic Coast, where they will embark on airships. Tonight's announcement set no definite date for the beginning of the transatlantic

Theft From Mate Involved In Arrest of Artist's Wife

Government Effort to Bring Mrs. Negulesco to Capital on Forgery Charge Is Expected to Open Up Old Legal Controversy.

The old legal question of "whether a wife can steal from her husband?" is expected to play an important part in the Government's efforts to bring Mrs. Winifred Negulesco back to the District of Columbia from New York City to answer a charge of forgery in connection with removal from a local storage warehouse of a number of paintings and other property belonging to her husband, Jean Negulesco, noted Roumanian artist, who recently had studios at the fashionable Wardman Park Hotel. The property involved is said to be valued at more than $50,000.

Mrs. Negulesco was arrested last week in New York City and is at present under $500 bond awaiting a removal hearing April 4 before United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill. She was arrested on a warrant sworn to here before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage by Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw.

Mr. Burkinshaw referred to the point involved: Whether a wife can steal from her husband, or a husband from his wife? as pure "legal fiction." It was pointed out, however, that in some instances the courts have held that the property of a husband and wife is communal. Mr. Burkinshaw hopes, however, that the Government can prove that there is no basis for such a supposition, and that decisions so made have been without legal foundation.

News of Mrs. Negulesco's arrest as received here yesterday by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover in a letter from United States Attorney Tuttle, of New York. Mr. Tuttle asked that the local office send him all data in the case in order that his office could make the proper representation before the commissioner.

Mr. Tuttle also stated that Mrs. Negulesco at the time of her arraignment immediately after her arrest declared that the ownership of the property involved had been settled in court proceedings and that she signed the order on which the valuables were removed from the warehouse "under color of authority."

The property involved is now the focal point of two suits in District of

Rudy Vallee Depicts Band Work Methods

Characteristics of His Recruits Outlined by Famous Leader; Importance of Key Shifting to Relieve Monotony Is Emphasized.

SYNOPSIS.

In the first two chapters Rudy Vallee told of his trials and tribulations as a saxophone player and in trying to break into New York. He has now gathered his Connecticut Yankees together for their initial appearance.

CHAPTER III.—PLAYERS AND HOW HE PLAYS.

TO me the piano is the heart and soul of the orchestra, without which you have nothing. And as I had for a long time had the ideas in my head which I was now about to put into practice, I knew I would need a pianist who knew his keys thoroughly and had a good memory for old pieces; one who could learn new pieces quickly, could play a tune in any key and, above all, could take piano choruses alone with only the drum accompanying him and play them in a way that would sound like four hands at the piano.

In all my dance orchestra experience I had played with the best of pianists. In London our pianist was England's best. The men I played with while at Yale were the best. I had become quite spoiled, and since this was the first band of my own I felt that to start with a poor pianist would be to whip me before I began.

I had wired Burwell, who was in New Haven, playing very little, as work was at a standstill. He was a man who had never been sufficiently featured and brought out where the public could appreciate his artistry. Today I think he thanks me for doing just that. I was relieved when he wired back that he would come, and that he could also secure Joe Miller, the tenor saxophonist, who lived near him and to whom I had also wired.

Rest Were Strangers to Vallee.

The rest of the men were strange to me.

There was Ray Toland, drummer, six and one-half feet tall, size fifteen shoes. For several years he had played with Mannie Lowry, our first violinist, who has a sweet tone and a loyal and energetic personality.

Next came Charlie Peterson, our banjoist, who came in from the Middle West with a Minnesota accent and the taste of several colleges; good-natured and always day dreaming.

Then there was Harry Patent, our little bass player, quite as devoted to the study of music as my pianist. Harry had played the violin in junior symphonies and had decided to take up the string bass at the age of 17. He had practiced long and faithfully but had failed to secure an engagement anywhere because he looked too young; so he conceived the bright idea of growing a mustache, which

Distinctively New Section Appears in Post Tomorrow

Classified Advertising to Supplant Old "Want" Ad Columns; Expert Engaged to Coach Writers in Production of Appealing Notices.

One of the most important changes in recent years will be inaugurated by The Washington Post tomorrow when the present style "Want Ad" columns, unchanged over a period of years, are supplanted by a distinctively new "Classified Advertising" section, modernized, simplified.

Classified advertising has long been recognized by advertisers and readers alike as one of the vital functions performed by a newspaper. It performs for advertisers a very definite and distinctive service, placing their wants or offers before thousands of potential customers each day. For the readers, the Classified Advertising section offers a service unlike that performed by any other department of a newspaper—a section in which their every need may be fulfilled.

To enhance further this valuable service to its readers and advertisers, and to supply the ultimate in classified advertising practice, The Post has retained on long and exclusive contract the services of John H. Tovey, one of the best known classified advertising experts in the country, who is here in Washington now to supervise the installation of the Tovey method for The Post and to instruct the staff in how to write classified copy which will have the greatest appeal.

Through his experience in his connection with more than 300 newspapers in this country and Canada, and the study he has made of the habits of classified readers and users, Mr. Tovey brings to Washington an understanding of this important newspaper feature which heretofore has been entirely missed. His associations have been with some of the outstanding newspaper men in the country. Recent successes have been with the Buffalo Evening News, owned by Edward H. Butler, president American Newspaper Publishers Association; John Stewart Bryan, past president, and publisher of the Richmond News Leader, and Frank Gannett's Rochester Democrat & Chronicle.

The most important development of the Tovey method rests in the conception of advertisements as "Classion any commodity he exported. Senator Borah gave as his desire to go through with the debenture to the end, his reason for voting for the bill.

Observers generally agree that just about one of the first things the conferees will do is to deadlock, so to speak, on the debenture, the House conferees refusing to accept it. Then the Senate conferees, as they assured very solemnly yesterday they would do, will report back to the Senate.

In the final showdown the cards certainly seem stacked against the debenture proponents.

Until a few weeks ago it was generally believed that the House would accept the Senate flexible amendment or perhaps agree upon a compromise. Now that the coalition has broken down it is doubtful if the President will not win out even on this. So many senators are interested in the bill because of particular items that in an endurance contest it would seem that the President has only to remain firm, and insist upon the provision he wants.

The coalition has another point of contention in the Norris antimonopoly clause, which provides that tariff protection will be removed from any industry when it is proven that a monopoly exists. This simply provides another agency of attacking monopolies to the many laws that are already existent but which in recent years have not been taken very seriously.

Fight Has Raged 10 Months.

It will be ten months next week since the bill left the House, and in that time it has suffered some terrible ups and downs.

The bedraggled coalition points with pride to the many proposed industrial increases that it beat down. It points out particularly that it held the Cuban raw sugar increases to 2 cents whereas 3 was sought by the House. Before this group crows too much, however, it had better wait for the conferees' compromise.

Should the coalition be able to hold onto the flexible change it admittedly will have gained a major victory, one, indeed, that would overshadow everything else, and the debenture would mean more than that $500,000,000 which the Farm Board has.

Senator Borah declared in his speech yesterday that while the Farm Board is in competent hands and may work out all right it has certainly done nothing for the farmer yet.

Hoover Veto Doubted.

It has been represented frequently that the President, having spoken as strongly as he has against the debenture, would have to veto the bill if it came to him with such a provision. It is doubtful if he would. In the first place, the bill makes it strictly optional with the administration as to whether the debenture should ever be put into effect.

But the debenture is not likely to reach him.

It remains to be seen how the charge of Grundyism will assay in the elections. There is no question but that it is worrying the Republicans now, and they are doing everything in their power to dissociate the Pennsylvania senator from the bill.

It is a fact that long before Mr Grundy received such prominence, Senator Watson and other Republican leaders said very confidently that in the end the Democrats would do just as they did, that the coalition would break when the rates affecting their States were reached.

Weak Point G. O. P. Target.

And the Republicans pointed all their strategy toward trading with these Democrats.

But the coalition held together so long that some of the Republicans were right down in the mouth.

At any rate, regardless of just what Senator Grundy had to do with the coalition breakdown, it so happened that it came shortly after he had warmed to his Senate seat, on the very day, in fact, that it was learned that he had a lot of additional employes and American Tariff League experts working with him.

It may readily be, however, that these were just unfortunate coincidences for the Republicans.

Legge Thinks Debenture Project Is Impractical

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Legge of the Farm Board expressed conviction yesterday that the export debenture proposed in the Senate tariff bill could not be made operative.

"It might work for a little while," he said, "but foreign importing countries undoubtedly would put up insurmountable barriers—perhaps to the extent of an embargo—against American produce on which the debentures were operative. They already have threatened such action in anticipation of an attempt by the United States to 'dump' wheat."

The chairman recalled the protest of importing countries when France recently announced a bounty approximating 20 cents a bushel on certain grades of French wheat put in export trade. In some instances, he said, the result was tantamount to boycott.

MOSES AND JOHNSON CLASH, STIR GALLERY

Exchange Follows Charge by New Englander Indiana Is Favored in Bill.

TOLD HE IS OUT OF ORDER

A sizzling exchange of words between Senator Johnson, (Republican), of California, and Senator Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, brought many gallery spectators to their feet in the Senate late yesterday.

Senator Moses, the president pro tem., was relieving Vice President Curtis as presiding officer at the time, and had just broken into the debate to praise New England granite.

As passed by the Senate the deficiency bill carried increased sums to build the Boston and Denver postoffices of this granite, but as finally approved by the Senate yesterday the bill provided that Indiana limestone be used.

This led Senator Moses to say that the bill was framed in favor of Indiana limestone.

"A point of order," shouted Johnson. "In engaging in the debate while he is presiding, the senator from New Hampshire is clearly out of order."

Senator Moses ruled that he was not out of order, and did so in a voice that reverberated through the chamber.

Johnson insisted that Moses was out of order, and Moses persisted in saying that he was not. Just because he happened to be presiding, the New Hampshire senator said, was no reason why he should not continue to speak for his State.

Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, suggested that, at least, Senator Moses might ask the senator who had the floor to yield to him when he wanted to enter the debate, but Moses defiantly declared that he wouldn't even do that.

If the members did not like it, he said, they could elect somebody else president pro tem.

Stafford Lightburn Lambert, 23 years old, of St. Louis, Mo., who identified himself to police as the stepson of the president of the Anheuser-Busch Co., drew a suspended sentence of $25 or 10 days yesterday when he appeared in Traffic Court on a charge of operating an automobile without a permit.

Lambert was arrested Sunday night at Connecticut avenue and McKinley street northwest, and posted $100 collateral for his appearance in court. He received the $100 back after his trial.

STUDENT DRINKING CITED AT HEARING

being aided by the Community Chest, and he presented a mass of material to show that vast numbers of children here are in ill health from malnutrition. If these children were allowed to ride to school free of charge, he said, the car fare could be used to buy them milk and soup.

C. E. Reigel, of the Consumers Leagues, told the subcommittee that it was wasting its time by considering the merger resolution; that the merger was merely a hypothesis.

Gen. Patrick Testifies.

He characterized the Public Utilities Commission as a "Hover commission—efficient but unprogressive." He said it had chased the traction companies around like a cat chases a mouse, and that finally the mouse had escaped into its hole.

The taxpayers of the District should bear the burden if the street car companies are ordered to carry school children for half fares or free fares, Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, declared at the hearing yesterday morning.

"Just one word about free rides or reduced fares for school children," he said. By such legislation the revenues of the companies will be more or less reduced. In simple justice to them, this loss must be made up and this can be done in only two ways—either by authorizing a higher fare for adults or by general taxation.

Argument Is Set Out.

"The street car riders probably are the least able as a class to bear additional financial burdens. Furthermore, the lesser fares for school children probably will benent many others who do not ride street cars. Therefore, it may be argued that this charge should be borne by the general taxpaying public.

"If this view is accepted, it will not be at all difficult to provide accordingly. As the law now stands, the tareet car companies must pay into the District of Columbia treasury 4 per cent of their annual gross revenues. For both companies, this 4 per cent tax is now something like $400,000 a year.

"A provision may be inserted in this proposed legislation reducing this tax to 3 or 2 per cent, or some such figure, or authorizing its reduction by the amount of the actual loss of revenue and additional expense to the street railway companies, this to be ascertained and certified by the Public Utilities Commission.

Legislation Held Imperative.

"It is repeated that if school children are to be carried free, some such legislation is imperative."

Gen. Patrick again urged the subcommittee to retain in the merger resolution the provision that guarantees a continuance of the present rate of fare for two years. The representatives of the companies have stated that if this stays in there will be no merger.

Gen. Patrick declared that once the resolution has been adopted, the companies will have to choose between two alternatives: Remaining apart and earning $900,000 additional which they say an increased fare would bring them, or merging and realizing a saving in operating costs, a saving which has been estimated by one expert at $1,000,000.

Fireman Rescues Dog From Blaze

Two Persons Suffer Burns in Attempts to Save Canine.

Plunging into a blazing woodshed to rescue an imperiled dog after two persons were burned in trying to make a similar rescue, Fireman G. W. Dove, of No. 27 Engine Company, was the hero of a fire at 602 Forty-ninth street northeast yesterday afternoon.

Both the house and woodshed were on fire when Edward D. Hackett, colored, 24 years old, of 4822 Dean avenue northeast, dashed into the burning shed on the rescue mission. He was burned on the left side of the face. Ruth McCullough, colored, 39 years old, of the Forty-ninth street address, was burned on both arms when she attempted to drag Hackett from the burning shed. Fireman Dove then plunged into the shed and emerged with the dog in his arms.

Badly frightened but uninjured, the dog was restored to its owner, James E. Mitchell, of the Forty-ninth street address. The fire caused about $150 damage to the house and woodshed. The man and woman refused hospital treatment.

MELLON OBSERVES BIRTHDAY SIMPLY

Secretary, in Pittsburgh, Gets Greetings From All Parts of World.

ASKS INTERVIEW AT 100

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 24 (A.P.).—Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, today observed the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birth, and his three-quarters of a century of life, in his own words, "has been and still is, both full and interesting."

Appearing like a man of many years younger than computation of his natal year—1855—makes fact, the custodian of the Nation's financial destinies, came to Pittsburgh—his home—to celebrate the day.

There was nothing much special to mark the occasion excepting hundreds of congratulatory messages from all over the world and some calls from his Pittsburgh friends. Interviewers were told, the Secretary's words being accompanied by a twinkle in his eye, that he could not say much about his birthday, but that they should come around when he attained the century mark and he would have something to talk about.

Tonight a small group of old personal friends and neighbors honored the Secretary at a private dinner at the Pittsburgh Country Club.

On Way Toward Equality.

On rare occasions the quiet, modest Mr. Mellon is prevailed upon to make remarks and this was one of those occasions. Mr. Mellon reviewed the history of Pittsburgh and the world during the past 75 years and described it as a period that "has carried mankind forward, not backward, and has raised the whole plane of civilization to a higher level."

"What has been accomplished, it seems to me, in the period which we have been considering is that the average person in this country now commands the means of a comfortable subsistence to a greater extent and with less effort than ever before in the history of the world," Mr. Mellon said. "I do not mean to say that we have attained equality of opportunity. No nation has ever attained it. But here in America, if we have not yet achieved that aim toward which we have been striving, at least we are on the way to realizing it eventually, nor have we any reason to be dissatisfied with our present rate of progress."

Faith in Pittsburgh.

The Secretary said he was well satisfied, that he was privileged to live in the last three-quarter century, and added:

"Life has been, and still is, both full and interesting; and I shall go, when the time comes, 'as a satisfied guest from life's banquet,' but if I were given the opportunity to exchange my own period of time for any other, I would choose without hesitation the next three quarters of a century; and, needless to add, I would live in America and preferably in Pittsburgh."

DEMOCRATIC HOUSE CLAIM IS RIDICULED

Wood Says Minority Hopes to Gain Enough Seats to Form Coalition.

BYRNS FIGURES SCOUTED

(Associated Press.)

The contention that the Democrats hoped to gain enough seats in the next election to give them a maximum of strength in the House with a minimum of responsibility, was raised last night in a statement issued by Representative Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, who assailed a prediction by Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, that the Democrats would capture 70 seats during the elections, with the possibility of twenty more. The Democrats need 53 seats to obtain control of the House.

The Democrats hope, the Indianan said, to capture enough seats to reduce the Republican majority so that they may form a coalition from time to time which would result in a maximum strength with a minimum of responsibility.

"We would like to be serious about this matter," Mr. Wo d said. "We want to do a little prophesying and forecasting ourselves after the primaries and conventions have been held and there are some nominees in the field whose strength may be estimated.

"We could be serious right now," the statement continued, "if our Democratic friends would only be serious and reach an agreement with them on these outstanding facts:

"That there are some 40-odd seats, now held by Republicans, over which there will be determined contests. That the Democratic strategy, as is well understood by political writers and observers, is to capture, if possible, 40 or more of these seats, with the hope of reducing the Republican majority to a point where, through the pressure of group and sectional interests, they may from time to time form a coalition to harass and embarrass the Republican administration. That, in short, their ultimate hope as a result of the next election is for a House in which they may have a maximum of strength with a minimum of responsibility.

"The Republican party is willing to take up the gage of battle on this basis and fight with all the vigor at its command to save the country from such a calamity."

Mr. Wood ridiculed the idea that the Democrats would control the next House, and said that "Chairman Byrns was able to give out these definite returns more than seven months in advance of the November elections."

This occurs almost every time the rain falls, he states. Attorneys Howard & Hayes appear for the plaintiff.

WICKERSHAM URGES JONES LAW CHANGE

Trial of Dry Statute Under Justice Department Is Necessary, He Holds.

STUDY REPORT IS BARED

(Associated Press.)

Expressing the opinion that prohibition "can be measurably enforced, although human appetite is widespread," Chairman Wickersham, of the Law Enforcement Commission, has informed the Senate that no one can say whether the act can be or can not be effective until it has been given a trial under the Justice Department.

A comprehensive report of the eight months' study of prohibition by Chairman Wickersham was disclosed yesterday in the publication of his recent testimony before an executive meeting of the Senate judiciary committee. The House bill transferring prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Justice Department is before the committee.

He advocated a softening of the terms of the Jones act, which was passed last year by Congress, increasing the penalties for dry law violators. He said, however, that Federal officials have used "discretion" in administering penalties under this act.

Improvement Is Reported.

The chairman reported "steady improvement" in dry enforcement; praised the dry administrators; denied that political influence is filling the service with inefficient and corrupt officials and ascribed the leaks from industrial alcohol as the most difficult source of liquor to contend with.

"I think if the Attorney General has a free hand as he should have," he contended, "in reorganizing the Prohibition Bureau, you have as good assurance of effective conduct of the enforcement agencies as could well be had, provided his personnel is sufficiently compensated and are put on a proper basis. I think until that is done no one can say absolutely whether the law can be or can not be enforced."

As for the Jones law, Mr. Wickersham, in asking for its modification, said:

"I do not think you ever can enforce laws more effectively by putting extreme penalties on minor violations."

Judges Held Considerate.

Replying to Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, the commission chairman said, "Judges have been considerate and discriminate in their sentences."

"The taste for beer," Wickersham reported, "seems to be greatly diminishing and the people who want to drink at all want a strong drink, something more intoxicating."

He said there are numerous stills but that these are being used more for the manufacture of whisky than for beer.

Chairman Norris, of the judiciary committee, interrupted to say: "I am not so much interested in the man who makes something and does not try to sell it and violates the law."

"Yes," replied Mr. Wickersham, "but there is a great deal of that made for bootlegging too."

Mitchell Asked to Appear.

Mr. Wickersham was before the Senate committee on the resolution of Senator Norris proposing a Senate inquiry into dry enforcement. The committee took no action on the resolution yesterday. It invited Attorney General Mitchell to appear before it next Monday.

Giving a picture of prohibition conditions, the commission chairman told of his interviews with the dry law administrators and said he would question the integrity of only one of them. He told how one prohibition administrator and his family had been ostracized by society and were no longer invited to parties.

"They have impressed me as very straightforward, honorable, upright, vigorous, fine officials. I can think of one or two preeminently and I have wondered that you could get such men for the salary."

He told of the importation of whisky from British and French possessions off the Atlantic coast by a number of fast ships equipped with tanks with a delivery hose.

Make Quick Connections.

"They make a connection, probably by radio, with some point on the coast," he said, "run in and discharge their cargoes into tank wagons in a very brief space of time and are off. A great deal is brought in that way. How much nobody knows."

He cited that exportations from Canada to these islands along the Atlantic coast had increased last year over 1926 by more than 900,000 imperial gallons, to a total of 1,259,887 for the year ended March, 1929. He expressed the belief that "in all probability that increase largely came into the United States through some of the ports along the Atlantic coast or the gulf."

He estimated that of the 100,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol manufactured and sold last year, 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 gallons were diverted into the bootleg trade. He advocated some system of forcing the permittees of industrial alcohol to make a report of what is done with the product.

Bogus $20 Notes Appear in Virginia

Six Passed at Harrisonburg; Man Trailed as Other Towns Report.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., March 24.—Six counterfeit $20 notes were received by Harrisonburg merchants Saturday night, it was revealed today with the depositing of Saturday's receipts at local banks. A Government agent is hot on the trail of the distributor and has taken all bills for evidence.

Banks at Woodstock, Edinburg and Mount Jackson also reported the counterfeiter had visited there Saturday night. The man was southbound and is believed now in Staunton or Roanoke. He was followed here yesterday by the Government agent. The man made small purchases at two drug stores, two grocery stores, a clothing store and a confectionery, giving one of the spurious bills in exchange at each place. He failed in two other attempts where stores were prepared to close for the night and did not have the change available.

The notes have a bluish tint and the reproduction of the White House on the back is blurred. Each note bears the same serial number, making them instantly recognizable. The "feel" of the bill also reveals that it is not genuine, but easily passed during the rush of business.

VACUUM-STANDARD MERGER SUIT FILED

U. S. Seeks to Prevent Oil Combine; Sherman Act Violation Charged.

QUICK TRIAL EXPECTED

St. Louis, Mo., March 24 (A.P.).—The United States Government today filed suit in District Court here to enjoin the proposed merger of the Standard Oil Co. of New York and the Vacuum Oil Co. on the ground that it would be in violation of the decree dissolving the old Standard Oil Co. under the Sherman antitrust act.

The suit was filed by Louis H. Breuer, United States attorney for the Eastern District of Missouri, acting under direction of Attorney General William D. Mitchell. It was in the form of a supplemental petition to compel compliance with the final decree entered by the Eastern Missouri District Court November 20, 1909, as modified and affirmed by the Supreme Court July 20, 1911.

The petition alleges that the companies have entered into a contract of merger which would "completely eliminate all existing and potential competition between the two companies in interstate and foreign commerce." It asks that the contract be declared null and void and that the two companies be enjoined from carrying out the contract.

District Attorney Breuer said the case will be tried as speedily as possible before a three-judge court, as provided by statute. The boards of the two companies authorized the merger last January 10, subject to approval by the stockholders. They announced, however, that the stockholders would not be asked to pass upon the proposal until legality of the merger had been passed upon by the courts. This procedure was necessary because the Department of Justice had declined to give an opinion as to legality of the consolidation.

The new company would have a market value, on the basis of current stock quotations, of approximately $1,100,000 and would be second in size only to the parent Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

Heart Balm Suit For $100,000 Filed

Action by Former Mate Follows Alleged Secret Divorce by Wife.

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., March 24.—A heart balm suit for $100,000 was filed today in circuit court here. Ogle E. Yerkey, of Salem, wants the money, because the woman who was lately his wife is now Mrs. John Ansley Darnell, wife of a prosperous Smithton merchant.

According to papers in the case, Darnell, who was married, and Mrs. Yerkey slipped quietly away to Reno, Nev., some time ago and obtained divorces without the knowledge, it is said, of either Mrs. Darnell or Yerkey. Soon after their return they obtained a marriage license here March 8 and were married.

The news created a sensation in the Salem section. The marriage license record here gives the age of Darnell as 54 and the age of his wife as 30. She is a daughter of William and Snowie Stutler, of Doddridge County.

PARKER BUS TRAFFIC BILL PASSES HOUSE

Measure to Give I. C. C. Power of Control Now Goes to Senate.

FINAL VOTE 215 TO 118

(Associated Press.)

The first act by Congress to place interstate motorbus traffic under Government regulation came yesterday with passage by the House of the Parker bill to give the Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over the motor carriers.

The final vote was 215 to 118, after a motion to send the measure back to the interstate commerce committee for amendment was rejected by 236 to 104. It now goes to the Senate.

Approval followed a week of debate in which the opposition, led by Representatives Rankin, of Mississippi, and Huddleston, Alabama, Democrats, contended there is no need for such legislation. They held the various States already have ample power to provide the necessary regulation of the carriers.

In addition to regulatory powers over rates and schedules, the Federal commission, with the aid of joint boards composed of representatives of States involved, would be required to pass on applications for certificates of necessity and public convenience, which the bus lines would be called upon to secure. The bus operators also would be compelled to carry surety bonds for the protection of the traveling public.

A final vote was reached late Saturday at the conclusion of debate Mr. Rankin raised a parliamentary question which delayed passage until yesterday. The last moves of the opposition were demands for roll call votes, both on the motion to recommit and on final passage.

$25,000 Damage Suit Filed in Cart-Taxi Crash

An echo of a collision between a taxicab and a banana cart was heard yesterday in District Supreme Court when James Callas, of 1006 Seventh street northwest, filed suit for $25,000 damages against the Independent Taxi Owners' Association and Harry J. Schou, of 2503 Fourteenth street northwest.

Through Attorney John U. Gardiner Callas tells the court that on April 9, 1927, on Fourteenth street southwest, near the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, a Diamond cab driven by Schou struck his cart and caused it to fell him to the pavement. His left leg was broken in two places and he suffered other injuries which are of a permanent nature, he asserts. Negligence on the part of Schou is alleged.

CITY'S BUDGET BILL IS UP BEFORE HOUSE

$300,000 Authorized for Market Fought by Senator Tydings.

$45,334,317 SUM ASKED

The District of Columbia appropriation bill, carrying $45,334,317 to run the city during the fiscal year of 1931, was called up in the House yesterday by Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska.

Mr. Simmons, who is chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that wrote the bill, announced that general debate on the measure would be completed tomorrow, and that the reading of the bill would begin Thursday. Tomorrow will be devoted to the unanimous consent calender, so that whatever oratorical fireworks are to explode around the District bill must be delayed till Thursday or later.

The House, with its usual machine-like precision, is expected to pass the bill on schedule time, but there is no such assurance where the Senate is concerned.

Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, is reported to be girding himself for a real fight against one provision in the bill, that appropriating $300,000 for a farmers' produce market in Southwest Washington.

Senator Tydings and former Senator William C. Bruce, of Maryland, conducted a filibuster against the original bill that authorized this appropriation, but finally had to surrender.

The Maryland senator contends that the great majority of produce farmers will not go to the waterfront site to sell their produce, and that, therefore, the expenditure of the $300,000 is a waste of the taxpayers' money.

Lamp Post Signs Are Being Changed

New Plan Is Aimed to Aid, Motorists Driving at Night.

Following several weeks' observation of a preliminary experiment, the District government has begun to change location of the signs on corner lamp posts indicating the street.

Signs heretofore have been too high above the curb level to permit motorists to read them with the benefit of headlights. The new plan is to place one sign 8 feet 3 inches above the curb and the other 9 feet above the curbline.

The position of the street signs is to be changed, too, so that the lateral street sign will project out over the curbline instead of in over the sidewalk, as at present. There will be a slight overlapping of the parallel street sign so that its visibility also will be increased. Work of changing all the street signs has been begun and will be accomplished in a few weeks. The results of the new position were studied along upper Sixteenth street northwest.

Man Is Ordered Held In Death of Lad in Crash

Ben Williamson, colored, 21 years old, of Massachusetts avenue near Second street northwest, was held for action of the grand jury yesterday after an inquest into the death of Warren M. Stearns, 10 years old, of 6232 Georgia avenue northwest, who was knocked down Saturday by a truck reported to have been driven by Williamson.

The fatal accident occurred at Georgia avenue and Rittenhouse street northwest when Williamson was making a right-hand turn at Georgia avenue, according to the police report. Stearns was taken to Walter Reed Hospital, where he died a few minutes later. Williamson was held for investigation pending the coroner's inquest which was held yesterday morning.

DIED.

MISSING CLEVELAND CHEMIST AND GIRL ARE FOUND DEAD

parentage whose names were Horvath. She was 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighing between 95 and 100 pounds. Her features were fine and she was small boned, her fingers being exceptionally small. Her hair was slightly curly, blond, tinged with red. Her teeth were even and her nose was small and slightly turned up.

The Kropej woman was unknown here.

Mrs. McGranahan was a former secretary of Dr. Watzl's. Her husband, James McGranahan, sued for divorce after the disappearance and filed a $50,000 alienation of affection suit against Dr. Watzl. Mrs. Mary Watzl, the widow, said, when notified of her husband's death, that his payments on his life insurance premiums had expired today.

The career of Dr. Ernest Watzl, Cleveland chemist, was as colorful as his disappearance November 7, 1929, was mysterious.

He had invented a new process for the purification of water, which was said to be revolutionary and in great demand by water works in various parts of the country. He had gone to Philadelphia to sell the process to the water works there and obtain a job in the water department.

Late that day his automobile was found, a charred mass, on the banks of the Schuylkill River near Pottstown, Pa. There was no trace of the body.

Feverishly, police officials here and in Pennsylvania worked to untangle the mystery. In the midst of their activity came reports that the chemist was still alive.

Life Insurance Kept Paid.

His life insurance was still being paid from a mysterious source. On December 23 a letter came from New York to the John Hancock Life Insurance Co. with a check for the premium. The letter was said to have been written on Watzl's typewriter and signed "Charles Warner" in a feminine hand.

In the meantime, Mrs. Mary McGranahan, former secretary to Dr. Watzl, had vanished. Her husband, James McGranahan, sued for divorce, and filed a $50,000 alienation of affection suit against the chemist.

There have been a great variety of reports as to the missing man's whereabouts, but none could be substantiated.

Technical Skill Praised.

Dr. Watzl's knowledged of chemistry and metallurgy was said to have been invaluable. One theory of the police was that he had been working on an important metallurgical process and was going to a foreign country to develop it. The burning of the automobile was believed to have been a trick to cover up his tracks.

One report was that he had gone to South America to aid in the mining and refining of zirconium, a comparatively rare metal useful in alloys. The names of foreign metal manufacturers also were linked with his disappearance, but nothing was substantiated.

Reports also stated that Dr. Watzl had gone to Austria, his native country, but these likewise could not be vertified.

Worked for Austria in War.

Back in his early twenties the chemist was selected by the Austrian government to work in American chemical factories and gain as much information as possible about new inventions and devices used in warfare. When the World War broke out he hurried back to Austria and conducted chemical experiments which won government recognition.

His career after the war never was fully recorded, but it is known that he traveled widely and on numerous occasions revealed a fiery nature and engaged in several duels.

He leaves a widow, Marie Watzl and two children, Herta and Jane.

NEW SECTION WILL SUPPLANT WANT AD COLUMNS TOMORROW

fied Advertising," rather than "Want Ads," and the thought of rendering the greatest possible service to both readers and advertisers.

"Want Ads" is a term of yesterday and perhaps was fitting enough when "Want Ad" sections consisted of a handful of ads in "Wanted" classifications. With the passing of years the field has expanded to groups of more varied and interesting headings, such as "Merchandise," "Financial," "Automotive," "Real Estate" and "Business Service" classifications, and a new and seemingly limitless usefulness is added to the medium.

"Classified Ads" are exactly what the term implies—classified, catalogued, convenient advertising of offers and wants. And in Wednesday's issue of The Post the Classified Ads will not only be classified in A-B-C order, but will be catalogued as nearly perfectly as possible. The reader looking for a definite article or service, will, by consulting the index which is to appear at the beginning of the Classified Section, be able to find immediately that which he is seeking. The old method of making it necessary to read an entire column of ads before finding that which is sought has been done away with in this new, simplified classified system.

Then, too, the indistinctness of style and meaning which has heretofore existed is no longer in evidence. The development of the ads themselves by trained ad-takers, schooled in the preparation of copy that will accomplish its purpose, has cared for this added convenience. Full description of articles or services offered or wanted, multiple ads and careful indexing are all means to this end.

The Tovey Method is not an experiment, not an effort by The Post to pioneer in the classified advertising professions in Washington. The method has been subscribed to with exceptional success by 300 other metropolitan newspapers throughout the country, and its service to both readers and advertisers has been proved beyond a doubt.

It is the addition of one more important service to the already lengthy list which The Post offers its readers. It is the beginning of a new era in classified development in Washington—an era of scientific principles of intelligent activity—the era of wholehearted service to all readers of The Post in the community which it serves.

Tomorrow they will find a new Classified Advertising Section—vitally different, infinitely better.

PARLEY FATE NEAR; COTTON ANNOUNCES

Decision to Come This Week or Next, He Says After Seeing Hoover.

NEW ENVOY IS RECEIVED

By ALBERT W. FOX.

After a conference with President Hoover yesterday, Acting Secretary of State Cotton made it known that the fate of the London Naval Conference would be decided this week or next. It is the first authoritative intimation from the State Department here that a crisis is at hand and that the end may be in sight.

Prior to Mr. Cotton's statement, there were hints from the President's advisers that an announcement shedding light on the conference would be made by the Acting Secretary of State. But, after talking with Mr. Hoover, the Acting Secretary informed the press that no such announcement need be expected. In this connection it is recalled that the British foreign office notified the American correspondents Sunday evening that a statement would be ready at 9 o'clock. But when this hour arrived, it was explained that the announcement would not be forthcoming.

Anxious for Statement.

According to the understanding here, Prime Minister MacDonald had hoped for some sort of Anglo-American statement of sufficient import to inject oxygen into the fading enthusiasm among the delegates. The British leader has been anxious to emphasize Anglo-American teamwork, in the interest of "disarmament and world peace" at this particular time. A joint Stimson-MacDonald pronouncement would have the effect of strengthening MacDonald's political position with Parliament and, at the same time, serve as an indirect rebuke to France. The Labor leader is tired of coddling to Tardieu, it is understood, and believes that stressing the present Anglo-American harmony would tend to alter Tardieu's policy of aloofness from the conference.

But any joint Anglo-American statement at London would have to have the approval of President Hoover and there are intimations that the President is so far not disposed to encourage the idea. The temper of the Senate and the state of public opinion in the United States are not favorable to such a course, according to present indications. Besides, the American delegation is not united on the proposition of pulling MacDonald's political chestnuts out of the fire at the expense of other friendly powers. If President Hoover directed such a course it would be followed by a united delegation, but not otherwise.

Parley in Lindsay's Speech.

President Hoover had an opportunity to promote Mr. MacDonald's plan yesterday, in connection with the reception of Sir Ronald Lindsay, the newly appointed British Ambassador. Usually the remarks of a new ambassador and the reply of the President are along the most general lines and contain no reference to particular international questions. But Sir Ronald, after receiving instructions from the prime minister, incorporated the following in the remarks which accompanied the presentation of his letters of credence:

"The principal effort of diplomacy today is directed toward the noble task of making impossible any future outbreak of war. What for centuries has been the dream of poets and idealists has come to be regarded by practical men as a possibility of practical politics. In this task the cooperation of all governments is necessary; but no cooperation is more important and none more completely assured than that which so happily subsists between the Government of the United States and that of the United Kingdom.

"The naval disarmament conference now sitting in London is a part of this inspiring effort, and it is the hope of my government that it will result in an agreement satisfactory to all its participants and marking a long step forward along the path to permanent peace."

President Hoover, in his reply, took no notice of the statements relative to the naval conference.

tinct signs of fatigue each night as he leaves his office for his apartment in the Ritz Hotel or his country home at Stanmore.

Other members of the American delegation are holding up under the strain considerably better than the Secretary, most of them being younger.

Even Foreign Minister Grandi, of Italy, normally the most youthful and vigorous of all the delegates, showed signs of worry and fatigue on returning from a conversation with Mr. MacDonald tonight.

One of the hardest workers among the Americans is Dr. V. E. Higgins, who accompanied the delegation to watch over the health of all. Severe colds have been frequent, though the chief complaint of the Americans has been indigestion, which is attributed chiefly to change of food and eating in a hurry.

ficulties in the way of such a solution as there are of every other solution. The only candid comment tonight is that persons usually best informed are completely at sea as to what is going to happen next and freely admit as much.

Novice Motorist Hurt As Car Smashes Window

Driving an automobile for the first time without an instructor, Miss Leona Waters, 29 years old, of L street near Nineteenth street northeast, suffered cuts about the face and right knee early last night when the machine crashed into the plate-glass window of a grocery store of Harry Jaffe, at 1201 Morse street northeast.

Ninth Precinct police reported that Miss Waters, in making a left-hand turn, swerved the car suddenly to avoid a collision with another car and that the automobile lunged to the side over the curb and into the window.

they loved each other and wanted each other more than anything else.

March said that he consented to the experiment, which was to continue for a month. If his wife decided that she really held more affection for Newton they were to remain together, he said, but if she or Newton found that they were bound merely by an infatuation, she was to return and they would continue life as before.

An unnamed friend of Newton was quoted by the Detroit News today as saying that the experiment was financed on borrowed money—$11,000 of which only $17 apparently was left when Newton fired a shot into his own body.

The News said that the friend told of an appeal by Newton for money. "If I don't get money I'll shoot myself," the friend quoted Newton as saying, adding that Newton's father had refused to help his son.

The friend gave Newton $11,000 in securities, the paper continued, understanding that he would use them as collateral to "get himself out of a financial jam. I didn't know there was a woman in the case, and I didn't know anything about the trip. The arrangement was that he was to give back the securities as soon as his financial condition permitted. It was an oral agreement between friends."

Newton formerly was associated with his father in business, but more recently had been a bond salesman. His friends said that he lost heavily in the stock market crash last November.

Mr. March and Mrs. March are 31 years old. March is a graduate of the University of Chicago and has studied Oriental art and language abroad. Mrs. March, daughter of a missionary, was born in China and writes children's Chinese stories under her maiden name, Dorothy Rowe.

GRAND JURY TO GET POLICE QUIZ TODAY

TEN SLATED FOR STAND

Rose Marie Foster will be the first and most important of ten witnesses who will be heard today when the grand jury starts to investigate the police "shake down" scandal, which has developed from the shooting of James Crotts, young carnival showman, by Policeman S. F. Gravely early last Wednesday morning.

The Foster girl is expected to tell the jury that Crotts, together with John C. Elgin and Policeman A. C. Swortzel, came to a house on First street near Thomas street northwest, where she was working, and that Swortzel demanded that she give him $30 for "protection for working on his beat." Crotts, Swortzel and Elgin have been charged with conspiracy to extort.

The girl is expected to state also that after hearing the demand for money, she ran to the street where she met Gravely and Detective W. P. Burke, to whom she related the attempted "shake down" and pointed out the men who had preceded her to the street.

Burke will be the second witness to be called by Assistant United States Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick, who will present the evidence to the grand jury. He will be followed, in sequence, by Lieut. Ed Kelly, who had assigned him to investigate a robbery which had occurred in the same First street house the preceding Sunday morning.

Next to be called will be George A. McVey, a taxicab driver, who took Crotts, Elgin and Swortzel to the house and introduced them to the Foster girl and Frances O'Brien, another inmate.

Another important witness will be William Fulkerson, of Cherrydale, Va., who, police say, was in the apartment at the time of the alleged "shake down."

Inspector Bean will be the sixth witness heard. He is expected to present to the grand jury the statement made in various affidavits given to him by the principals in the affair, and to relate the results of his investigations.

Gravely probably will tell the grand jury that he drew his pistol and fired five shots, one of which struck Crotts in the back, when Crotts attempted to escape and apparently made a motion to draw a pistol as Gravely and Burke approached the spot where Crotts and Elgin stood, awaiting the return of Swortzel who had remained in the apartment after his two companions left.

It is understood also that Gravely will testify that while he was rushing Crotts to Casualty Hospital in his automobile, the wounded man told him that the trio had gone to the house with the intention of "shaking down" its inmates, and explained details of the plans for the alleged extortion.

This story is expected to be corroborated by Dr. John F. Collins, of Casualty Hospital, to whom Crotts is declared to have repeated the story as quoted by Gravely.

The other two witnesses will be the O'Brien girl and Detective Steve Brodie, who was on duty at Police Headquarters on Tuesday night when Burke and Gravely started out to go to the First street address. Gravely was not assigned to that job, it has been brought out, but accompanied Burke unofficially at the latter's request.

Arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, Gravely pleaded not guilty and was granted a continuance until April 4, when it is believed Crotts may be sufficiently recovered to be brought into court. Gravely was released in $1,000 bond.

KEYES-ELLIOTT BILL DUE FOR VOTE TODAY

Measure Authorizes $230,000,000 for U. S. Buildings; Half Goes to District.

APPROVED BY HOUSE

The Keyes-Elliott bill, authorizing $230,000,000 for the Federal building program, half of which would be spent in the National Capital, will be passed by the Senate today. Then it will go to the President, the House having passed it some time ago.

An agreement to vote on the bill was reached late yesterday after the Senate had disposed of the tariff bill.

First, the Senate will take up the Department of Agriculture appropriation bill. This is expected to be passed in about two hours. Then the Keyes-Elliott bill will be taken up.

The $115,000,000 authorized for the District of Columbia is, in addition to $50,000,000 already authorized for Federal buildings here and to the $25,000,000 authorized for the purchase of property in the Pennsylvania avenue-mall triangle.

Senator Swanson (Democrat), of Virginia, tried yesterday to make the Keyes-Elliott bill the first order of business, pointing out that it will do much to relieve unemployment and that its early passage is imperative if part of the money it authorizes is to be appropriated at this session.

Chairman McNary, of the agriculture committee, insisted on taking up the agriculture appropriation bill first. Finally, Majority Leader Watson broke the deadlock by declaring that both bills could very well be passed today.

The proposed new Department of Justice building is to be built on Center Market site, it was disclosed yesterday with the omission of this project from Secretary Mellon's list of new public structures planned for this year. Private interests are said to be behind a strong movement to finance a new market in the downtown area. Plans for the Archives building, also left off Mr. Mellon's list, are understood to have been delayed.

ARTIST'S WIFE HELD ON FORGERY CHARGE

Columbia Supreme Court. Mr. Negulesco has asked the equity division of the court to compel his wife to show cause why the property should not be returned. He also has sued the Security Storage Co. in the law division, seeking to recover $54,680.50 damages as the result of the removal of the property from its warehouse. The petition for the rule to show cause was supplemental to a petition for separate maintenance brought in the court last June by the wife. None of the suits has been settled, according to the court records.

Allegations of Husband.

Mr. Negulesco in his petition said that on August 19 he placed the property in the warehouse and shortly afterward left for the West to obtain employment and hold exhibits for the purpose of selling paintings, sketches and drawings. On October 17, he alleged, his wife went to the warehouse and without authority from him obtained possession of all his property.

At that time the artist declared that his signature appearing on the order on which the property was withdrawn was not his, but a forgery.

Mrs. Negulesco set out that she was a resident of the District and that she married the artist at Nice, France, on March 4, 1926, the mayor of that city officiating. After that, she alleged, her husband became cruel to her and refused and neglected to provide sustenance. She asserted that he had expensive studios in the Wardman Park Hotel and that his income was more than $5,000 a year. She also stated that she had been forced to leave him in order to recover her health, admitting that she returned to him a short time before instituting her suit.

Denials by Husband.

Mr. Negulesco denied that his wife was a resident of the District, pointing out that most of the time between February, 1928, and the filing of his answer in November, 1929, she had spent in France and New York State. He denied that he had refused to support her, that he had been cruel and that she had had to leave him in order to recover her health. She left him, he said, for the pleasure of taking a trip to New York and to Europe.

One hundred and thirteen paintings, a number of drawings and family jewelry are inventoried as among the property in addition to a number of antiques, valuable Indian curios, clothing and a vase said to be 1,200 years old.

Attorneys Ford & Grove appear for the artist, while Milton W. King is now the attorney of record for the wife.

REAR ADM. BYRD'S GRANDMOTHER DIES

Death Comes to 91-Year-Old Woman in Hospital at Baltimore.

WANTED TO GREET HIM

Counting the days until the arrival of her illustrious grandson, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, from his Antarctic explorations, Mrs. Jennie Byrd, 91 years old, died yesterday after an illness of 10 days at the Woman's Hospital in Baltimore, hoping to the end that she might live to join in the welcome to her relative.

The widow of Col. William Byrd the aged woman had made her home during the last 18 years with a daughter, Mrs. Susan Byrd Shipley, at 118 West Lafayette avenue in Baltimore. A native of Tennessee, she had spent the greater part of her life in Virginia, and as a member of the famous Byrd family, enjoyed a wide circle of friends throughout this section.

Active until the time of her fatal illness, Mrs. Byrd had evidenced a keen interest in current events, particularly in following the career of her noted grandson. In the last presidential campaign, she had arisen from a sick bed to go to the polls for the first time in her life and register, subsequently casting her vote for Gov Al Smith.

During the months that Rear Admiral Byrd has been in the Antarctic, she has maintained contact with him almost daily through a short-wave radio set operated in her home by Dr. George L. Dichmann, a friend. When he reached the South Pole, she congratulated him warmly in messages sent by the set.

Besides Mrs. Shipley and Rear Admiral Byrd, she is survived by three daughters, Miss Mary A. Byrd, of Baltimore; Miss Margaret Byrd and Mrs. R. W. Stargur, of California; three sons, William Byrd, Alfred H. Byrd and George R. Byrd; and three other grandchildren, former Gov Harry F. Byrd of Virginia; Thomas Byrd and Miss Evelyn Byrd Shipley.

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon from her Baltimore residence by the Rev. Benjamin B. Lovett, pastor of the Memorial Protestant Episcopal Church. The body will be taken to Winchester, Va., the Byrd family home, for burial tomorrow.

Permit to Parade Obtained by Union

Quarterly Dividend Passed by Cotton Mills at Danville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., March 24.—Mayor Harry Wooding today issued to a committee representing the local textile union a permit to conduct a parade through the streets of Danville as a protest to the mills' alleged policy in discharging workers for union activities. The date of the parade was left in blank to be filled in when the time is determined.

Another development in the local textile situation was the passing of the regular quarterly dividend on the common stock of the Riverside & Dan River Cotton Mills, Inc., this being $2.50 per share. Ninety per cent of the stock is owned in Danville and many people look to the periodic dividends as their principal means of support.

The action, however, was predicted when the last annual report was made to the stockholders. P. R. Fitzgerald, mill president, in commenting on the situation today said: "Market conditions are very unsatisfactory and the company may at any time have to run only part of each week."

GUILT IS ADMITTED BY 35 IN RUM RING

Four Deny Conspiracy Count as Ocean City Case Is Tried in Easton.

STATE'S EVIDENCE IS IN

Special to The Washington Post.

Easton, Md., Mar 24.—Four out of 40 men charged with landing over 1,800 cases of whisky at Ocean City on the morning of December 30, last, pleaded not guilty before Judge Morris A. Soper in the special session of the Federal Court, which convened here this morning. Thirty-four pleaded guilty. Two accused of participating in the crime failed to show up this morning when their names were called. One man was colored.

Sam Hill, alias Sam Stone; George Bolton, alias Harry Cline; Edward S. Murtha, alias McNichol, and Edward Miller, alias Edward Everett, are the four men who pleaded not guilty and who are now on trial.

The first witness called was Alfred W. Peters, a justice of the peace of Berlin. He testified that on the morning of the 30th he reached the Coast Guard station, where he told Capt. W. I. Purnell that something looked suspicious to him along the beach. The captain, in his testimony, related how he gathered his forces and rounded up the entire lot of men.

Piles of Rum Cases Seen.

Some were on the beach and others were on the mainland across the Sinepuxent Bay. Piles of cases of liquor were found on the beach and when officers were sent to the mainland they found an abandoned farmhouse with about 500 cases of whisky in two rooms and a truck backed up against the porch half unloaded.

As fast as the men were found they were arrested by the captain and taken to the Ocean City Jail and locked up.

Two of the accused were on the beach and two on the mainland. A number of the cases of whisky were opened and the captain says he put his initials on some of the bottles taken.

Adjournment Is Taken.

The prosecution finished taking testimony at 5 o'clock this afternoon when court adjourned until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Considerable interest was shown in the case. The courtroom was packed and jammed all day, even standing room being at a premium. The 34 who pleaded guilty were asked to retire in the grand jury room when some of them would be called to testify later.

John Philip Hill, of defense counsel, raised the question of the right of the Federal court to sit outside of Denton, and therefore claimed the trial illegal. The court overruled this and proceeded with the case.

did indeed lend him an air of sophistication. Some one had recommended him to us and we gave him his first opportunity. Today he is rated as one of the finest string bass players.

Finally came one of the boys who is the bane of my existence and at the same time a great personality. With a name like Jules De Vorzon you would look for no less than one of the descendants of the old Canadian fur trappers; instead you find a popeyed individual whose face is a puzzle. He might be Italian, or French, or even Jewish, which he really is. Jules—always late, always making engagaments at the last minute, wrapped up in his girl, whom he loves more than life itself—but little Jules, irrepressible, buoyant, with a vitality that expresses itself in a thousand ways that always brings a smile and an invitation to the tables of our guests.

These were my recruits, and I say they looked at me in a disappointed sort of way because that is the first reaction of the average person who sees me for the first time. My appearance was never calculated to inspire awe or respect in any one. It has given me a great kick when, in the course of our vaudeville engagements, we have gone to the stage door of a new theater to find our dressing rooms and the stage doorman has invariably said to me: "When will Mr. Vallee be here?"

Vallee Deplores Lack of Personality.

Indeed, it was some time before my boys came to realize that when I spoke to them they should give me attention because my words usually meant dollars and cents—the thing they were striving for. I have often wished for a personality that even in immobility would command complete silence and attention. But I suppose that that carries with it a certain hardness that might have destroyed some other part of me, which, perhaps, is likable. Those who know me know that I have always been able in the end to secure discipline from those who work for me.

We had only a little while to do anything, but I saw one thing that must be accomplished before we entered the Heigh-Ho Club.

Don Dickerman, whom we had yet to meet, had been trying various bands. He had opened the Heigh-Ho Club in a rush, to be ready for New Year's Eve. The floor was poor and he said his opening band was worse. A bad impression had been given those whom he wished to impress favorably. The appearance of the band had been against it and there had not been enough singing.

We had hired Jules De Vorzon as the vocalist. Although in my letters to the orchestra leaders I had said that I sang a bit, the kidding I had received at the hands of a Yale pianist with whom I had been in vaudeville had made me feel, even though he had chosen me to sing lead in a trio on our tour of vaudeville during the summer, that I should stick to my saxophone. I was engaged primarily to lead our little orchestra at the Heigh-Ho Club and to play the saxophone.

I took account of stock and I saw that, having only eight men, our instrumentation would not permit us to play the complete scores of the tunes as they are usually orchestrated. We had no brass, that is, no trumpet or trombone. And these are absolutely essential in different spots in the course of any one of these orchestrations. But the fact that we began by playing only choruses, with an occasion verse, was not primarily born of necessity; rather did I realize that the chorus was the kernel and the heart of the tune in question and that all else, even the verse, was superfluous.

By that, I mean I had noticed that the average person listening to a band begins to hum or whistle the air only at the chorus. These are the people we are playing for, and I realize that if they become bewildered by a complicated modulation leading to a chorus, or a chorus harmonized so elaborately that its simplicity is lost, then the average person is unable to carry the melody along; the listener becomes bored with this orchestra, which he promptly characterizes as monotonous, and either turns away from it, or tunes off it he is listening to it on the radio.

"Hot" Bands Are Rarely Appreciated.

I knew that the vogue for "hot" bands was really appreciated only by musicians and by a few individuals who were interested in "hot" band arrangements and who at places where these bands performed were of a nature to allow this music to work them into a frenzy of dancing. I knew also that to play "hot" music one must have brass. Although I do enjoy this so-called "hot" music, when properly rendered, and get as great a kick as any musician out of Red Nichols, Frank Trambauer, Joe Venuti, Eddie Lang and other masters of that style, I realized that it was over the heads of the vast majority of people who, after all, are those who buy the records and sheet music.

But there was one other vital point that most inexplicably seemed to have been lost sight of, or never thought of, by most of the orchestra leaders that I had played under (and it had been my good fortune to have played under something like 40 leaders since I had taken up the saxophone in 1920). This point I call "key color."

Every key has its own tone color which produces a certain definite effect, just as every actual color makes an impression upon us human beings. For instance, we all know that white gives the sensation of cleanliness and coolness; that is why hospital rooms and ice boxes are so painted. Red suggests warmth and relaxation. Likewise each key has either a certain brilliance, or the very opposite effect of somberness or gloom. The greatest offense of most orchestra leaders is their absolute failure to realize the value of contrast in key color. I have played under leaders who for half an hour have played six pieces consecutively, all in the same key, never realizing that they were not only boring themselves to death but sapping the very life out of their listeners. Versatility and contrast have been two of the cardinal features of my work ever since I can remember; never to let people know what was coming next, to keep them guessing, has always been one of my ambitions. Therefore I realize there was nothing more beautiful than contrast of keys. This contrast is accomplished by following a piece in one flat by another piece in two; then change to another in three and so on, decreasing or increasing the signature in flats or sharps or by changing radically, say from four flats to two sharps (which method often gives a more beautiful and striking effect).

Unaware Why Music Intrigues.

The majority of the listeners who now like our music are not really aware of the reason why our music first intrigued them. But it was just such contrast of tone color that made our music so agreeable. I had noticed that on society engagements, some orchestras had received a request for another tune, and not wishing to stop and get the music out, had attempted to go right into it, with the result that the transition was usually very discordant and distasteful to the ear. And yet this thing was a very common occurrence in the best orchestras at the best affairs. I realized that the only way this could be avoided was to make a perfect bridge between each song; each man must know where the change came and just what notes he should strike when the change occurred. I know that all changes, regardless of the tune or the place where the change itself took place, were guided by certain rules, and that the men would only have to learn these rules and the different chords they would have to hold, to perfect the change.

So we spent that hour in perfecting that one thing. I know that most of the boys were rather skeptical and surprised; even though they were of a musical turn of mind, they thought me rather crazy. But today they are tremendously proud of the ease and clocklike precision with which we jump from one tune to another.

DRY LAW MODERATE SEEKS VIRGINIA SEAT

Dejarnette Announces for House Nomination as Democrat.

OPPOSES OPEN SALOON

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., March 24.—"I favor an act of Congress to allow one quart of whisky a month to each adult, for medicinal purposes, but with no questions asked and no lies told," was the outstanding statement in the opening speech of E. H. Dejarnette, jr., in his campaign here today for the Democratic nomination for representative from the Eighth Virginia District.

Elaborating on this statement, he said he was bitterly opposed to any return of the open saloon. His plan, he says, is very much along the lines laid down by the Mapes act which was Virginia's Volstead act before national prohibition was established. Other changes favored by the candidate are higher tariffs on lumber and farm products and the prohibition in interstate commerce of rebating by manufacturers to large buyers. He also advocated the repeal of Virginia's short ballot which was introduced by former Gov. Harry Byrd, who is now being boomed as the next Democratic nominee for President.

E. H. Dejarnette is 51 years old, a Baptist, Mason and an Odd Fellow. He is a product of the little red schoolhouse, and went to school only two years as a boy, walking to and from the school, which was five miles away, each day with only one absence in the two-year period. With this meager foundation, he studied his elder brother's books and prepared himself to enter the University of Virginia. He graduated from that institution in 1900 and has practiced law one year in Spotsylvania with Judge F. W. Coleman, the rest of the time in Orange. He is married and has six children.

Noted Chesapeake Bay Figure Is Dead at 69

Annapolis, Md., March 24.—Capt. John Frank, 69 years old, perhaps one of the best-known watermen in the upper reaches of Chesapeake Bay, died early today at his residence here following a long illness of a complication of ailments. He was a widower, his wife having died several years ago.

Funeral services will be held from St. Mary's Catholic Church at 9 a. m., Thursday, followed by interment in St. Mary's Cemetery. Capt. Frank for many years held the post of tiler in Annapolis Lodge of Elks and was well known all over Maryland as a veteran volunteer fireman.

Highlights of the War

As Related by Veterans Themselves

One for "Hix"

On our arrival in England our group, after a short stay in London, were taken to Southampton to embark for the channel crossing to Havre.

We boarded the Channel boat at dusk and settled ourselves for what we expected would be a very stormy crossing, as in our imagination "all" Channel crossings were rough. In due time all port holes were closed, and, with all doors closed, a few dim lights burned to keep us company. One by one a girl would disappear with the usual case of "mal-de-mere," and all being huddled in one room it wasn't so pleasant. Out of 30 women about 25 succumbed to seasickness, and all agreed that crossing the Channel was worse than crossing the Atlantic. Finally, with the dawn came relief and quiet. We gradually got ourselves together for the one last lap—"the railroad trip from Havre to Paris"—and packing our duffle bags, came out for air and to see the sunshine of France.

You can imagine our horror and embarrassment when we discovered that we had never been untied from the wharf at Southampton, England, and that our sickness from Channel crossing was merely the slight rocking of the boat while still tied to the dock.

Note: We later learned the submarines were in the Channel that night and our crossing was postponed for another night—the next night. No one was ill.

A 'Logical Contender'

In the fall of 1918 I was a casual in the No. 22 Hospital at Bordeaux, France. I was given an order to go from one section of the hospital to Ward No. 36 for ten days for complete rest, and, starting from this part of the hospital about 7:30 p. m., I was shifted to three different wards before 10:30 p. m., finally arriving at a place where I thought I could rest for one night. I was unable to find the ward master, but his assistant assigned me to a bed. After sleeping what I thought was about one hour, but which was really six, I was awakened in the "Army style" and ordered out to unload convoys of wounded soldiers. Of course, there was the usual Army language used, but I bitterly refused to budge from my bunk, not telling the ward master that I had an order from the major for ten days' rest, and he threatened me with everything from a licking at his hands to the firing squad for not obeying his orders. I deliberately offered to fight him, and he, being too much of a gentleman soldier, refused. Then I thought of presenting my order for rest, and received quite a bawling out for not presenting it at the beginning of the fracas. The next morning I was informed by the assistant that this man I had offered to fight was the champion pugilist of the United States Marines. The enemies' heavy shells never caused the queer feeling in my spine as the thoughts of this near-combat with Mr. Tunney.

Bargain for Death

Private Blooey—that's not his real name—had shown he was unfit as a combat soldier on a previous occasion. At that time he was on night duty at an advanced listening post, where the myriads of night noises, real and fancied, had so terrified him that when his sergeant approached in the night Blooey threw a hand grenade at him wildly and plunged down the path and into a dugout, nearly breaking his nose in a wild dive.

Now on the second morning of the Argonne drive most of our division, including infantry, mules and some auxiliary was drawn up at the apex of a deep wedge facing a rolling terrain offering good vision and concealment to the enemy for a long distance, ready for the day's push. The fog was dense and we were to wait for artillery support.

The jump-off hour came and no artillery fire. Orders were rushed up to wait for artillery help. About the same time the fog lifted. There we were like a boil on one's nose with no place to go. Things began to pop. Huns could see us from three points of the compass, and our machine gun mule train was the most prominent target. The steel shower was on us. Fearing a counter attack, orders to unlimber guns and ammunition and seek advanced positions were given and executed in the flash of an eye. Mules, carts and men were being blown to bits.

Our progress forward was a series of belly-busters with small shells following us as thick as mosquities in Arkansas. Blooey suddenly dropped his ammunition and started to retreat.

"Stop! you——, or I'll shoot you," shouted the lieutenant.

"Shoot me if you've got to," wailed Blooey, "I'd rather be shot than blown to pieces," and he kept going.

I was told Blooey spent the rest of his army career digging graves.

Gun Only Wooden

Early in 1918 I was sent to Ellis Island to wait to be sent on board some ship. About 1 o'clock in the morning we were ordered to pack up and get ready to board the U. S. S. Tanamo, a freighter taken over by the Navy. About 2:30 we went on board, and while passing over the gangway, I happened to look aft and noticed a 5-inch gun on the poop deck.

I remarked to the fellow behind me that we had a fighting chance with that gun setting up there. Next day we left with a convoy and about four days out, something happened to one of the boilers and we were left behind. Not being able to repair the boilers we started for Halifax, the closest port.

Nearing Halifax, we received word that submarines were shelling several fishing smacks nearby, and I wondered why we were never called to man the gun or stand by. After arriving in port I went to the poop deck to take a look at the gun and you can imagine how surprised I was when it turned out to be only a wooden one.

After being towed to New York I sure made it my business to get off that ship. JAMES V. CHERICO.

ROSEMONT CITIZENS BATTLE FARE RAISE

Mass Meeting Planned of All Persons Who Live Near Alexandria.

COMMITTEE IS CHOSEN

A meeting was held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilliam, 10 West Linden street, Rosemont, of about 25 citizens of Rosemont and vicinity to protest the action of the owner of the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Bus Line and the Washington-Alexandria Electric Railway in petitioning the State Corporation Commission for permission to increase the rates between Washington, Alexandria and intermediate points. It was stated such an increase would work a hardship on so many of the residents of the outlying districts, as well as Alexandrians.

The petition will be heard on April 8 in Richmond, and the citizens of Alexandria and the affected country will have to take definite action immediately to combat an increase. Merchants will be affected in that those living outside the city, who are required to pay a 10-cent fare into the city, will pay a 15-cent fare to go to Washington.

This meeting resulted in the appointment of a committee consisting of Harry F. Kennedy, chairman; D. C. Book, C. Aubrey Callahan, Frank T. Quinn and Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, to arrange at once for a mass meeting of the citizens of Alexandria and all affected places on the line of the road. A meeting of this committee will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at 107 North Fairfax street and arrange for a public mass meeting tomorrow night in either the Elks Auditorium or Armory Hall to hear expressions of opinion and take steps to secure counsel to represent the people of Alexandria at the hearing of the State Corporation Commission.

The members of this committee then attended the meeting of the Alexandria Citizens Association in the town hall of Potomac and asked the coopeartion of that body. President John Barton Phillips stated a resolution had been adopted protesting the proposed fare increase and a committee would be appointed if necessary to bring the attention of the State Corporation Commission to the matter.

The Potomac Yards Employes Association, it is understood, held a meeting last night and drafted a resolution of protest to be filed with the State body.

The city council and Chamber of Commerce will be requested to indorse this meeting.

Few Peach Blooms Lost In Amherst County Cold

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., March 24.—Although the temperature dropped to 22 Sunday morning orchardists in Amherst County today said the peach bloom is not seriously impaired by the freezing temperature. They said they will be unable to determine approximately the percentage of bloom destroyed for several days.

The absence of moisture during the freeze and the fact that the bloom has seen no warm weather were the conditions which prevented extermination of prospects for a crop.

INCENDIARISM LAID TO ANNAPOLIS MAN

Painter Held on Arson Charges After Mysterious Fires Are Investigated.

PRISONER DENIES GUILT

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 24.—With the arrest here today of Frank Green, 35-year-old painter and paperhanger of Annapolis, local authorities believe they have caught the man who is responsible for a series of fires that have mystified this entire section during the last month. .. ..

Green was arrested by Detective Joseph Dougherty, of Baltimore, who was commissioned to investigate the case by the commissioners of Anne Arundel County. Detective Dougherty would not reveal just how he apprehended Green, but declared that he had sufficient evidence to convict the man.

Arraingned before Police Magistrate John W. Anderson, of Annapolis, Green was given bail of $2,000, which was furnished by John M. Taylor, of Annapolis. Green has employed as his attorney a cousin, former States Attorney Nicholas H. Green, of Anne Arundel County. Green will be given a preliminary hearing at an early date and in the event that he waives this preliminary will face a grand jury investigation.

The fires of which Green is accused of being the originator include the Annapolis High School and Grammar School, the Salem Methodist Episcopal Church, South, several homes at Arundel on the Bay and an overseer's shack at South River Shore. The majority of these fires were started in surrounding brush. The school fires originated in the buildings themselves. The Annapolis fire marshal announced that the blazes were probably caused by defective flues, but the commissioners and Detective Dougherty have disagreed with this opinion because of the suspicious character of the fires. Nearly twenty blazes have alarmed the Annapolis district within recent weeks and at periods two fires broke out in a single day.

Green refused to make any statement beyond telling Police Magistrate Anderson that he had nothing to do with the church fire.

Man's Foot Hurt in Taxicab.

Meade, colored, 42 years old, of 1715 Eleventh street northwest, when he was struck by a hit-and-run taxicab late yesterday afternoon on Fourteenth street between E and F streets northwest. The man was treated at Emergency Hospital and dismissed.

The celebrated Palmolive treatment

Massage a fine lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water tenderly into the skin for about two minutes. You can actually feel this lather routing out the impurities in your pores—those hidden accumulations that so often are the cause of blackheads and pimples. Rinse with both warm and cold water, gradually letting it cool till it is almost icy. This astringent treatment will close the pores and keep your skin safe from dirt and germs. That is the treatment advised by more than 19,800 world-famous beauty experts today—experts whose business it is to know what is best, experts who have studied for years the best methods of protecting facial beauty. They find Palmolive best because it is a fine vegetable oil soap, untouched by artificial coloring methods, with a delicate odor that makes the addition of heavy perfumes unnecessary.

Try Palmolive tomorrow. Use it for the bath as well as the face. It costs no more than ordinary soap, you know, and the results will delight you.

THE TARIFF BILL.

Seven Democrats helped to pass the tariff bill through the Senate. Five insurgent Republicans voted against the bill. No regular Republican voted against it. Eight insurgents voted for it.

So the record stands. It is a Republican measure. The Democratic party stands substantially opposed to it, and the insurgents dissipate themselves by both favoring and opposing it.

The struggle in conference will now begin. In the end the Senate will be beaten on the debenture rider. Senator Borah breathes threatenings and slaughter—and then votes for the bill. He will go down to the grave with the debenture, and rise in a glorious resurrection on some other issue. With all his faults, he is a Republican just before the flag falls.

Senator Norris, when he decides to betray a party, does not believe in halfway measures. He voted against the bill. It was modified in the last days so that industry would not be crucified. That made it "unspeakable" and "criminal" to the Nebraskan. But even if it had not been improved, he would have voted against it—is it not Republican? Senator Borah may shrink at the last moment from the opprobrium that attaches to a party deserter, but Senator Norris would be unhappy if anybody should ever accuse him of being regular. "I would rather be right than be regular," says Mr. Norris, as he thinks of the saying of that other wise man, he of Greece—"The majority are the worse."

So Senator Norris votes against tariff relief for the farmer, although Senator Capper, that chip of the old farm bloc, asserts that the farmer will obtain from this bill all the relief that a tariff revision could bring. To be right and to be alone seem to mean the same thing to the Nebraskan. The majority who voted for Hoover in Nebraska were "all wet," says Norris, who dryly voted for Al Smith. "If I disagree with everybody I am bound to be right," says Norris to himself. "If I should agree with somebody I might be regular."

The Republicans of the House are not bedeviled by treacherous insurgents. They will force the tariff bill through the conference in spite of the debenture obstructionists of the Senate. There will be a fair and honest tariff bill, after all. The insurgents would fight the conference report on principle, if they had any principle.

The Republican party can go forward with confidence to the next campaign. It has made a tariff bill that faithfully preserves the principle of protection to American industry, agriculture and labor. The Democratic party has forfeited its right to demand control of Congress because of its repudiation of the pledge of the Houston platform.

THE ZEPPELIN TERMINAL.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the transatlantic dirigible Graf Zeppelin, has come to the United States to receive a National Geographic Society medal, to complete arrangements for a transatlantic flight of the Graf two months hence, and to search for a suitable location for a permanent dirigible base. The forthcoming flight, he says, will be the last the Graf will make to the United States until she has her own American landing facilities. Dr. Eckener is of the opinion that transatlantic Zeppelin service will be established within two years on a commercial basis. Although in the opinion of many it would seem that a longer time than two years must elapse before the Zeppelin is developed to a point of commercial practicability, the avidity with which the search for a field is being prosecuted evidences the faith of Dr. Eckener and his colleagues in the project.

The field will not be located in the vicinity of New York. Cross winds for the Great Lakes region make landings difficult in the Greater New York area, and the Zeppelin people are anxious to locate the American terminal in a region where favorable meteorological conditions prevail. Richmond and Baltimore meet with the approval of Dr. Eckener and his associates. These cities are reasonably free from fogs and meteorological disturbances and the prevailing winds come from the right quarter. So far as is known, the availability and suitability of the District of Columbia for the Zeppelin port has not been considered.

From the meteorological standpoint, Washington, Richmond and Baltimore are not dissimilar. As the American terminal of a transatlantic Zeppelin line Washington would seem to offer many advantages over any other American city. Since a terminal such as Dr. Eckener has in mind would be in effect an important seaport, the advantages of which are generally recognized, local civic and commercial organizations would do well to point out to Dr. Eckener the reasons why he should place the terminal near Washington.

ANDREW W. MELLON.

How good and how pleasant it is to find a man of common sense! Andrew W. Mellon, who celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary yesterday, is reaping a harvest of congratulations from his countrymen. It is they who are to be congratulated. For nine years they have had the benefit of Mr. Mellon's services, given faithfully whether praise or detraction fell to his lot, and the value of these services is beyond calculation. No doubt Mr. Mellon prefers praise to abuse, but he has not sought public applause by resorting to publicity stunts or spectacular devices.

President Taft was once comforted by the writer, who said: "Well, Mr. President, you have won public praise in this matter, anyhow." He replied: "I find that if a President is praised after performing his duty it is just so much velvet." Secretary Mellon is enjoying a little velvet just now, but it will not turn his head.

Mr. Mellon found a debt of about $26,000,000,000 hanging over the Treasury when he took hold. He has managed to cut this down to less than $19,000,000,000, besides reducing taxes and finding means for expanding necessary Government activities. These achievements are amazing enough to bring fame to a dozen men, but Mr. Mellon's matter-of-fact methods, his application of what seems to him to be mere "common sense," and his inability to advertise himself have tended to obscure the brilliance of the record. The masterly handling of the finances of the richest nation in the world is all in the day's work to him.

The Secretary of the Treasury is in excellent health, thanks also to his common sense. His 75 years rest lightly upon him. The thanks as well as the congratulations of the country are due to him, and the longer he serves the better the country will be pleased.

BUSINESS PROSPECTS.

President Hoover chose Julius Barnes to head the national business survey conference not only because he is an experienced business man, but also because, as chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Mr. Barnes is in a position to obtain the most reliable information from all sections of the country. Mr. Barnes' recent report is doubly significant for its comprehensiveness. Detailed statements were obtained from virtually every important business and industrial classification and, although the report brings to light a few weak spots, generally speaking it indicates that the corner toward prosperity has been turned. The general tone of business in the United States is upward, says Mr. Barnes, and the psychological scare that followed the stock market collapse has been gradually overcome.

The conference has found that the money and credit situation is reassuring; that, period for period, life insurance companies have increased their business for 1930; that mortgages are down as compared with last year, and that construction generally is up to that of the comparable period of a year ago. Railroad pay rolls in February, 1930, were higher than in February, 1929, although freight loadings since the first of the year have been running slightly behind. Iron and steel production is off somewhat, machinery manufacture is subnormal, and textiles are off, but most lines report increased pay rolls for February with improved prospects. A feature of the report is that the automobile industry, which was believed to have been most severely hit by the collapse, reported increased pay rolls in January as compared with December, and increased pay rolls for February as compared with January. A production of 4,500,000 cars is in prospect for the year.

"We have passed through a sufficient portion of the year 1930," says the report, "to indicate definitely trends and tendencies and to make possible some formulation of reasonable expectations. Current conditions would seem to govern the course of economic events in the ensuing months." The report should serve to dissipate pessimism as to the future.

THE BLACK CANYON PROJECT.

Secretary Wilbur has made a new allocation of the power to be developed at the Black Canyon Dam. His previous tentative allocation raised such a storm of protest that public hearings were held and the figures revised. The plan of dividing the power equally between public and private agencies is now amended to allow 36 per cent to the metropolitan water district of southern California, 19 per cent to Los Angeles and neighboring cities, 18 per cent each to Nevada and Arizona, and 9 per cent to the private power companies in southern California.

This allocation eliminates some of the outstanding objections, but it will fall far short of appeasing all the public and private interests concerned. The law specifically provides that preference shall be given to the States in the distribution of power, and that Nevada, California and Arizona shall have equal opportunity as applicants. Nevada demands at least one-third of the power, and is entitled to it by law.

In spite of Secretary Wilbur's heroic efforts to iron out the rough places in this governmental experiment, the whole project is moving in the direction of hopeless chaos. Two conferences have recently been held, one at Reno and the other at Phoenix, in an effort to adjust the differences among the States. Both adjourned without taking any action. California, Arizona and Nevada were unable to agree upon division of the water in the lower basin of the Colorado. They have disagreed through many conferences and the deadlock still holds. The delegates did not even touch upon such matters as allocation of power, and the selling prices of water and power.

The States in the upper Colorado Basin are more concerned over cheap competitive power in California than over water. In spite of their protests against Secretary Wilbur's proposed rate of 1.63 mills per kilowatt-hour, that rate is still carried in the contracts now being drawn. Nevada has offered to take all the power to be generated at 1.75 mills, and Colorado, New Mexico and Utah are adamant in their demands for the sale of power on a competitive basis. Their industries are at stake. Power in southern California at less than a competitive rate would drain the intermountain States of industries dependent upon cheap power and erect a barrier against future development.

Delegates of these four States have directed a memorandum to Congress, asserting that there is "nothing anywhere in the bill that permits the Secretary to give a great annual bonus to the power corporations or the municipalities of California." They ask that stored water be sold for $1 per acre-foot, instead of 25 cents as proposed by the Interior Department, and insist that Secretary Wilbur has insufficient data on which to arrive at a fair price for either water or power. Indications are that these States will continue their opposition until a survey of all the factors involved in the sale of both water and power has been made and rates based on the result.

The end of these disputes is nowhere in sight. Congress has merely passed the controversy on to the Interior Department and the States. It may yet decide that discriminatory legislation in favor of one section of the country is out of place in Congress. The present situation gives no indication that the dam will be built.

Jamaica experiences an earth shock. Citizens of Midwestern States are experiencing Jamaica shocks.

The Senate refused to place a duty of 6 cents each on gold fish. That's looking out for the consuming public.

Since Gen. Crosby presumably has been instructed to "treat 'em rough" there is something ominous in the nomination of Dr. Reichelderfer.

Any fat lady could tell the naval conference that attempts to reduce merely make things worse.

WHEN DOES A. D. BEGIN?

From the New York Times.

From Rome our correspondent reported yesterday a violent newspaper controversy in connection with the official celebration of the two-thousandth anniversary of the birth of Virgil. The debate does not concern the date of the poet's birth, which is generally admitted to have occurred in the year 70 B. C., nor the question whether Virgil's ideas are in complete harmony with the Fascist regime, which is taken for granted. The issue is the very simple one whether a man born in 70 B. C. has his two-thousandth birthday in the year 1930 of our era, as the Rome authorities have assumed, or in the year 1931, as asserted by Prof. Pio Emanuelli, director of the Vatican Astronomical Observatory.

One does not have to be a mathematical expert to follow Prof. Emanuelli's reasoning. A person born in the year 3 B. C. would have his fifth birthday, not in the year 2 A. D., as one would say after rapidly calculating that 3 and 2 make 5. The fifth birthday would fall in the year 3 A. D., as may be figured out step by step: the first birthday in the year 2 B. C.; the second birthday in the year 1 B. C.; the third birthday in the year 1 A. D.; the fifth birthday in the year 3 A. D. By this reasoning Virgil's sixty-ninth birthday falls in the year 1 B. C., his seventieth birthday in the year 1 A. D. and his two-thousandth birthday comes 1930 years later, in 1931. His opponents' confused ideas, according to Prof. Emanuelli, arise from the vague assumption that just as the first letter of B. C. means "before" the year of the birth of Christ, the first letter of A. D. means "after" the year of that event. But the A in A. D. does not stand for "after" but for "Anno," "in the year of." There was no pause in the flow of time for a zero or neutral year between 1 B. C. and 1 A. D. The instant 1 B. C. expired the year 1 A. D. was born.

If controversy at Rome persists in the face of this conclusive demonstration, it is quite according to precedent. In this matter of years, centuries, eras, when they begin and end—and especially if round numbers like 10 or 100 are involved—some of the best minds will always find an opportunity to get hopelessly fuddled. We have recently emerged from an exhausting campaign precipitated by the need of explaining to forward-looking souls that the fourth decade of the twentieth century did not begin last January 1, inasmuch as the year 1930 is the tenth and last year of the third decade. At the turn of the century, strong men quarreled and powerful intellects reeled over the question whether the twentieth century began January 1, 1900, or January 1, 1901; the latter is the correct answer.

School children are probably not alone in wondering why the year 1492 should be the fifteenth century instead of the fourteenth. A good many years later in college some of them find they have to unlearn things when they meet Italians putting 1492 into the quattrocento and 1517 into the cinquecento —"the 1400s, the 1500s." But, for that matter, how many of us are quite sure how old we are on a certain birthday, or what is the correct birthday? There are some who feel that when a child is exactly a year old it should be called his second birthday, the first birthday being the day of his birth. From this theory of the first birthday being when a child is virtually no years old, it is quite a stretch to the sounder doctrine that a child's first birthday is the day when he begins to be two years old.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

ON DECLINING AN INVITATION TO A MASQUERADE.

Thanks, good lady, but I find
Mine is an ordinary mind
To masquerading not inclined.

But ill-at-ease should I appear
Dressed as a stirring buccaneer
Or some swash-buckling musketeer.

My legs too scrawny are to show
In velvet pants and furbelow.
I'd make a silly Pierrot.

I lack the costume flare, I think.
From the unusual garb I shrink,
And I look horrible in pink.

Some men in uniforms can strut
And play the medaled general, but
My coat must be of plainer cut.

No, no, dear lady, I confess
I lack the utter shamelessness
Of men who prance in fancy dress.

When You Concede One Miracle, Why Labor to Disprove a Lesser One?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THIS morning's mail brought a letter from two young men who asked me to answer this question: "Were the Cro-Magnon and Neanderthal men and Pithecanthropus Erectus spiritual beings endowed with souls as you believe men are?"

The only answer I can make is that I know nothing about the physical and mental equipment of these three celebrated ancients, and even less about their spiritual endowment.

The Cro-Magnon man is an imaginary creature constructed from fragments of four skeletons found in a cave. The skeletons were the frame-work of tall people with large skulls.

The Neanderthal man, also found in a cave, consisted of two thigh bones, the top of a skull, and portions of a shoulder blade, ribs and pelvis.

Pithecanthropus Erectus was found in Java. He consisted of two teeth, a thigh bone, and the upper part of a skull.

From these fragments men of science have constructed imaginary apemen—that is, neither apes nor men—who lived, we are told, many thousands of years ago.

I do not know what these men were—or whether they were men at all. I am as eager as any man could be to learn the truth concerning the origin of our race, but these fragments offer me nothing except exercise for the imagination.

That men once were primitive—that is unschooled, naked and without tools—is a conceded fact. There are such men today.

But years of patient search by scientists eager to discover the truth have failed to reveal any fragment of evidence that man ascended from a lower form of life or was ever substantially more or less than he is today.

Logic concedes that other creatures were changed by environment—that they developed the qualities necessary to survival—but it balks at the assumption that a tadpole or a monkey, though doing its utmost through a thousand million generations, ever could become as man is.

I believe man was placed on the earth much as he is now. An impossible miracle? In what particular was the creation of man more remarkable than the creation of the sun? And why would it be more difficult to create a whole man than to create a protoplasm that eventually would become man?

Man may have been—must have been—shaped and colored and ruled by climate and hardship, and doubtless some families degenerated while others improved; but in the beginning man was man and the soul that was his birthright was given to his children as pledge and proof of his kinship with his Creator.

CUSTOM CLERKS AS BOOK CENSORS.

("Senate passes tariff class allowing customs office clerks to impound foreign books considered obscene or seditious."—News Item).

Scene—A customs office. Felix and Gus, two clerks, are lying on the floor looking over books.

Felix (inspecting a British seed catalogue): This flower book puzzles me. Here's a passage about lilies. It says, "Lilies are a rich heritage. Down through the ages better lilies have come as man has gradually wrested from nature the secrets of her hidden treasures." What's that mean?

Gus: I dunno, but I'd impound it on general principles. I don't like that reference to nature's secrets.

Felix: It might be all right for you and me to read such stuff, but we've got to think of the women and children. Here's one by an Italian. It's called "Beauty Spots of Florence."

Gus: I wouldn't pass any book with a name like that. Those Italians get pretty personal when they write about women.

Felix: Here's another. It's called "Elizabeth and Essex."

Gus: That's probably about the automobile business. You can let that through all right. Did you see this? It's a novel by Manuel Komroff, called "Coronet."

Felix: I used to play a coronet once.

Gus: I guess it's just for musicians. Here's one called "The Affair at Jutland." I'll impound that without hesitating.

Felix: Sure. The minute you hear that word "affair" you know it's a sex story.

Gus: What did you do about that Powys book, "Kindness in a Corner?"

Felix: Impounded it on the title. It sounded too much like one of them necking stories.

Gus: Here's a book called "The Life of an Egoist," by a German guy. What's an egoist?

Felix: An egoist is a woman who leads a double life. It's the same as a paramour.

Gus: Here's another, "Problems of Neurosis." What's neurosis?

Felix: You don't pronounce it right. It's nerosis. Nerosis means a collection of off-color stories that have come down from the time of Nero.

Gus: I'll take it home and read it, and then impound it.

* * * *

Felix: Here's one that puzzles me. It's called "Mata Hari, Courtesan and Spy." I wonder what it's about.

Gus: Mata Hari is what a Japanese commits when he kills himself. It's the same as suicide in American.

Felix: But what's a courtesan?

Gus: A courtesan is something you make when you bow on entering a room.

Felix: The book oughta be all right, I guess.

Gus: Why take any chances? Impound anything you don't understand and let the courts decide it. They get more money than we do.

Felix: Well, whatcher say if we call it a day? We've done our duty and kept a lot of obscene literature from reaching people who can't understand it.

Gus: Okay.

(Curtain.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Mexico, by "Intelligent Procrastination," Deprives Americans of Their Property Without Hope of Recompense.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The American public should be informed of the intelligent procrastination of the Mexican government, which is depriving and will deprive Americans of their property without recourse or hope of recompense.

Your editorial, "What About Mexico?" is an exact statement of the facts. I hope you will follow it up with another entitled "What Has Morrow Accomplished in Mexico?"

Parents Should Make Rules for Themselves as Well as for Children.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Parents would find their task less trying and more fruitful of good results if they would heed the "ten don'ts" warning of Miss Catherine Watkins, supervisor of kindergartens of the public schools of the District of Columbia. Miss Watkins believes that parents should not make rules for their own comfort and convenience, put temptation in a child's way, make too many rules, or be "wobbly" or too rigid in exacting obedience. When tired and nervous, parents should refrain from punishing their children, or blaming them so much. They should not use bribes to obtain obedience, or try to force obedience by making threats.

Miss Watkins' "Ten Don'ts for Parents" is based upon her long experience with children and with problems which the care of them presents.

Charlie Holmes, the Star Sharp, Suggests "Vulcan" as Name for Newly Found Planet.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Vulcan, ancient god of fire and metal working! Some appropriate name like Vulcan should be given the ninth planet of our solar system. Astronomers have announced that such an outermost planet has been discovered. Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and —Vulcan! The newly found solar satellite is perhaps 4,000,000,000 miles distant from our sun. That is, the diameter of our solar system becomes, approximately, 8,000,000,000 miles.

This ninth planet was discovered at the Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., on January 21. The eighth planet, Neptune, was discovered during the year 1846. There are many interesting questions respecting the newly found planet—its size, density, orbital velocity, number of satellites, and so on. At present this distant planet is nameless. Will it receive the name Vulcan, the ancient god of fire and metal working?

Women Must Be Won Over Before Eighteenth Amendment Can Be Repealed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The president of the W. C. T. U. has recently stated that the eighteenth amendment will continue to be the law of the land as long as the nineteenth amendment remains a part of the Constitution. It is apparent that before the wets can succeed in repealing or modifying the eighteenth amendment they must obtain the support of the women voters.

Some one has said that the women put over prohibition while the men weren't looking. Possibly so, but it is certain that the men will never put over repeal or modification while the women aren't looking. It is noteworthy that strongest supporters of prohibition are women.

Straw votes are said to prove that the men of America are veering toward modification of the Volstead act. It is unlikely that such tests if confined to women would reflect a like trend. Accordingly it would seem that the practical strategy for the wets would be to concentrate their efforts in endeavoring to convince the mothers of the country that the present evils of prohibition are worse than those which attended the selling of liquor before the war.

Radio Fan Says Intelligence of Listeners Must Be Judged by the Programs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some time ago Secretary Wilbur appointed an advisory committee on education by radio, composed of a group of educators. After a "comprehensive" study the group now reports to the Federal Bureau of Education that it should be understood by broadcasters that the intellect of the average radio listener is that of a child only 13 years of age. This is an insult to the majority of radio listeners, as well as to those who do not listen.

Each year, in this country, thousands of high schools, academies and colleges turn out alert and keenly intelligent youths. For a long, long time, now, this grinding of the educational mill has been going on in every quarter of the land. Passing from the juvenile to the adult stage most of these Americans, either voluntarily or unconsciously, continue their studies for many years. By uniting in matrimony they pool their intellectual resources. All of them read newspapers, magazines and books. If not at home reading, exchanging views, or listening to radio programs, they are out attending some instructive movie or legitimate play, or are in other ways acquiring that useful "finish" which comes through going places and doing things. Many of them have at least one "hopeful" who before the first year is the owner, either in fact or in fancy, of a "college fund" that will grow as the child grows.

This great army of American youth, and of men and women, has been offended by Secretary Wilbur's advisory committee. Not one member of that committee could possibly have the faintest idea of the correct average-intelligence age of persons who listen to what are often noninstructive, nonconstructive, nonentertaining radio programs.

REDS HOLD MISSING CZARIST, IS CHARGE

Gen. Koutiepoff Abducted and Thrown in Moscow Jail, Paper Says.

SECRET STEAMER USED

Paris, March 24 (A.P.).—The afternoon newspaper La Liberte, which has been conducting a campaign for the breaking off of diplomatic relations between France and Russia, today published an article in which it averred that Gen. Alexander Paul Koutiepoff, Czarist leader who disappeared last January, had been kidnaped by Russian agents and was alive and in prison in Moscow six days ago.

The newspaper asserts that Koutiepoff, who was chief of the Russian Royalists throughout Europe, was forcibly carried aboard a Russian steamer off the coast of Normandy on January 26. It gives the exact spot on a map.

"We have awaited the moment when the secret service has received official confirmation of the above facts in order to make them public, the paper says.

"We can now affirm that Koutiepoff six days ago was alive in the Loubiankala jail in Moscow.

An editorial calls upon Premier Tardieu to take the necessary measures to "punish the guilty."

Abduction Hinted Before.

Many reports have circulated in France since the end of January as to the disappearance of Gen. Koutiepoff, and most of them ascribed it to abduction by Russian secret agents.

A great outcry was raised in the press in February, and the government began a quiet investigation into the activities of the Gaypayou, the Russian secret police. Public anger and Royalist threats of vengeance rose to such a pitch that Ambassador Dovgalevsky officially informed Foreign Minister Briand that the Czarists had organized a force to raid the Russian embassy. A strong force of French police was posted on guard outside the embassy early in February.

The general's followers insisted he had been kidnaped because Russian agents had learned of a project for the invasion of Russia by white Russians under his command.

Russians Charged Plot.

The Russian Embassy has denied that he was kidnaped, asserting that his disappearance was a plot to cast discredit upon Russia.

Witnesses have stated they saw a man resembling the general struggling in an automobile with two men on each side at the hour the kidnapping is supposed to have taken place. He disappeared while walking to the Russian Officers' Club.

One report of his fate said that he had been carried away in the automobile to a foreign country, said to be Belgium, and other that he had been taken aboard a mysterious Russian ship off the coast of Normandy.

The general was the successor of the Grand Duke Nicholas as leader of the Royalists.

Ambassador Edge Meets Former Premier Herriot

Lyons, France, March 24 (A.P.).—Former Premier Herriot greeted Ambassador Walter E. Edge at an informal luncheon here today, expressing satisfaction that "the new American ambassador has taken the view that all of France is not contained in Paris and is getting useful information regarding the rest of the country, which will help in promoting better relations between France and the United States."

Mr. Edge thanked M. Herriot, who has been mayor of Lyons for 20 years, and explained the mission of his visit to French industrial areas. He said he hoped to get valuable data.

Two Officials of Union Shot While in Court

Cleveland, March 24 (A.P.).—Two officials of the Ladies Garment Workers Union were shot and slightly wounded here today in the courtroom of Common Pleas Judge Fred H. Wolf. They were Charles Kreindler, secretary of the union's joint board here, and Louis Friend, chairman of the board.

Joseph Bloomfield, brother of Sol Bloomfield, a clothing manufacturer, who had been instrumental in bringing contempt of court proceedings against 22 pickets of the union, was held after the shooting by police.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

WHEN Mr. Hoover, writing several months ago to a friend, spoke of the difficulty which the truth had in finding the light of day, he unwittingly touched upon a complaint of every Washington newspaperman—at least, most of them. Which is to say that the old Nation's Capital, which is all the time leading the country in something, in the observance of Washington's Birthday, or in its sorrow to a fallen king, is getting more steeped in propaganda every day.

One works laboriously at digging through the maze of conflicting ambitions, intrigue, poison and counter-poison, to get at the truth without avail. As fast as he shovels back the dirt there is another drift and he has it all to do over again.

* * * *

NOW, a few months ago, virtually every newspaperman in this town who had to do with the story at all, wrote that Mr. Claudius H. Huston was being named Republican national chairman because Mr. Hoover wanted him so named; that Mr. Huston was Mr. Hoover's personal choice.

And, too, it was the general word at the time, that Mr. Hoover not only wanted Mr. Huston because the latter was his friend, but he wanted to make a gesture to that great country below the Mason and Dixon line known affectionately as the Southland. Mr. Huston had lived in Tennessee.

For the first time in history, many stories read, the Republican party was going into the South for its national chairman. The theme song of it all was "Way Down South in the Land of Cotton."

* * * *

BUT we were all wrong. The truth appeared yesterday morning for the first time in that most conservative publication the New York Times. While not stated in so many words the inference was very plain that Mr. Huston was not Mr. Hoover's "personal" choice, that he was not a great big gift to the "Ole" South. He was sold to Mr. Hoover by Senators Watson and Moses and other Republican leaders, but particularly those two.

Of course, it would not seem very important to the lay mind as to who was "responsible" for Mr. Huston's appointment, the fact remains that he was appointed, but this is because the lay mind does not grasp those fine workings of the mechanics of politics. Ah, but they are very intricate and very involved.

* * * *

BUT there would seem to be no reason in bringing the matter up at all if it did not serve to illustrate our previously expressed point—that Senator Watson is a party soldier if there ever was one.

It is the senator who is putting out this story now that it was he and other leaders who sold Mr. Huston to the President. He will tell you in a most convincing way that he proposed Mr. Huston because he was from Indiana, the senator's native State. You see, Mr. Huston is from many States.

And if you don't think the senator is dong some good with the story just read the New York Times.

Town Curfew Hits Adults But Youths Can Play Late

Willacoochee, Ga., Population 1,211, Decrees Adult Night Owls Must Give Marshal Good Reason for Late Hours.

Willacoochee, Ga., March 24 (A.P.).—City Council has decreed that young people may return to their homes after midnight, but grown men must furnish the city marshal a satisfactory reason if caught on Willacoochee's streets during early morning hours.

Also, the ordinance makes it unlawful for any person to be loafing or loitering about the city's streets without giving a good reason to the marshal. No person shall enter any house or residence after 12 o'clock midnight "other than their most notorious place of abode" without giving the marshal a good explanation.

Although allowing girls and young men who left earlier in the evening to return home after midnight, the ordinance says it is unlawful for "any person to go out riding after midnight and until daylight, or for any male person to carry or go driving with any woman or girl between these hours, unless the party or parties can give a good and sufficient reason * * * to the marshal on duty. This

Persons found guilty of violating the new ordinances are subject to a fine of $100, or 30 days' labor on the city streets, or both, according to the mayor's discretion.

Willacoochee has a population of 1,211 persons.

REPORT IS APPROVED FOR DEFICIENCY BILL

Measure Giving $2,200,000 for District Needs Gets Senate Sanction.

CHANGE ATTEMPTS FAIL

Congressional action on the first deficiency appropriation bill was completed yesterday when the Senate receded from its insistence on three amendments and approved the report of its conferees.

The bill, designed to provide for urgent needs of the Government, carries approximately $170,000,000, of which $2,200,000 is to be spent in the District.

The amendments on which the Senate receded were those which increased the appropriations for the Boston and Denver postoffices, and allowed $3,000,000 for Porto Rico hurricane relief.

Outstanding appropriations in the bill are $100,000,000 for the Federal Farm Board and $6,000,000 for free seed and fertilizer.

Among the items of local interest in the bill are these:

For the new Supreme Court Building, $500,000; for a warehouse for the Federal Government here, $440,000; for continuing work on the Arlington Memorial Bridge, $200,000.

For the purchase of a site for the Jefferson Junior High School, $100,000; for school facilities for crippled children, $13,000; for a laundry at the District workhouse, $65,000; for a gate at the Zoological Park, $2,000; for street cleaning, $26,000; for the expenses of local students at the Columbia Institution for the Deaf, $1,750.

For the expenses of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, $20,500; for the Smithsonian Institution, $21,000; for the Office of Public Buildings and Grounds, $145,000.

The bill also carries $60,000 for the back pay of the laborers and charwomen employed in the Senate Office Building. The appropriation for these workers ran out two weeks ago, and their pay has since been piling up.

Charleston Trip Is Set By Huguenot Society

Members of the Washington Huguenot Society will visit Charleston, S. C., in April to join Huguenots of that historic city in celebrating the landing of their forebears at Beaufort, S. C., in 1680, Samuel Herrick, president of the local society, announced yesterday.

The program of entertainment arranged by the Charleston society includes boat trips to Forts Moultrie and Sumter, in Charleston Harbor, and pageants depicting the founding of the city 250 years ago. Teas, receptions and banquets have also been planned.

Belgian Monarchs Defy Egypt Curse

Ruler and Queen Visit Tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen in Valley of Kings.

Luxor, Egypt, March 24 (A.P.).—The King and Queen of the Belgians today defied the reputed curse of the Pharaohs.

With Howard Carter, excavator of the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, King Albert and Queen Elisabeth visited the tomb in the Valley of the Kings and neither indicated any bad luck was expected. Thereafter the king walked nearly 2 miles from his yacht into Karnak. He will go to Cairo Wednesday.

The superstition was recalled last month in the suicide of Lord Westbury, an elderly British peer, whose son had been connected with the Tut-Ankh-Amen excavation and himself had died the year before. As Lord Westbury's funeral was in progress, the hearse struck and killed a small boy, thus causing a renewal of the speculation. At about the same time one of the employes of the Egyptian section of the British Museum died, and that was added to the list.

$700 Church Collection Stolen by Two Bandits

New Orleans, March 24 (A.P.).—Two bandits wearing white hoods today stole the $700 Sunday collection of the Mater Dolorosa Catholic Church by holding up two bank messengers outside the parsonage of the Rev. Francis Prim.

When the messengers reached the sidewalk carrying the money in two bags, the bandits drove up in an automobile and ordered them to drop the bags. As they fell to the sidewalk, one of the robbers grabbed them, leaped into the automobile and sped away.

TARIFF AGREEMENT REACHED AT GENEVA

Two-Fold Scheme Adopted Falls Somewhat Short of Original Objective.

STUDY WILL CONTINUE

Geneva, March 24 (A.P.).—The diplomatic conference called by the League of Nations to consider proposals for an international tariff truce adjourned tonight after adopting a two-fold scheme that falls considerably short of the original objective.

One part of the scheme agreed upon was a convention embodying engagements to undertake a limited program of economic cooperation for the consolidation of customs duties. Representatives of countries signed this tonight.

The second part was a protocol providing for further negotiations among the countries, including a preparatory study of the economic needs of each State and the interrelation of these needs. The delegates of fifteen States signed this.

The tariff consolidation scheme contained many details, but in substance amounted to this:

The signatories agreed, not to abrogate existing commercial agreements between parties to this convention before April 1, 1931. The convention will be open for ratification of signatures until next November 1. If not denounced by any contracting party before that date, the convention will go into force until the succeeding April. Then if there be no denunciations, it will be in force for another six months.

For five weeks the conference has worked toward some kind of cooperative economic agreement.

Adm. Moffett Founds U. S. 'Air Dynasty'

Three Sons Following Aviation Pursuits With Success.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE distinction of founding the country's first "air dynasty" apparently should go to Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, U. S. N., chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, who is now in London with the American delegation to the naval arms conference.

After a visit here with Mrs. Moffett, Admiral Moffett's eldest son, Ensign George Hall Moffett, U. S. N., left Washington yesterday for Pensacola, Fla., to take a course at the Navy Flying School. Midshipman William A. Moffett, jr., expects to go into the Navy Air Service on his graduation from the Naval Academy in June. He was one of the first youngsters to fly in this country, having taken to the air at the age of 9. And the admiral's youngest son, Charles, who is but 13, has already many hours of flying to his credit. Even the Moffett dog, Aviatrix, is "air minded" and frequently makes flights with young Charlie Moffett from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia.

Moreover, Mrs. E. Macfarlan Moore, who was Miss Janet Moffett and who took her first lessons in flying in her debutante days, spends as many hours a week in the air as do most licensed pilots. She married into the Navy, but shortly afterward Lieut. Moore resigned from the service and he is at present associated with an aircraft company which has headquarters at Biloxi, Miss. With her two children, Janet and William, Mrs. Macfarlan expects to leave Biloxi shortly for Chicago and after a visit there will come to Washington to spend Easter with her mother. She expects to remain in this part of the world until after Bill Moffett graduates from the Naval Academy.

Ensign Phillips Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Phillips Hill and nephew of Mrs. George Barnett, is another Washington lad—to go back a bit—who is making a name for himself in the Navy Air Service. He has recently completed the flying course at Pensacola and is now with the fleet off Guantanamo for maneuvres. Although not in the service, Mrs. Barnett's son, Mr. Basil Gordon, who spent the week-end in Washington with his mother, is an aviation enthusiast. He has some sort of an aviation business, with headquarters in Baltimore, and flies his own plane for pleasure.

Mr. Benjamin R. Holcombe, who was a Navy flier until shortly after he married Margaret Fahnestock Stokes, became associated with an aircraft company after he resigned from the service. And Mrs. Holcombe, who is at present living in New York, is taking a course in aviation preparatory to obtaining her pilot's license. She recently flew from New York to Washington to attend a musicale given here by her mother, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock.

Mrs. Walter F. Brown, wife of the Postmaster General, will go this week to Atlantic City. She will return to the Wardman Park Hotel after a short visit there with her mother, Mrs. George Hafer, who has recently come north from Orlando, Fla.

The Minister of Albania, Mr. Faik Konitza, entertained at dinner last evening in compliment to Mr. Herman Bernstein, newly appointed United States Minister to Albania, who will sail early next month for his new post. Mr. Konitza will attend a testimonial dinner to be given for Mr. Bernstein in New York on March 31.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and her daughter, Paulina, will return to Washington today after passing the week end at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Atlantic City.

The Secretary of the German Embassy and Frau Lohmann, who have been on a short vacation in Florida, will return to Washington on Monday.

Mrs. James F. Curtis Opens Country Home.

Mrs. James F. Curtis, who has been in Aiken, S. C., for several weeks, spent the week-end in Washington, but has gone to Roslyn, Long Island, to open her country home there. She will have her children at Roslyn with her for their spring holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Riley, who have been at Wardman Park Hotel for the winter months, have returned to their home in Indiana. Miss Janet Riley will leave shortly to spend several weeks in North Carolina.

Kinfolk Hold Birthday Fete For Mrs. Gann

Vice President Is Host at Party in His Apartment.

An informal dinner last night in the apartment of Vice President Curtis celebrated the birthday of his sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann. Mrs. Webster Knight 2d, daughter of the Vice President, and her boys, Curtis and Thompson Knight, who are making a holiday visit to Vice President Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Gann, were in the little party, as were Mrs. Gerry, of Providence, R. I., and her two children, also members of the Vice President's house party and the Vice President.

In view of the fact that Mrs. Gann's birthday falls on the same day as Secretary Mellon's, celebrated last evening with a dinner given in Pittsburgh by a group of his old friends, it is interesting to remember that Vice President Curtis celebrated his birthday, January 25, by attending a dinner given in his honor by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Col. and Mrs. William M. Colvin, who have just arrived from Panama, are at the Carlton for a few days before sailing for Europe Friday on the Ile de France.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: Have you taken time to study the materials which are new this spring? And have you noticed the manner in which materials are being used? Colors are alike more often than fabrics. Sometimes you see an ensemble including a frock in one weave and its accompanying coat in another, but the color the same. In sports clothes you find many lovely jersies in both plain and fancy ideas, and tweeds in such a variety of interpretations that you simply can not say when it's tweed and when it isn't. Silks are printed in tweed designs, too.

The Exhibit of Children's Pictures

—in the window at Underwood & Underwood's is especially lovely this week. You will be impressed with the clear beauty of these photographs. They are characteristic of portraits made by the wonderful double camera which this famous studio uses.

It occurred to me as I looked at them, that any mother who intended to enter her child's picture in the National Photographic Contest, now in effect, would have a chance to win if she had the picture made at Underwood's with this marvelous camera. You probably know about the contest I refer to. The National Photographers have offered prizes for the best picture of the loveliest mother, and other prizes for the most beautiful child. Naturally, Underwood & Underwood have made many portraits to be entered in the contest and it is easy to suppose that their pictures will take prizes.

That Feeling Of Between-Season

—which you all have in the declining days of March, gives you that vague dissatisfaction with everything, your environment, your clothes and principally your looks. You wish for new places, new adventures, for dashing new frocks, a fetching figure and a captivating countenance.

Your wishes may all come true, if you will visit the beautiful new salon of Elizabeth Arden, 1147 Connecticut avenue. On your first visit you will be personally interviewed, if you choose, by one of Elizabeth Arden's trained assistants.

She will tell you exactly what you need, and within a few weeks you will see the difference in your appearance as well as your morale.

Significant Style Points

—Many shades of green are in high favor.

—Printed nets have flounces and short puffed sleeves.

—Necklaces are fashioned of a dozen strands of small beads slipped through intermittent clusters of larger beads.

—Navy blue cloth with close pin dots is a favored material.

—One of the newest hats has its brim lifted up on the crown giving a more back-on-the-head look than ever.

—Both flat and fluffy furs are used on the spring ensembles.

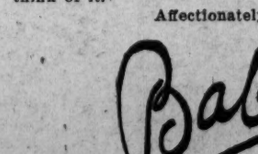
Pasternak Adapts Moderate Prices

to the peculiar needs of the present season. This year nearly every one is happy to have the opportunity to add to their wardrobes, wonderfully styled, perfectly selected models at a price less than they have nonchalantly paid in other years. You know what I mean.

Until you have seen them for yourself, you can not imagine the charm of the gowns shown in the new Pasternak collection for prices as low as $29.50, $35 and $42. Really I have found numbers of adorable little frocks for much less that that, there, if you can believe it. Pasternak, 1219 Connecticut avenue.

Give A Party At The Hob-Nob

—some afternoon soon. The tea-rooms adapt themselves especially well to bridge luncheons or teas. As you know the rooms are consistently modernistic in daring color schemes, quite unlike any other tea-room in town.



The tea-room is open continuously from 11:30 to 8 in the evening, and the tea and fountain service are especially pleasant. The Hob-Nob is at 1010 F street right across from Woodward & Lothrop's, well located for the convenience of shoppers. The Cafeteria is open from 11 to 2:30 and from 4 to 7:30.

Pre-Holiday Sale For Juniors

—is taking place at Schwartz, 1325 Connecticut avenue. This is in honor of the Easter holiday and spring vacation. Frocks and suits which were $22.50 or $19.75 may now be purchased for $16.50. These begin at age 11. You have rarely seen more attractive models at such a price. LITTLE subdeb prepares for spring in navy blue wool twill coat.

Freedom for active sports and romps necessitates the wearing of a coat that is quite roomy, with comfortable raglan sleeves, as model sketched.

Another interesting feature of the raglan sleeve is that it is easily slipped into.

The neckline is interesting and comfy, with collar rolled with fronts into revers. It may also be worn buttoned close at neck for cold days.

The pointed pockets are decorative.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

IT IS getting more and more complicated every day.

I mean this wrangle that is apparently about to tie the Fox enterprises into more kinds of knots than there are bones in a shad. Hot on the heels of the report that five of the Fox "cabinet" officers had broken with their boss in the matter of refinancing, comes the anduncement that Winfield R. Sheehan, one of the quintet, who has long served as vice president and general manager of the Fox Film Co., has filed suit to restrain his chief from putting the Bancamerica-Blair plan into effect.

It seems that Mr. Sheehan and his four executive associates were in favor of continuing the Otterson-Stuart-Fox trusteeship, as an economical measure safeguarding the interests of the stockholders in the concerns involved. To this Mr. Fox turned an ear that was deaf as a post.

After outlining his contention that the Halsey-Stuart finance plan, proposed March 5, would put $9,000,000 more cash into the film enterprise than the Bancamerica-Blair plan, and "indicated a saving to the company of from $13,000,000 to $31,000,000," Mr. Sheehan concludes:

"Mr. Fox should have been the first to welcome an opportunity to carry out such a plan. Instead, he has conducted himself as if these enterprises were his own private affair, to be regulated by his own whims, personal desires and caprices, disregarding the many thousands of stockholders and employes whose livelihood depends upon the proper continuance of these enterprises."

All this is really very helpful to a columnist with the spring fever.

It seems to me that the "Broadcasting Station S-T-A-R" idea is considerably the superior of the articulated "Screen Snapshots," judging, of course, by the few of each I have seen, as a means of introducing a quick succession of film notables in brief specialties. The excuse for their cavortings is ready made in the case of the radio station. Deprived of this initial impulse, the snapshots just don't click.

At least they didn't at the Columbia Sunday when Johnny Arthur endeavored to put over Hobart Bosworth and family, Raymond Hatton, Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire and Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford through the medium of as feeble a line of so-called comedy as I have ever encountered.

Ten minutes of it didn't seem a second over a day and a half!

Helen Kane and her accompanist, Joe Keden, appearing on the Earle stage this week, were guests of honor at an early morning levee tossed at the home of Milton Davis, ace organist, Saturday night. There were, I am informed, a dozen guests at the impromptu rout and thirteen of them have already called me up to say what an uttesly fascinating boop-boop-a-dooper Miss Kane really is.

As if I'd give them an argument!

There seems to be a vagrant and wholly erroneous impression abroad that Lenore Ulric, coming to the Fox screen next week as star of "South Sea Rose," is just now making her debut before the cameras. Before the microphones, yes, but not before the cameras.

Those whose memories go back a decade or so to an earlier day in the cinema will recall Miss Ulric as one of the foremost of the screen's luminaries. Uh-huh, back in the days when she was bubbling over with the exotic charm that made Richard Walton Tully's production of "The Bird of Paradise" a five-season hit. Mme. Glyn had not yet thought of the word "it" when Lenore Ulric owned all of it there was on view in the theater.

The most interesting and spectacular pictures of the U. S. Navy going through its daily dozen that have come to these feeble old eyes since Wells Hawks made me personal booking agent for his production of "The U. S. Navy in Action," during the war, are on view at the Earle this week as an important part of the newsreel. An unusual amount of footage has been devoted to a subject that is customarily accorded only a brief flash, and the result more than justifies the expenditure of time, money, celluloid and probably seasickness. A battleship with a bone in its teeth is no aenemic spectacle, as these splendid shots eloquently testify.

When Ben Hecht wrote "Roadhouse Nights," now at the Palace, it is possible he based his tale on at least an approximation of fact. The Chicago Tribune is thinly disguised as the Times and the city editor is called Keeley. One of the most noted editors the Trib ever had was Jim Keeley, who had the courage to throw all the news off the front page and run only a list of dead there at the time of the Iroquois Theater disaster.

But about all that rum in Sam Horner's cellar, I wouldn't know.

If you had the right ticket on Sunday's big race at Agua Caliente all you have to do now is try and collect!

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

Better-than-ever
Waffles!

Waffles? They can be the very poems of the breakfast table—if they are delicate in taste. So do not profane them with a "strong"-tasting fat. Do you know the one fat really delicate enough to give the true waffle flavor? One taste of Crisco, just as it comes fresh and sweet from the can, will tell you—unmistakably!

2 cups flour — 2 eggs
3 teaspoons baking powder — 1¼ cups milk
1 tablespoon sugar — 2 tablespoons Crisco
¼ teaspoon salt

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Separate eggs and add milk to beaten egg yolks and stir into dry ingredients. Add Crisco and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour by spoonfuls on very hot Criscoed waffle iron. Serve hot with honey or maple syrup.

For Chocolate Waffles, add two tablespoons melted chocolate with the melted Crisco and follow recipe above.

This recipe has been tested and approved by cooking authorities. You will get best results by using level measurements and the ingredients specified.

Taste Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor

TASTE a shortening? Of course! You taste milk. You test eggs. Now, taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Then you'll understand why Crisco's own sweet, fresh flavor so improves the taste of your cakes, pies, hot breads, cookies and fried foods.

MACARONI PRODUCTS

HERE is the answer to the problem of planning Lenten menus. Have Mueller's Macaroni or Spaghetti as the main dish. There is an endless variety of appetizing ways to prepare these tasty foods. Many of them are described in the new Mueller Recipe Booklet, sent free on request.

Light, Yet Sustaining

Mueller's Macaroni and Spaghetti cook up remarkably light and fluffy by boiling nine minutes according to the directions on the package. This avoids the not uncommon mistake of overcooking—though, if special tenderness is wanted, one or two minutes more may be allowed.

For Children and Grown-Ups

There is no more nutritious food than Mueller's Macaroni or Spaghetti. Though light and easily digested, they contain an abundance of body-building, bone-forming, health-giving elements. They are far more tasty, too, than ordinary products. Children take to them as eagerly as they do to playtime. Adults find them a most agreeable change from meat and potatoes.

Don't be satisfied with ordinary macaroni or spaghetti. Insist on Mueller's. Your grocer has it or can get it for you.

There are hundreds of ways in which Mueller's macaroni products can be prepared, all delicious. Send for our book of recipes in which many special dishes are illustrated in color. No cost or obligation. Just write to

NEGRO PRIMARY BAN IS UPHELD BY COURT

Arkansas Tribunal Declares State Cannot Control Party Machinery.

APPEAL IS INDICATED

Little Rock, Ark., March 24 (A.P.).—Democratic party rules barring Negroes from participating in Democratic primary elections in Arkansas were held valid by the State Supreme Court today.

The opinion affirmed the decree of Pulaski Chancery Court dismissing for want of equity a suit for injunction against members of the Little Rock Democratic committee to restrain them from barring Negroes from the city primaries of 1928. J. M. Robinson and other Negro voters contended exclusion from the primaries violated the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments of the Federal Constitution.

In dismissing the appeal the Supreme Court held that as a volunteer political organization and not an agency of the State, the Democratic party was legally entitled to define qualifications for membership and promulgate party rules without violating any of the prohibitions of the fourteenth or fifteenth amendments.

"The fact that nominees of the Democratic primary in Arkansas are always elected at the general election does not alter the situation," the court held.

"Primary elections are beyond the concern of the State, save only in those instances where the State legalizes the primary by statute," the opinion read. In no instance, it is said, was the State entitled to direct the machinery of the party primary, termed by the court "entirely an instrumentality created by the party."

An appeal probably will be taken to the United States Supreme Court.

At the Age Women Dread

"Three years ago I was in bed three months with a nervous breakdown. After that I had to lie down often. I have four children, the youngest 21, and I board two little schoolgirls. I try to keep my home as a mother should but I am at the age so many women dread. Since taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel 100% stronger. I am not so nervous and my appetite is better."—Mrs. Della Hutsell, 623 East 1st Street, Casper, Wyoming.

"SPIRIT" SLAYING JURY IS SELECTED

Six Nations of Indians Ask Squaw's Case Be Carried to Federal Court.

EVIDENCE BEGINS TODAY

Buffalo, March 24 (A.P.).—The Erie County Court tonight was ready to decide the case of Lila Jimerson, depicted by the prosecution as the Indian woman who plotted with another of her race to murder Mrs. Henri Marchand, wife of a sculptor and artist.

The last juror was seated in the box at the close of today's session, ending an examination of 140 talesmen over a period of four days. Judge F. Bret Thorn was prepared to open tomorrow's session with the taking of testimony. Defense counsel predicted the case would be in the hands of the jury by the end of the week, possibly as early as Wednesday night.

The prosecutor, District Attorney Guy B. Moore, made no definite predictions, but proceeded with his task of procuring witnesses to refute the testimony from the expected ten or twelve witnesses to be placed on the stand by the defense.

Aid for the Jimerson woman appeared from a new quarter today in the form of a request from the six nations of Indians that the case be taken to Federal Court with United States District Attorney Richard H. Templeton representing Lila. The action was taken on the theory that the reservation Indians are wards of the Government. The plea was made by Chief Clinton Rickard, of the Tuscaroras.

The aged Nancy Bowen, alleged to "have made medicine" to the spirits and then to have beaten Mrs. Marchand to death in the artist's home while Lila motored with Marchand, remained out of the courtroom scene today. It was expected, however, she would be produced as the State's witness in the trial of Lila. Her own trial will be conducted by a new jury before which she will be represented by counsel assigned by the court.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them, 15c, 30c, 60c

MEMBER HITS FEES IN CONDEMNATIONS

Bay State Representative Suggests Residents of Capital Be Taxed.

EXCESSIVE PRICE HINTED

A suggestion that District taxpayers pay the difference when the Federal Government has to pay an excessive price for condemned land here was made in the House yesterday by Representative Underhill (Republican), of Massachusetts.

Representative Underhill's suggestion came in the course of a debate in which Representative Garner (Democrat), of Texas, charged that condemnation juries were "legally robbing" the Federal Government in awards on property here.

The debate was precipitated when Speaker Longworth called up a bill to increase the appropriation for the site of the addition to the House Office Building. This site is just across the street from the existing building. The Congress Hall Hotel was bought outright by the Government, but in the case of the Potomac Hotel it was necessary to resort to condemnation proceedings.

In order to acquire this property, Speaker Longworth said, the appropriation must be increased to $1,077,000, the condemnation jury having placed the value of the needed property at a figure 127 per cent higher than the assessed value.

It was at this point that Mr. Garner charged that the Federal Government was being "legally robbed."

Representative Underhill declared that in view of the criticism of Congress by Washington newspapers of its niggardly treatment of the District in appropriating only $9,000,000 a year for the city's upkeep, it would be a good idea to write into the new District appropriation bill a provision that the amount the Federal Government must pay for condemned land in excess of the assessed value be deducted from the District appropriation.

B. L. Dulaney Will Filed for Probate

No Total Value of Estate Is Given; Three $50,000 Trusts Made.

No value of the estate of Benjamin L. Dulaney, who died March 4 at La Belle, Fla., is contained in his will which was filed for probate yesterday in District Supreme Court. Three trust funds of $50,000 each are set up and a number of specific bequests are made. In addition the Benjamin L. Dulaney Corporation, of Florida, is made the residuary beneficiary.

Mrs. Elma D. Dulaney, the widow, and William Dykes Dulaney, a son, are given furniture in the home at 1699 Thirty-first street northwest, and all the furnishings in the home at La Belle, Fla. The Washington home is left in trust for Mrs. Dulaney and son and a separate trust fund of $50,000 is left the widow. Trust funds of $50,000 also are set up for a daughter, Alice R. D. Carter, and William Dykes Dulaney. The will specifies that all the remaining estate, real and personal, is to go to the corporation.

$25,000 Suit Prompted By Notice to Pay Bill

Charging that a libelous statement had been posted on a mail box in front of his dwelling, Maurice Freedman, of 1308 Buchanan street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court seeking to recover $25,000 damages from Levine, Berman & Englander, Inc., doing business as the Star Credit Clothiers, of 825 Seventh street northwest.

Freedman, through Attorneys Richard A. Harman and William R. Lichtenberg, tells the court that the posted statement was a notice that he owed the defendant $4 and intimated that unless the alleged account was settled immediately that suit would be instigated. Freedman states that he does not and never has owed the defendant any money and that the notice was designed to injure his good name, credit and reputation.

Fannie Brice, Mate Sue Film Company

Actress Asks $155,000 for Alleged Breach of Contract.

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Fannie Brice and her husband, Billy Rose,, filed suits in Supreme Court today against the Art Cinema Corporation for alleged breach of contract.

Miss Brice seeks $155,000, $125,000 for the company's alleged failure to produce a talking picture in which she was to star and $30,000 under an agreement to pay her $5,000 a week for six weeks if a picture in which she did star ran more than fourteen weeks on Broadway.

An attorney for the actress and her husband said the corporation contracted to feature Miss Brice in three talkies. They produced the first, but failed to produce the second and third, he said.

Red Cross Holds Services for Taft

John Barton Payne Talks at Memorial Rites in Capital.

Community singing by the staff and an address by Chairman John Barton Payne featured memorial services held at Red Cross headquarters here yesterday for the late William Howard Taft, for 25 years an active member and officer of the organization.

In tribute to Mr. Taft, Mr. Payne said that both friends and political enemies of the former President regarded him with deep affection. "It is delightful to have been associated with a man whose entire life can bear the most crucial test; whose whole life was open."

Scripture readings by Dr. Thomas E. Green, of the Red Cross, and the singing of Mr. Taft's favorite hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," completed the program.

Quarter of a century has gone by since the world first heard of Merry Widow waltz. Perhaps it's more than a quarter of a century. Anyway, 'twas a long, long time ago. Yet the world has not forgotten the Merry Widow waltzs; nor will it ever. There is something about the rhythm of it all that appeals.

Last night on the stage of Poli's Theater, Donald Brian, who first helped make popular Mr. Franz Lehar's operetta, came back after all these years and danced around as nimbly as ever in the role of Prince Danilo. It may be remembered that the prince was a devil among the ladies, the lad who lost his heart to the Merry Widow—played in this instance by Miss Beppie De Vries, a top notcher.

Old Poli's—which has the honor of being the largest legitimate theater in Washington, if not south of New York—was packed to the rafters by enthusiasts who welcomed the revivalists in "The Merry Widow." During the course of the season there have been several revivals on this same stage, but none to equal this—the performance par excellence.

Donald Brian seems to have quaffed of a certain cup—the one holding the elixir of youth. There were a couple of ladies present last evening who saw Mr. Brian when—and they ever he looks as young now, dances as well and has just as much appeal as he did, well, back in the Roosevelt administration.

Disregarding all the personalities—and there is a fine cast assisting Miss De Vries and Mr. Brian in this revival—"The Merry Widow," as an operetta, will be just as good 25 years from now as it is today. It has that sort of stuff in its vitals: no mere fluff.

Craig Campbell, not seen here since the days of Keith's vaudeville, plays the important role of Cicomte Joldan, and sings it rather wel. Oscar Figman, of the old school of comics, takes care of the lighter moments. Harry Lewellyn, as Mr. Nisch, is excellent.

All told, "The Merry Widow" is one of those revivals that really lives up to al lexpectations. Some of them have fallen down, here and there; but this one holds true to the faith of the theater.

The world premiere performance of the musical comedy, "Jonica," will be given at the National Theater tonight. It was scheduled to open Sunday—but, owing to the elaborateness and lavishness of this musical it was deemed advisable to postpone the premiere so that playgoers should see a perfect presentation. The musical is laid in two acts requiring six sets. A heavy production, it requires an extra large number of stage hands.

A rare departure is made in connection with engagement of Jonica. An orchestra of 17 men, under the direction of Carl C. Gray, has been brought to Washington with the company to augment the regular orchestra at the National. It is customary to bring several skilled musicians with a musical play, "Jonica" carries its own complete orchestra. William B. Friedlander staged the entire production.

The company of 60 players arrived in Washington yesterday and the stage of the National Theater was like a bee hive late last night with preparations for the opening tonight.

"Jonica" is based on an original comedy by Dorothy Heyward, who with her husband, DuBoise, wrote "Porgy," the Theater Guild hit.

Man Hanged for Canadian Slaying.

AUDITORIUM

Henri Gressitt presents Robert Downing in "Virginius," a tragedy in four acts, by James Sheridan Knowles.

THE CAST:

Appius Claudius ..... Raymond Barrett
Dentatus ..... J. W. Bayley
Caius ..... Ken Cartier
Virginius ..... Robert Downing
numitorius ..... Eugene Bergman
Icillius ..... Harry Hawley
Lucius ..... Marion Tulley
Titus ..... Walter De Luna
Virginia ..... Helen Dale Brown
Servia ..... Aimee Andree

Robert Downing and his repertory company opened last evening at the Auditorium, their third and last Washington presentation, before an enthusiastic audience.

Mr. Downing, in the role of Virginius, the old Roman centurion, who murders his daughter to save her from dishonor at the hands of a treacherous deceiver, delivered a fine piece of repressed acting. His impassioned plea for his daughter and his portrayal of subsequent insanity were especially well done.

Helen Dale Brown, cast as the daughter, imbued her part with a delicacy entirely up to her high standard in previous performances.

Raymond Barrett and Harry Hawley, as the scheming deceiver and the betrothed, respectively, contributed splendid performances.

Especially effective is the closing scene—the dungeon, a setting reminiscent of "Aida."

When Your Work Drags

Excess Acid is keeping you Half-Sick

When you feel any of the everyday occurrences of sour stomach, sick headaches, heartburn, biliousness, it is nature's way of telling you there's something wrong. Nine times out of ten, it's too much acid—the result of modern-day habits of living.

Excess acid is a menace to health. It curdles the food we eat into insoluble lumps, forms gas in the stomach and intestines; attacks the delicate linings of the digestive organs, makes them inflamed, and often, if allowed to go uncorrected, produces chronic indigestion, constipation, ulcers and other serious disorders.

You can correct stomach distress almost at once. The surest and quickest way is Milnesia Wafers—which are pure milk of magnesia in a pleasantly flavored wafer. By chewing Milnesia Wafers or allowing them to dissolve in the mouth the moment symptoms appear, a fine alkaline film is at once deposited over the mouth, stomach and intestinal linings, correcting and protecting them from acid attack. Excess acids are immediately neutralized

Thousands of physicians and dentists are daily recommending Milnesia Wafers in preference to the old-fashioned liquid milk of magnesia, because they are more effective, more convenient and less expensive. Milnesia Wafers are also rapidly taking the place of unscientific stomach remedies such as soda, indigestion powders and dyspepsia tablets.

Ask your druggist today for the Home Package of Milnesia Wafers at 60c or the convenient "carry" package for vest pocket or purse at 20c.

MILNESIA WAFERS
(Milk of Magnesia Wafers)

NOTE TO USERS OF LIQUID MAGNESIA: We guarantee each Milnesia Wafer to contain magnesium hydroxide corresponding to one tablespoonful of U. S. P. (U. S. Pharmacopoeia) Milk of Magnesia. It is the only tablet containing the genuine hydroxide of magnesia. Try pleasant-tasting Milnesia Wafers just once and you will never go back to the old-fashioned liquid with its chalky taste. Your druggist will gladly refund your money if you are not entirely satisfied.

WORK'S BRIDGE

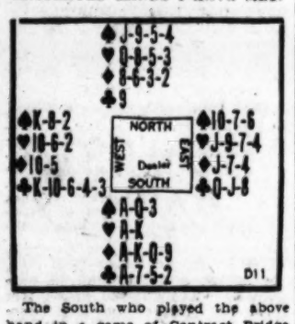
GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled "THE PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 8 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The South who played the above hand in a game of Contract Bridge must have been tempted to start with a bid of four No Trumps. His 4 Aces, two Kings and two Queens, coupled with a count of 26 and the good chance of a fourth trick in Diamonds, made that bid look reasonably safe; but the result of the hand showed the wisdom of sticking to the rule of not bidding four No Trumps unless the hand holds a count of 27 with the probability that all four suits are stopped twice. Of course South's Clubs are stopped only once.

Had the hand been played in Auction Bridge, South's one No Trump would have been the only bid.

In the play West led a small Club. Declarer held up South's Ace until the third round to exhaust East's Clubs before giving up control of the suit, and then led four Diamonds and two Hearts; thus taking seven tricks. His Ace of Spades was his eighth trick, and then he led a second Spade, hoping that East had the King; but when West played that card, he ran his two remaining Clubs and the adversaries saved game, taking one Spade and four Clubs.

The Correct Play.

South handled his Clubs correctly as above described, also his Diamond and Heart leads as above named were correct; but to trick 10 he should have put West in with the Club instead of leading his Ace of Spades. West, of course, would take in addition another Club trick plus tricks 1 and 2, would give him a total of four; but Declarer must take the remaining tricks to go game, it being immaterial whether West led a Heart or a Spade to trick 12.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

STRAWBERRY SAUCE.
(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Strawberry sauce, for puddings or boiled rice, which is usually made by mixing butter, sugar and mashed berries, is a good means of securing the strawberry flavor at times when berries are too high-priced to be used in large quantities. The substitution of honey for sugar has proved to be practicable. In fact, it obviates one of the chief difficulties in making this sauce—the tendency to curdle.

2 tablespoons butter.
2-3 cup mashed strawberries.
½ cup honey.

Beat together the honey and butter. Add the strawberries slowly, keeping the mixture cool by setting the dish in water. Serve on boiled rice or cottage pudding.

Alkali Soil Helps.

Laramie, Wyo., March 24 (A.P.).—Development of the beet sugar industry in mountain States is ascribed by Dr. Aven Nelson, of the University of Wyoming to alkali soils. He says in such soils the beet attains maximum growth and sugar content.

Prices realized on Swift & Co. sales of carcass beef in Washington, D. C., for week ending Saturday, March 22, 1930, on shipments sold out ranged from 12.83 cents to 25.00 cents per pound and averaged 19.54 cents per pound.—Adv.

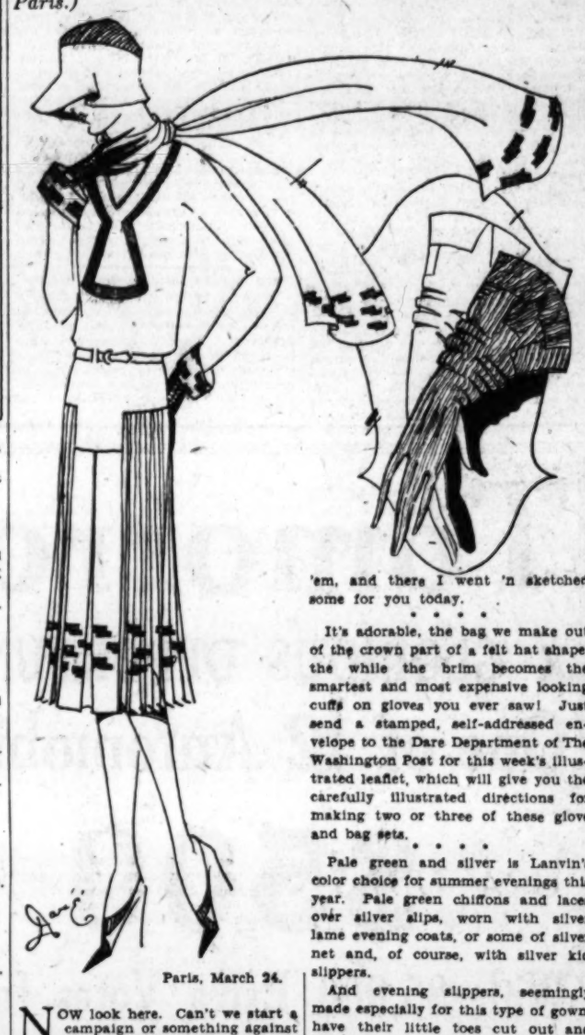
Poles Get $40,000,000.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—American money has made possible extensive reconstruction of the Polish National Railways. In undertaking the construction of 14,000 freight cars and 1,000 passenger coaches, the firm of Lilop, Rau & Lowenstein, obtained $40,000,000 through the Standard Star Finance Corporation, a subsidiary of the Standard Steel Corporation.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Doesn't gray—with touches of red and black—sound smart to you for this sports dress? (Courtesy of David, Paris.)



Paris, March 24.

NOW look here. Can't we start a campaign or something against the way some women sit? If they are just so stupid or so impossibly vulgar that they don't mind for themselves, that isn't any reason why the rest of us have to endure it.

Yes; I'm back again on the subject of the way some women sit! I have just had to endure a couple more insults to my womanly dignity, and was humiliated beyond words not only at the sight facing me for a couple of hours that I had to endure, but because men sitting beside me were, I knew, seeing the same thing and were more outraged and disgusted than I.

Short, tight skirts, fat legs—and then sitting with your knees apart, and not wearing bloomers. Nor can a woman who sits like this with this kind of a skirt not know what a sight she presents. The answer is that she can't help knowing it, because, no matter how vulgar and stupid she is, she has seen other women sitting the same way and so can not possibly help but know how she affects the nerves of the people who have to look at her.

Oh, it's not a matter of morals or prudishness or anything of the sort. Can't we do something about it?

• • • •

Believe it or not, but I've seen 'em! White pique gloves for wash dresses, and darn smart they are, too, with their incrustations of the same material going in some direction or other. Yes; they wash, and I like 'em, and there I went 'n sketched some for you today.

• • • •

It's adorable, the bag we make out of the crown part of a felt hat shape, the while the brim becomes the smartest and most expensive looking cuffs on gloves you ever saw! Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, which will give you the carefully illustrated directions for making two or three of these glove and bag sets.

Pale green and silver is Lanvin's color choice for summer evenings this year. Pale green chiffons and laces over silver slips, worn with silver lame evening coats, or some of silver net and, of course, with silver kid slippers.

• • • •

How do you like the light gray sports dress with its touches of black and red that Dayid let me illustrate for you today? By the way, that name is pronounced "Dah-veed" in French, but any way you pronounce it, whatever he does in sports wear for women is always good.

• • • •

Must we remind you again of the weekly Dare fashion letter that appears in The Sunday Washington Post each week?

Baby Mine

What Today Means to You

"ARIES."

IF March 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 7:45 a. m., from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Luck will be with you on this date in most phases of life. Financial games will end in victory. Keep your head and husband your resources, however, or success may turn to failure. A wave of social success and enjoyment is predicted.

Children born on this March 25 will have keen analytical minds and courageous hearts. They will be very fond of amusements, but they will not be "amusement mad," and will work and play alike, with all their might. They will have cheerful dispositions.

You, as yet, are leading a rather purposeless life. You have neither struck harbor nor thrown out an anchor. You have heard no "calling" and you are drifting along an uncharted sea in an aimless way, which will figuratively bring you nowhere (at least in a material way). Although you are neither orderly nor logical, you are able to muddle through things and come out at least partially victorious.

You are endowed with more brain power than you have the ambition to use. You could climb and climb, if you ever saw a peak sufficiently attractive to entice you on. You have a leniency, almost an affection, for your own failings, and it would be advisable to switch off the rosy light in which you see your weaknesses and look at them in the hard light of common sense. You have many excellent traits, which to a large degree offset your weaknesses. You have a happy way of looking at life and you smile when things are anything but agreeable. You do a great deal of good in the world through your hopeful outlook and confident disposition; as a debtor to yourself you may be sadly in arrears, but you are not a debtor to others. You are honest as the day is long, absolutely loyal to all your fellow beings, and clean and honorable minded.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD.

"The Girl Who Stays Home."

DEAR MISS McDONALD: We can say what we please of the beauty and the rewards of sacrifice, but when it comes right down to cases, most of us would be willing to forego that form of beauty and even its rewards. And that is just what Betty should do. Has any family the right to select one poor victim to be the family helpful, the family stay-at-home, the family "goat" Betty wants to know. She wants to "do what is right," but she does not want to wash frying pans and break finger nails, while her sisters go blithely to town each day to earn and to buy smart clothes.

Read Betty's letter. How would you like to have Betty's problem and Betty's family?

"If I am just selfish and lazy as they tell me, please be frank with me, but I do not think I am, in fact, I think it is because I am the least selfish and least lazy in our family that I am always picked for the goat. Here is my story, which may not seem to you important enough to print. I am just 17, and just out of high school. I got excellent marks and want to get an office job like my sisters, but have been told that I am to stay at home and do the house work. This I will not do, unless you say it is my duty, but why is it?

Our family is large. Mother, father, four girls and two younger brothers. Until three months ago a widowed aunt lived with us and did all the work, except the bedrooms, which I did before starting for school. But she went West to live with her son, whose wife just died, and I am supposed to give up all my hopes and plans and become a kitchen drudge.

Now please get me right, if I were married I would adore doing my part of housework in a little home, but to just drudge for my family, why must I? They are the kind who never pick up after themselves. I have to hang up their clothes, put their towels in place, everything. And now that would be my whole life. My father says I will do it without any further talk. Has he any right to make me? My mother says I am selfish and lazy to be unwilling to "do my duty." Why is it my duty, and not my sisters' duty to ever hang up the clothes they take off?

"I have done six bedrooms every morning for three years, and swept and cleaned them Saturdays while the family went to ball games. I am not the family idiot, for I am through high school at 17 and have held one office job already and got a $2 raise. I want nice clothes like my sisters buy for themselves and I want to go in town each morning. I just love it. And I like my job, too. This is the dullest place to live, and then to live in a kitchen. Now I am not the sort to run away or do anything else to annoy my family, but must I give up every dream and just be a greasy old kitchen drudge? Is that duty? And why is it my duty? BETTY, 17."

Now if this were during the reign of Queen Victoria, we could understand folks doling out duty and orders in this high-handed way. But as we are now living in a brand new age, Betty is just as free as any of her family to elect her own mode of life. Family drudges are never appreciated, seldom even thanked for the sacrifice they have made for family comfort. Betty should hold on to her job with both hands and her teeth, and let each working member of the family contribute to the wages of a hired housekeeper. Slavery ended with the Civil War and that's the answer to Betty!

GALLAGHER WINS TEN-ROUND DECISION OVER FRIEDMAN; POTOMACS RALLY TO BEAT COMPANY F FIVE IN TOURNEY

A.A.U. Games In 2 Classes Thrillers

Boat Club Eliminates Guards, 31-20, After Trailing Foes.

"Y" Flashes Conquer Optimists, 32-31, in 130-Lb. Division.

APPARENTLY headed for the discards, the Potomac Boat Club Five breathed of new life in the closing period of a spirited battle with the Company F Guards, of Hyattsville, in Tech High Gym last night, gaining a 31-to-20 victory in one of the most gruelling contests of the District A. A. U. championship tournament. After setting the pace for more than half the route, the big Militia Quintet faltered before the suddenly rejuvenated Boatmen's attack.

The first shutout victory in tournament history was recorded in the final game of the evening, when the Jewish Community Center unlimited five whitewashed the Takoma Firemen, 35 to 0, to earn the right of meeting the Montrose Team in the quarter finals tomorrow night.

The Y. M. C. A. Flashes and Boys' Club Optimists, 130-pound class contenders, stole much of the night's show, however, waging a thrilling 32-to-21 battle in which the Red Triangle youngsters survived an eleventh-hour rally by the Optimists. To many, the result was a decided upset.

In another 130-pound class engagement, the J. C. C. Flashes had no difficulty in running up a 36-to-17 score at the expense of the Potomac Boat Club Preps.

As the result of last night's victories, the Potomac Boat Club Five moved into the semi-finals of the unlimited class race and the J. C. C. Flashes and Y. M. C. A. Flashes are to meet in the 130-pound class final.

Boatmen Comeback In Final Period.

Company F took an early lead over the Boatmen and had apparently stilled the offense of the ultimate victors, holding a 7-to-3 lead after 10 minutes of play. The Boat Club Five came in the next few minutes and tied the score at 8 to 8, but the half found the Guardsmen in front, 11 to 10. Twice the score was tied in the third period and the third period ended with the Hyattsville team leading, 19 to 17.

At this juncture the Boat Club offensive became more effective and its defense tightened to such a degree that the Soldiers could score but one foul shot in the final period. With Timmons and Lilly pointing the way, the Boatmen ran up 14 points over the same period and won by a comfortable margin. Williams played a great all-around game for the losers.

Eckersall, Famed Football Star at Chicago, Dies at 46

CHICAGO, March 24 (A.P.).—Walter Herbert Eckersall, one of football's immortals, is dead.

Death, caused by a heart attack, overtook the once famous streak of the gridiron suddenly and unexpectedly at 2:30 p. m. today in his room at the Chicago Athletic Association, where he had been bedridden for only a few days. He was 46 years old.

Eckersall had been in failing health for the past year, but not even his most intimate friends realized the end was so near. Last fall, he jeopardized his health by leaving his sick bed and continuing his duties as football referee and sports writer for the Chicago Tribune, for which he also became famous. He never seemed to regain his old time spark after that. The death of his mother last fall broke his heart and his will to live was hardly that of the 145-pound football player who used to blast through ponderous lines way back in 1903-04-05-06.

Charles W. Dunkley, sports writer for the Associated Press and his close friend for 20 years, was the only one with Eckersall when he died. Dunkley came to make his daily call to learn of his condition and found him dying. He said Eckersall mumbled something about a 20-yard gain and died peacefully.

Attracted Attention In High School.

Football stars have beamed and faded but very few gained the fame that came to Eckersall, a slip of a youth, weighing about 135 pounds. He first attracted attention while playing on the Hyde Park High School Team in Chicago. Recruiting was not considered an athletic sin in those day and several universities and colleges, learning of his remarkable speed, sought his services. But he decided on the University of Chicago where he combined his natural talent and speed with advice from Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg and startled the football world which then was used to the slam-bang type of game. Almost single-handed, he crushed heavier and greater teams than Chicago with his triple threat artistry. His kicking was accurate and dangerous, and his open field running a revelation. He was an artist as a passer, too.

"Eckie," as he was known to footballdom both as a player, writer and official, played his first two years with the Maroons as an end. In his first year, 1903, he starred and in 1904, he gained a berth on Walter Camp's All-American team and became a fixture of that mythical eleven, membership of which, usually confined to the East, for the rest of his collegiate career—1905 and 1906. The last two years he directed the Maroons at quarterback, meanwhile increasing his weight to 145 pounds.

Three of His Feats Stand Out.

Stories of "Eckie's," feats on the football field are legion, but three of them stand out.

One was his performance against Michigan's famous "point-a-minute" team in 1905. The Maroons entered that game very much the under dogs. The Wolverines had been stopped in one of their characteristic drives on Chicago's 2-yard line. Eckersall, noticing that Michigan's left end was out of position, crossed his own teammates by calling for a punt formation. Instead, he dashed around the unprotected end to midfield. After trying to dent Michigan's line unsuccessfully, he punted and the pigskin sailed over Michigan's goal. Denny Clark, Michigan half back, tried to run the ball back, but Mark Catlin, Chicago end, tackled him behind his own goal for a Maroon safety and the ball game by a score of 2 to 0. Fans rubbed their eyes the morning after and Eckersall became more famous than ever.

Another of Eckersall's memorable performances was in 1903, when Chicago beat Wisconsin's powerful team, 15 to 6. In this game, he scored all of Chicago's points by field goals.

Wisconsin was victimized by another of his feats. "Eckie" caught a kick-off behind his own goal line and raced 109 yards for a touchdown. Six tacklers halted him during his great dash, but the slight Eckersall shook them off.

Football wasn't Eckersall's only athletic glory. He was a track star and many are those who still remember the day he and Will Hogenson ran two dead heats in the 100-yard dash, only to have Eckersall win the next dash in 9 4-5 seconds. He played third base with Cap. Anson's Colts as soon as he left college, but the lure of journalism was greater and he forsook what might have been a great baseball career.

Eckersall went to the Chicago Tribune from baseball and became an authority on football and boxing. Each season, he officiated in most of the more important Big Ten and Notre Dame gridiron classics.

Big Ten Commissioner Pays Tribute.

Tributes were many tonight but Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western Conference, summed up most of them by saying:

"Eckersall was not only one of football's greatest stars, he was a great referee, a fine writer and a true blue sportsman. He was beloved by all and the athletic world, especially the amateur sports world which needs men of his type, will miss him greatly."

Eckersall was married and divorced, and has one child, Elizabeth, who is 20 years old. After his mother's death he lived at the Chicago Athletic Association. Funeral arrangements will be announced tomorrow.

NATS' CAMP GRATIFIES GRIFFITH

Chattanooga's Colder Weather Seen as Blessing.

By FRANK H. YOUNG,
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 24. While the Chattanooga weather is much colder than the Nationals encountered at Biloxi, President Clark Griffith looks upon this condition as a blessing rather than a blow, providing the temperature falls no lower than it has been since Manager Walter Johnson brought his charges here last Friday night.

"It's not too cold to prevent the boys from working up a sweat if they hustle, while at the same time it is acclimating them to conditions more like they will have to face when they get back East for the season's opener," said the Nats' owner. "Last year our players basked in the Florida sun and then went almost directly home and the result was that the sudden change threw many of them back in their training, especially the pitchers."

While two of the Washington infielders, Buddie Myer and Jack Hayes, have pulled up with sore arms, Manager Johnson does not blame this on the local weather man. Myer's arm began giving him trouble at Biloxi, while Hayes merely has been working too strenuously in practice. Both will be throwing as usual within the next few days, according to Trainer Mike Martin.

Batting Practice Is Gratifying.

Although there was a chill in the air this morning the Nationals were out bright and early at Engel Stadium and the first of the lengthy batting drills planned by Manager Johnson was staged. This appears to be the only item on the training list in which the Nationals are a little behind schedule. Practically all of the pitchers took short turns on the hill and the work of some of the players at the tee was gratifying to the Washington leader.

One of the day's standouts was George Loepp, the young outfielder who had had little opportunity to show his wares until used in Sunday's game. In this contest he cracked out two safeties, one of which hit on the rail of the stands in deep left field and netted two sacks, and he continued his bombarding at the session this morning.

Loepp also showed Johnson some rather fancy fielding in the Sabbath game. President Clark Griffith, who scouted the lad last year while he was with the Baltimore Orioles, was not sure whether he was a good fielder for the simple reason that he had no difficult chances in the five games in which the Nats' owner saw him work. Any doubts as to Loepp's fly-chasing ability were removed Sunday, however.

Barnes Improving As Outfielder.

Another who is bringing smiles to Skipper Johnson's face is Emile (Red) Barnes. He is improving as a fielder in leaps and bounds, and with him Loepp showing up well "Goose Goslin" will not be missed as much as it was first though if he fails to report, especially if Sammy West continues showing the sticking ability which has marked his work in the last two games.

Although the New York Giants' second team is listed to play the Lookouts here Thursday and Friday, indications are that a change will be made by which the Nationals will take over the latter date.

Risko Defeats Campolo by Decision

Verdict Ill Received With Argentinian Thought Winner.

Risko Battered About Body by Giant Foe; Judges Disagree.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Poetic justice rode with tough old Johnny Risko tonight and the rubbery spoiler of many a fine heavyweight's plans gained for himself a ten-round decision over mountainous Victorio Campolo, Manana mauler from the Argentine.

Risko won a verdict that popular consent said should have been his three weeks ago when the strongest assorted of all the heavyweight pairs me ftor the first time on the ill-fated Sharkey-Scott card at Miami; but just as the crowd in the Southland bellowed that night against the official verdict of "draw," so did 10,263 of the faithful lured to the big battle pit for the return engagement roar against award of the decision to Risko tonight.

In the opinion of one of the judges and referee Arthur Donovan Risko won the decision after a gruelling battle that revealed a much improved fighter in the mammoth Argentinian. The other judge thought that Campolo had won. A majority of the ringside critics as well as the crowd as a whole thought Campolo had punched out a fairly comfortable margin.

Score Sheet Gives Campolo 5 Rounds.

On the Associated Press score sheet, Campolo won five rounds, Risko three and two were even. The Argentine, battering Risko unmercifully about the body at times with pounding right hands, jabbing neatly with his long left hand and swishing solid rights to the chin, seemed to have an edge in the first, second, third, eighth and tenth rounds, while Risko won the fourth, seventh and ninth. The others were even.

Campolo, looking like a huge bogey man tossed into an inclosure to punish a relatively small but mighty courageous boy, raked Risko at times with punches that probably would have finished any other heavyweight than the sturdy, punch-proof shock-absorber from Cleveland. He fought a much better battle than in his first try at Miami.

Risko, from the first round through to the final bell, worried Campolo like a terrier, snarling for a hold on the throat of a Great Dane. At times, he stood off and landed straight left leads to the body. In close, he sneaked his arms loose from clinches and whipped them overhand occasionally to the head.

Campolo Meets Smaller Foe Coming In.

But Johnny, game and forceful as he was, never was able to jar Campolo loose from his carefully prepared plan of battle. The giant met the little fellow plunging in, hung him up on left jabs, smashed wicked belts to the short ribs and stomach, and pounded Johnny fiercely about the head in the clinches.

Boxer Is Suspended For Biting Opponent

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Three 30-day suspensions for fouling were handed out to boxers by the State Athletic Commission today, one of them for the offense of biting an opponent.

In the fourth round of a 6-round bout between Leroy Smith and Stanley Niemeck in Buffalo, March 17, the referee's report said, "Smith rushed Niemeck through the ropes and sunk his teeth in the body."

The other boxers suspended were Joe Sekyra, Dayton (Ohio) heavyweight, who hit low in a bout with Rosy Rosales on the same card at Buffalo, and Willie Cubic, New York, who fouled Kid Singh, of Schenectady, in a fight in Schenectady.

16 Bouts in City Tourney Tonight; G. U. Boxers Out

Fish, Tardugno and Bordeau Barred by Hilltop Ruling.

WITH the field reduced by three as the result of a ruling prohibiting varsity boxers of Georgetown University representing and other organization, the first annual District of Columbia Association, A. A. U. championship boxing tournament gets under way in sixteen preliminary bouts tonight at the City Club. The program will open at 7:30 o'clock.

Those affected by the Hillsop ruling are Mike Tardugno, featherweight; Charley Fish, welterweight, and Leroy Bordeau, light heavyweight, the last named being the South Atlantic A. A. U. champion. They had been entered in the tournament as representatives of the Jewish Community Center through their own desire.

The ruling, as announced, was that Georgetown would not permit any of its athletes to represent another organization. It did not imply any antagonism to the Jewish Community Center or to the District of Columbia Association of the A. A. U. Also, nothing was said concerning the trio competing as unattached.

It was reported that the three Hilltoppers will make an appeal to the authorities in the hope of competing either as Georgetown representatives or as unattached.

G. U. in Sympathy With Tourney.

"The rule," said one Georgetown official, "was made merely to prohibit our athletes from competing under the banner of another organization. Georgetown, as a member of the District Association, is entirely in sympathy with the association and the Amateur Athletic Union. Any other interpretation of our action is incorrect."

Bordeau was the only entrant in the light-heavyweight class and, if allowed to compete, probably would be awarded the title without entering the ring.

Pairings were made last night at the Jewish Community Center. The luck of the draw brought no two boxers of the same organization together in a preliminary bout.

The program tonight will not include flyweight or heavyweight bouts, as there are only two entrants in each of these divisions, thus obviating the necessity for preliminaries or semi-finals. Finals in these divisions will be fought next Monday night at the Jewish Community Center.

The starting time of tonight's program was changed from 8 to 7:30 o'clock by the committee in charge in the hope of concluding the long program before midnight. According to the schedule, the last of the sixteen preliminaries will go on at 11:15 o'clock.

Semifinals will be held Thursday night at Knights of Columbus Hall.

Miss Orcutt Leader In Midsouth Golf

Southern Pines, N. C., March 24 (A.P.).—Shooting a brilliant 78, 5 below par, Miss Maureen Orcutt, New York star, held the lead at the end of today's eighteen-hole play in the Second Annual Mid-South Women's Golf Tournament here.

Miss Orcutt finished the outgoing nine holes in 38. Par for women is 43. She came in with a 40, equaling par. Her playing was the outstanding feature of the first day of the tournament.

Trailing closely on the heels of Miss Orcutt was Miss Glenna Collett, American champion. Miss Collett finished the eighteen holes with an 80.

Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, of Washington, had a 47, 47—94 card, and Mrs. Hugh McKenzie, of Washington, turned in a 62, 67—129 card.

Fischer is 51 years old and unmarried. After collecting his prize he will go to Los Angeles, where he formerly worked, to visit a brother. Beyond that he said he had made no plans.

Thevenow Now Hits Like Lefty O'Doul

Winter Haven, Fla., March 24 (A.P.). Tommy Thevenow, the Phillies' shortstop, who had a batting average of .227 last season, is not going to be a push-over at the plate this year if Lefty O'Doul can prevent it.

Lefty, who hit his way to the top of the National League heap in 1929, has made a suggestion or two to Thevenow, one of which resulted in Tommy's adopting Lefty's type and weight of bat. O'Doul's motive in helping Thevenow, the players say, is that he likes to see his teammates smack them.

Seven Games Added To Red Sox Program

Pensacola, Fla., March 24 (A.P.).—The spring exhibition game schedule of the Boston Red Sox, which to date has been the easiest of any big league ball club, became much more difficult today when seven games were added to the list. Manager Heinie Wagner and his players will have nothing much to do but practice until next Friday.

Fonseca, Recuperating, Starts Work.

New Orleans, La., March 24 (A.P.). Lew Fonseca, the recuperating first baseman of the Cleveland Indians, worked out with the rookies today. He took it easy, but was more confident with his progress and believes he will be in condition to play in the opening game of the league season. The Tribe workout today was the best it has enjoyed at the training camp this season.

Close Verdict Won by D. C. Fighter

Vote of Referee Is Decisive After 2 Judges Disagree.

Gallagher's Strong Finish Near End Sways Verdict.

BALTIMORE, March 24. — Marty Gallagher, of Washington, tonight won a close decision from Al Friedman, of Boston, in the ten-round feature bout of the card at the 104th Medical Regiment Armory. The vote of the referee, Charles Baum, of Baltimore, decided in favor of Gallagher, as the the two judges disagreed.

It was a closely contested battle throughout; and only Gallagher's fine condition, which enabled him to make a strong finish, pulled him out the winner. Friedman made the Washington heavyweight travel at his fastest pace.

The victory gives Gallagher a chance to fight Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City, Iowa, slugger, whom Boston promoters have been dickering with. Gallagher now is fighting under the management of Dan Carroll, Boston fight impresario.

McKechnie Seeking Catcher for Braves

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 24 (A.P.).—Rain saved the Boston Braves from a bus ride to Bradenton, where today's game with the St. Louis Cardinals was scheduled. This holiday gave Manager Bill McKechnie a chance to continue his search for another catcher to add to the Braves' woefully weak receiving staff. The Boston pilot believes his club will finish well up in the second division of the National League if he can turn up a capable performer behind the plate.

TAMPA, Fla., March 24 (A.P.).—Manager Stanley Harris has cut the roster of the Detroit Tigers to 29 men, it became known today. This involved sending down four players who have been training here.

Frank Barnes, pitcher, goes to Toledo; John Prudhomme, pitcher, Toronto; William R. Steinecke, catcher, to Beaumont, Tex., and Charles Staples, pitcher, to Evansville, Ind.

Each of the players goes to a club with which the Tigers have a working agreement. On June 15, Henry Greenburg, first baseman, from New York, and John Watson, infielder, from Marshall College, W. Va., will be sent away, but both are expected back in some future year.

A scheduled exhibition game with Tampa, Southeastern League Club, was rained out today.

Heilman, Meusel Please Cincinnati Owner.

Orlando, Fla., March 24 (A.P.).—The Cincinnati Reds spent most of today journeying 245 miles from Miami, with a brief stop at Palm Beach for a swim in the ocean. President Sidney Weil parted with the team at Miami, leaving for Cincinnati. He said that American League owners could easily find a markct in Cincinnati if they had any more players like Heilmann and Meuse to dispose of.

EASTER HERO, FAVORITE, OUT OF GRAND NATIONAL

5 U.S.-Owned Entries in Classic

Whitney Jumper Is Lame Again With Race Due Friday.

Gregalach, Winner in 1929, One of 3 Co-Favorites.

LONDON, March 24 (A.P.).—The unexpected scratching of John H. Whitney's Easter Hero from the Grand National today left only five American-owned horses to face the starter Friday and turned the gruelling 4-mile test into a complete riddle.

With Easter Hero definitely out of the race, Sir Lindsay, which put up a good performance in the Cheltenham Gold Cup, will be the long bearer of the Whitney silks. Gordon Selfridge's Ruddyman, Victor Emmanuel's Rhyticere and Royal Arch, and S. Sanford's Sandy Hook complete the American representation.

Easter Hero first developed lameness after winning the Cheltenham but appeared to have recovered, turning in a good trial Sunday. An examination today, however, showed a return of the lameness and it was decided to scratch him. The jumper's leg was flushed and he walked with a decided limp. The veterinary's verdict was that the horse could not run in the National and do himself justice.

Easter Hero Unlucky In Grand Nationals.

Only an hour previous to the gloomy announcement of his trainer and the veterinary, Easter Hero again had risen to the position of the favorite—a place he held before pulling up lame. Friday's race now has been made more open than ever, with Sir Lindsay, Grakie and Gregalach, the 1929 winner, favored.

Regarded here as the world's finest steeplechaser, Easter Hero has been unlucky as far as Grand Nationals were concerned. Two years ago, when leading the field, he landed on top of a fence and ruined his chance of winning, while last year he was second despite having spread a plate two fences from the finish.

Clarendon Team Takes Lead In National Pin Tournament

WATERBURY, Conn., March 24. The lead in the race for the team championship of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress changed hands twice here today and tonight, when the George H. Rucker Realtors, of Clarendon, Va., took the lead in the afternoon with 1,797 set and the Bethesda Team boosted the mark to 1,805 tonight. As a result, these teams stand one and two in the title race to date.

The Bethesda Team was composed of Davidson, Miller, Hoffman, Lindstrom and Henry Hiser. Lindstrom led the team with a 384 set.

"Hokie Smith, of Washington, took second place in the battle for all-events honors with a 1,162 total, eight pins behind Jack Otto, who shattered all records for the nine-game route last week with a 1,179 total.

Smith was the big shot in the Rucker attack, shooting a 422 set and a 174 game, the latter the highest of the tournament. Furr's 158 game in the second and Chester Bild's 145 in the third proved helpful to the Clarendon team.

Smith paired with Ken Thorpe in the doubles to collect 749.

The Coliseum Team, of Washington, with Brad Mandley at anchor, gained fourth place with a 1,753 set. "Dutch" Newman shot 409.

Smith's 1,162 total tops the best mark rolled in two previous tournaments by 21 pins, but Otto's big string almost assures him of the title attained last year by Sam Benson, of Washington, and the year previous went to Howard Campbell, the Capital City star.

Navy Nine to Open Season Saturday

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 24.—With winter indoor athletic activities at an end except for a fencing match and rifle shoot scheduled for the coming Saturday, the midshipmen today turned their attention to outdoor endeavors in earnest. Baseball will hold the immediate spotlight, as the first game is booked for Saturday with Franklin and Marshall College.

The diamond squad has been working outdoors for the past week, under Head Coach Mohler, but practice has been greatly hampered by fluctuating weather conditions. Mohler, however, expects to have a team whipped into fair shape for the curtain raiser. The squad, as well as the field and track, lacrosse, and other groups of athletics will be greatly strengthened within the next few days as men just released from indoor teams, will be available for service.

The two remaining events on the winter card are fencing with the Philadelphia Sword Club, and a rifle match with Massachusetts Tech.

Marine Nine Beaten In Opener by Drexel

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., March 24.—General Smedley Butler tossed out the first ball while the post band played the national anthem and the All Marine Baseball Team opened its season here today with a 5-to-4 defeat at the hands of Drexel Institute, of Philadelphia.

Capt. Robinson, of Drexel Institute, starred with two doubles and a single and accounted for four of the five runs. All four pitchers did well for their nintial trips to the rubber. Drexel, however, showed to the most advantange with its bats and carried off the honor, making an uphill fight after the third inning.

Stewards Investigate Gallahad Performance

Jefferson Park Race Track, New Orleans, March 24 (A.P.).—The stewards are investigating the miserable ride put up by Jockey Palumbo on Galahad in the feature race Saturday, when that horse was defeated by Klingstone. He is suspended pending investigation and the management of the track has ruled that Palumbo shall not be permitted to accept a mount at this track.

When Palumbo returned to the scales with Galahad the crowd booed and called him threatening names. Galahad, in the race, was allowed to drop back about fifteen lengths from the leader. He made up much ground to land second place to Klingstone. Several hand books are implicated in the scandal.

"Newsboy Abe" Here After 2 World Tours

Abe Hollandersky, "The Newsboy" who has gained that sobriquet by selling newspapers on his tours with the United States Navy which have twice carried him around the world, stopped here yesterday before continuing to his home in New London, Conn. Hollandersky has also had active ring experience in 1,039 fights and has always been a favorite with the Tars, under whose eyes he has boxed most of his battles.

The "world's greatest newsboy," as he has been called, started to sell papers in 1898 when he was 7 years old. One of the feats which gives him the most satisfaction is the time he sold papers on the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans on the same day, passing through the Panama Canal to accomplish the act. He has recently published a book entitled "The Life Story of Abe the Newsboy—Hero of a Thousand Fights."

Doeg Wins From Hall In Southeastern Final

St. Augustine, Fla., March 24 (A.P.). John Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., defeated J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., 5—7, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3, 7—5, today to win the Southeastern tennis championship. The match had been delayed three days by rains.

Missed Spare in 10th Saves World's Record

Special to The Washington Post.

Waterbury, Conn., March 24.—Charley Heim, Baltimore policeman, "blew" a spare in the tenth box here today in the National Duck Pin Bowling Congress Tournament that cost him a world record. He shot a new tournament game mark of 186. The world hard maple game record of 190, is held by Howard Ryan, of the Masonic League, Washington, D. C.

Heim is one of the newcomers to Baltimore's major bowling league this season.

Gelding Gives All Weight In Victory

Braggadocio Beaten by Length With Salona Third.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, New Orleans, March 24 (A.P.). The last week of the New Orleans winter race season began here today under ideal weather conditions. The track showed good improvement over any day of the last ten. It was slow, but drying out very fast. The fourth event, a 6-furlong sprint, was won by Simon Kenton, who carried 120 pounds, conceding weight to every one of his opponents.

The winner was ridden by H. Thomas, and the veteran never made a mistake with him. He got the gelding away on his toes and, making every pole a winning one, won nicely in hand by a length over Braggadocio, who in turn beat Salona a head for the place. The winner paid 5.20 for a $2 mutuel ticket, and the 6 furlongs were run in 1:17 1-5.

Spantaft Sets All Pace At St. John's.

St John's Race Track, Fla., March 24 (A.P.).—Taking the lead at the rise of the barrier, the Eastland Farm Stable's Spantaft showed the way over the mile and 70 yards course today to win the Riverside Claiming Handicap. With W. Smith in the saddle, the 3-year-old filly covered the muddy route in 1:48 4-5, defeating Lord Concord, from the Harned Bros.' string, by a length and a half. The latter was a similar distance in front of E. F. Sanford's Torrito as the small field of 3-year-olds flashed past the judges' stand.

My Brentwood Girl, carrying the colors of William Dwyer's Mont Alvo Stud and the odds-on favorite, ran fourth, after being well up during the early running. Spantaft was the weakly backed second choice, paying $9.60 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

The winners were: First, Spot with Gerryshill Pit; second, Hart's Miss Kline with Rueger Touchstone Duke; third, Hart's Miss Pullen.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Many average players strive for distance in getting out of bunkers and traps. Is this a good or bad practice?

Answered by LAURÆ AYTON

Always a consistent place winner in the big tournaments. Famed for his accuracy and steadiness under fire.

I believe that the attempt to get distance out of traps and bunkers is an unwise thing for the average golfer to do. Play for position when trapped; play safe. Usually the one stroke which will be used in playing a safe shot out of a trap will save two or three others which must often be used when the average player attempts to get distance from a difficult lie. Of course, if the match depends on a difficult shot from the trap, take every chance to make that shot, but in the ordinary round of play remember the old golfing motto about shots from traps, "Better safe than sorry."

BUSINESS REVIVAL AIDS STOCK PRICES

Survey Showing Conditions Are Improving Sends Shares Soaring.

OIL ISSUES SCORE GAINS

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Encouraged by the report of President Hoover's national business survey conference, and further evidences of the downward trend of money rates, bull forces threw the bears into disorderly retreat in today's stock market and regained most of Saturday's losses. Trading continued in large volume, 4,126,140 shares changing hands.

While business reports over the week-end continued to show disappointing tardiness in the arrival of long expected recovery, the report from Washington of the survey conference, indicating that affairs had taken a definite turn for the better, went far toward restoring speculative confidence. Trade reports that the current decline in steel mill operations had touched bottom were also reassuring. Standard Statistics, in a review of business conditions, stated that a spring revival of industrial production seemed clearly indicated and that although it would not approach that of 1929 indications were that it would be of substantial proportions.

Although call money renewed at 4 per cent and was steady at the figure all day, against a range of from 3 to 4½ on Friday, quoted commercial paper rates for prime names were shaded from 4 to 3¾ per cent, and a reduction in the Reichbank rate from 5½ to 5 per cent provided further evidence of the world trends in credit. The call money market reflected withdrawals by banks of about $30,000,000, presumably in preparation for the midweekly Federal Reserve settlements.

U. S. Steel Up 5 Points.

U. S. Steel resumed its old-time market leadership with a gain of nearly 5 points, carrying it to a new high for the recovery at 192½. Last year it reached a high record at 261¾ before crashing to 150. Wall street is growing increasingly confident that something in the way of a stock or increased cash dividend may be expected in the course of the year, in view of the corporation's strong cash position and comparatively satisfactory rate of operations.

A high flier was Vanadium Steel, which shot up nearly 14 points to a new 1930 peak at 119, in what appeared to be a trapping of shorts. The floating supply of this issue is small. Among other independent steels, Colorado Steel and Gallonsbee Bros. were strong spots.

Favorable California crude production figures for last week, showing continued progress at control, revived the movement in the oils, and several reached new high ground. Standard of New Jersey rose 1¾ points in a large turnover, to a new top for the year, at 70½. It expects to have its hydrogenation refining process in use for May 1, and is arranging to lease the rights to other refiners.

On the whole, the advance was highly selective, and was most impressive in the more easily moved specialties, indicating that the market remains a rather professional affair. Eastman Kodak, Foster Wheeler, Houston Oil, Liquid Carbon, United Aircraft, Warren Bros. and Worthington Pump were sent up 4 to 8 points.

Johns Manville Declines.

There were a few flurries of selling, notably in the merchandising shares. Montgomery Ward was depressed more than a point, to a new 1930 low, but rallied and closed a little higher. Johns Manville dropped about 5 points, then regained part of its loss. Safeway Stores dropped more than 6 points to a new bottom, at 93¼, and showed little recuperative power. Several of last week's soft spots, however, rebounded in short covering. Simmons closing up more than 3 points.

Commodities were irregular. Wheat tumbled about 3 cents early in the day, but rallied to close slightly higher with strength at Winnipeg, decrease in the visible supply, and bullish crop reports. Corn closed up about a cent. Cotton sagged in sympathy with the Liverpool market, futures closing $1.10 to $1.50 a bale lower.

Foreign exchanges continued to climb. The decline in money rates has induced considerable withdrawal of foreign funds. Several currencies went to slight premiums, notably sterling cables, at $4.86⅞, up ⅛.

OIL BONDS ARE FIRM IN SAGGING MARKET

American Telephone 4½s With 2¼ Point Gain Leads Advances.

FOREIGN LIST IRREGULAR

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Firm money was accompanied by a sharp reduction in the bond market's activity today. Trading assumed much smaller proportions as call loans held at the renewal rate of 4 per cent. Thirty to 60-day time accommodations were quoted at 3¾ to 4, a quarter of 1 per cent above last Friday's figures.

Further loan calling was reported during the day, although new funds quickly came in as replacements. Some uncertainty was expressed as to the immediate course of money, for it was pointed out that the unusual easiness in the loan markets last week following the Treasury financing and the tax payments has resulted in an abnormal situation that might not be readjusted for another day or two. Although 2 per cent funds are hardly expected to reappear at this time, the general opinion is that money will be relatively cheap for a rather indefinite period, or until the commercial demand improves.

Sales Drop $10,000,000.

Transaction in New York Stock Exchange bonds totaled approximately $13,000,000, or about $10,000,000 below the Friday volume. This decreased demand found prices generally steady around the recent highs, although small net declines were rather numerous. Many pivotal rails were able to score advances averaging somewhat less than half a point.

Oil company bonds were active and firm. Colon convertible 6s rose 3 points. Shell Union, Sinclair and Standard issues, as well as the Texas Corporation convertibles 5s turned over actively, while Transcontinental 6½s with warrants advanced a point.

Miscellaneous firm spots in the domestic list included International Match 5s, Gulf States Steel 5½s, New York Central 5s, Laclede Gas 5½s, Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, Chile Copper 5s and American & International Telephone 5s.

Missouri Pacific Touches Peak.

American Telephone convertible 4½s led the feature issues, rising 2¼ net. Missouri Pacific 5½s went to a new 1929 high on a rise of 1 point. New Haven 6s also squeezed past their previous 1930 peak for a net gain of ½.

United States Governments were steady and quiet. Irregularity marked the foreign section, with Buenos Aires 6s and 6½s selling off and the Argentines making narrow improvement. Belgium 7s crossed 109 for a new high, but then reacted.

* Offering of Erie Railroad's $50,000,000 issue in refunding 5s is expected soon. The present 5s are quoted around 96½.

New offerings scheduled for tomorrow include $18,000,000 in Cleveland Union Terminals Co. first mortgage 4½s, due in 1977 and priced at 98. Associated Gas & Electric Co. is marketing an additional $10,000,000 in 5 per cent debentures at 91.

BANK CONVENTION AIDS WILL REPORT

"Get-Together" Diners to Hear Plans for Event at Asheville.

EXCHANGE SALES SLOW

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Members of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will hear a report on progress of arrangements for the twelfth annual convention of the association at Asheville, N. C., June 5-8, at their annual "get-together" dinner at Columbia Country Club, April 14.

Lanier P. McLachlen, president of the McLachlen Banking Corporation and first vice president of the association, and C. H. Pope, vice president of the Munsey Trust Co., and secretary of the association, are in charge of arrangements for the dinner.

Trading was slow yesterday in the final session of the Washington Stock Exchange at its quarters on the second floor of the American Security & Trust Co. building, 722-32 Fifteenth street northwest. Today, the exchange opens for business in its new home on the sixth floor of the Washington Building, G and Fifteenth streets and New York avenue, making way for the expansion of the American Security & Trust Co. by ten additional stories.

Heaviest trading was in Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty preferred, a low-priced issue, 200 shares transferring at 7, last sale price. Largest bond transactions were in Capital Traction 5s, two sales of $4,000 each being made at 95½, fractional recession.

Lincoln Bank 40 Years Old.

Albert S. Gatley, vice president of Lincoln National Bank, will celebrate today his fortieth anniversary of service with that institution, which also celebrates its fortieth birthday, Mr. Gatley having been with the bank since its organization.

He has been treasurer of the District of Columbia Bankers Association for 21 years and was awarded a gold badge for faithful service in this office at an open meeting of the association last fall.

American Ice Co., operating a local and more than 80 other plants, in 1929 earned $3,431,124, or $4.21 a share on its common stock, as compared with $3,252,362, or $3.92 a share in 1928, according to its annual report. Sales were $20,804,078, which compares with $20,772,413 in 1928, making it the company's best year from a sales as well as profit standpoint.

Current assets are listed at $4,279,458 or 1.6 times current liabilities. Charge off for depreciation and maintenance amounted to $2,368,534, maintenance charges having been lowered below those of other years due to the high level of efficiency to which plants have been brought. Bonded debt decreased $160,000 to $6,002,000 during the year.

Pearson Washington Loan Director.

William E. Pearson, recently elected director of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., is also president of the Virginia Brick Co. Mr. Pearson is a lifelong resident of the District of Columbia and a member of the Metropolitan, Chevy Chase and Blue Ridge Rod and Gun Clubs.

The board of directors of the National Metropolitan Bank at a recent meeting declared a dividend of 5 per cent on the capital stock payable April 15. Books of the bank will be closed for transfer of stock from April 5 to April 14, both dates inclusive.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Lincoln Investment Corporation, held at the offices of the company in the American Building, it was voted that the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on preferred stock outstanding as of March 22, be paid to stockholders of record. A dividend of 25 cents per share was voted on the common stock. The dividends are payable April 1.

Arthur Foraker, manager of the local office of Eastman, Dillon & Co., has returned after a two-weeks' visit in Florida.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, March 24 (A.P.).—Grain prices rebounded here today at a lively rate after suffering an early downward jolt that resulted from severe breaks in quotations at Liverpool. A falling off of 2,309,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply, together with increasing crop damage reports from domestic soft winter wheat sections, as well as news of high winds and dust storms in Kansas and Oklahoma, did much to turn the market upside down in the last. Independent strength of the corn market in the late dealings was also a bullish factor.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were firm, ¾c to ¾c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed ¾c to 1¾c up, oats ⅜c to ¾c advanced and provisions unchanged to 15c lower.

Word that some United States hard winter wheat had been sold for export by way of the Gulf of Mexico had considerable effect in helping to rally wheat at the close. Houses with Eastern connections were prominent in the late buying, with general trade sentiment veering sharply away from bearish feeling that found free expression earlier in the session of the Liverpool market was ascribed largely to cheap offers of Canadian wheat and to apparent indications of a notable pause in transatlantic demand.

Temporarily the tumble in prices at Liverpool was emphasized by disregard of unusual smallness of world shipments and by ignoring of the fact that supplies on ocean passage had been reduced by not quite half as much as the total a year ago. At this stage, bears were inclined to make much also of Federal Farm Board curtailment of the Minneapolis wheat loan basis of $1.20 a bushel instead of $1.23, and were putting stress on reports that the wheat stabilization corporation was negotiating with millers to avert a storage space tie-up at terminals because of anticipated rush of wheat deliveries in May.

Evidence that sellers had over-reached themselves in the wheat market developed more and more. Nevertheless, as the day wore on, this was particularly the case after bullish developments in domestic hard winter wheat sections reinforced adverse crop news from the soft winter wheat States, where particularly in southwestern Indiana and southeastern Illinois field after field was reported killed.

Corn owed its late upward trend largely to announcement of a decrease of the corn visible supply and to unfavorable weather for corn movement. Oats followed corn.

Provisions went lower with hogs.

Curb Review

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Prices of stocks on the New York Curb Exchange moved upward in impressive fashion today, after an early period of hesitancy. Some selling came into the market at the opening as a result of the heavy profit taking which developed Friday afternoon and Saturday, but offerings were well absorbed and pools quickly resumed operations in a wide assortment of aviations, utilities, oils and specialties, lifting at least two score to new high records for the year.

The demand for the oils received considerable stimulus from the report that California crude oil production last week was down to the lowest level since 1926 as a result of the conservation law recently enacted in that State. Humble Oil and Standard Oil of Indiana moved into new high ground, and gains of a point or two were registered by Gulf, Indian Territorial, Standard Oil of Kansas and a few others.

In the absence of any definite aviation developments, the rise in those shares was widely attributed to pool activities based on the theory that warmer weather would stimulate business for those companies. Fokker ran up nearly 5 points to a new high at 30⅜, but lost a point of its gain, and Western Air Express closed 2½ points higher at 44, after touching a new high at 46. Douglas Aircraft sold above 20 for the first time this year.

Speculative interest in the public utilities centered largely in the natural gas stocks, with merger and expansion rumors playing an important part in the day's operations. United Gas moved up 3 points to within a small fraction of the high established last week. Dixie Gas Utilities advanced 2⅜ points and American and Arkansas Natural Gas issues were turned over in large volume, closing with moderate gains. Electric Bond & Share closed fractionally higher, after moving within a range of less than 2 points. Brazilian Light & Traction, Hartford Electric and International Superpower topped their previous 1930 high prices.

International Cigar Machinery, making one of its infrequent appearances on the tape, jumped 13¼ points to a new peak at 112. Other issues to reach new high levels were Aluminum Limited, American Book, American Chain, Amrad Corporation, Centrifugal Pipe, General Realty preferred, Grand Rapids Varnish, Lily Tulip Cup, National Screen Service, Newport Co., Novadel Agene, Pacific Coast Biscuit issues, A. O. Smith and Starrett Corporation.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—The extended advances of the past two weeks were followed by reactions in the cotton market today under realizing or liquidation, promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and an easier technical position. May contracts, which sold at 15.85 on Saturday morning, or 180 points above the recent low level, broke to 15.38 and closed at 15.49, or 28 points net lower. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 22 to 30 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 15 to 29 points in response to the relatively easy showing of Liverpool. After showing net losses of about 20 to 35 points right after the opening the market steadied up slightly on a renewal of covering and trade buying, but the demand was soon supplied and prices eased again during the middle of the day under continued liquidation of realizing.

The earlier weakness of the grain market and rather vague rumors of sales of spot cotton at an easier basis in the South probably contributed to the decline which carried prices off to 15.43 for July and 15.10 for the new October contract, or about 33 to 40 points below Saturday's closing quotations. Offerings then subsided and there were rallies of some 10 to 17 points from the lowest on another flurry of covering, but the demand was not particularly active or aggressive and the bulges were not fully maintained. July sold up to 15.60 on the late rally and closed at 15.58, while October after selling up to 15.21 closed at 15.24.

The bulk of the pressure was attributed to realizing or liquidation by recent buyers and selling for a reaction based upon the easier technical position of the market or an idea that further advances might operate against the campaign for a reduction in acreage. Trading was fairly active on the decline, but became quiet on the rallies and there were rumors of some selling here against purchases of spot cotton in the South.

Liverpool cables said the weakness there was due to realizing with continental and Bombay selling, and depression in the market for Egyptian cotton as a result of Alexandria selling. According to these reports Manchester reported a well sustained demand for cotton cloths and a better outlook for business with China.

Exports today, 10,265, making 3,594,005 so far this season. Port receipts, 7,175. United States port stocks, 1,901,726.

SEVEN CANDIDATES ENTER COUNCIL RACE

Little Activity Shown by Alexandria Democrats Prior to Primary.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Although the Democratic primary for the nomination of three candidates for the Alexandria City Council is but a week off, very little activity has been shown by any of the seven persons whose candidacy is subject to the primary. Probably never before in the history of Alexandria has so little general interest been shown in a local campaign, although it is particularly important.

Of the seven candidates three are residents of the old section of the city, while four have their homes in the newly annexed territory. Those in old Alexandria are Edmund F. Ticer, incumbent, the only one of the three councilmen whose terms expire at this time who has stated his intention of again running for office; Mrs. Dolly Peyton Shepperson, newspaper and club woman, and Arthur Herbert, of the firm of Burke & Herbert, bankers, and a former member of the Board of Police Commissioners. Those who are residents of the new territory are Richard B. Washington, lawyer and former resident of the older section; Mrs. Naomi P. Craver, former councilwoman of Potomac; Clyde C. Lamond, bank director and head of the Potomac River Clay Works, and Emmett C. Davidson, secretary of the International Association of Machinists.

In view of the general apathy, a light vote is expected in the primary, although the newly annexed territory is an unknown quantity so far as the residents of the original city are concerned, and is expected to cast a heavier vote in proportion to population than is the older section. Although the exact figures are not available since the annexation, it is estimated that there are approximately 6,000 qualified voters in Alexandria.

The depositors of the Bank of Del Ray, which closed its doors January 20, yesterday were paid approximately $33,000, or one-third of the total amount of deposits, as a first installment, by Courtland H. Davis, receiver. Long before 9 o'clock, when the bank's doors were opened, a line of depositors had formed in front of the bank, and the officials of the bank were kept busy distributing the checks, which were drawn on the Alexandria National Bank. The rush continued until late afternoon.

The total deposits at the time of the closing of the bank, according to Receiver Davis, were between $90,000 and $95,000, the average deposit being between $75 and $100, although there were a few of as much as $1,000. The majority of the depositors were employes of the Potomac Freight Yard and residents of the Town of Potomac.

The receiver hopes to make another payment on the deposits as soon as certain pending matters, including the sale of the bank's real estate holdings, can be settled. No definite time for this second payment, however, has been announced.

The nomination of members of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, under the plan just adopted, will begin at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and close at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. A complete list of individual members will be mailed today to all members of the body, and in voting the member will strike out all names but fourteen, entering these fourteen names on a blank sheet provided by Secretary J. T. Preston. These ballots will be deposited in a box in the rooms of the chamber, and on Friday they will be tabulated by tellers, and the 28 receiving the highest number of votes will be entered on another sheet, which will be mailed out as before.

Of these 28 names the voter will select 14, and these votes will later be tabulated, the 14 receiving the largest vote being declared elected, the first 7 to serve for two years and the remainder for one year.

The ballot box for the final election will close April 2, and the result will be announced at the general meeting to be held April 7.

The board of directors formerly consisted of 24 members. A new feature will be the monthly meetings of the entire membership of the organization.

Incautious presuming on the famed courtesy of members of the Alexandria police force proved the undoing yesterday of an alleged rumrunner. Grover C. Morgan, who gave his address as 2223 Marshall street, Richmond, bound in the direction of home, became confused as to the route and stopped Motorcycle Policeman Ernest Suthard to ask the way to Richmond. Suthard noticed that the automobile driven by Morgan was considerably down at the stern, and asked Morgan to show his permit, which the latter was unable to do. The officer then escorted Morgan and his machine to police headquarters, where a search revealed a cargo of 64 half-gallon jars of whisky.

Arraigned in police court on a charge of illegal transportation, Morgan stated that a man whom he met in the Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, asked him to drive the car from Baltimore to Richmond. Morgan was given the minimum sentence of $250 fine and three months in jail.

The Alexandria Water Co. has announced that for a period of three hours today the city water will be cut off the subdivisions of Glendale and Cottage Park; Alexandria avenue and Royal avenue, Braddock Heights, and that pressure in Potomac will be reduced to some extent due to necessary repairs to mains. Consumers are advised to draw sufficient water for their needs in advance.

A. D. Thomasson, 36 years old, whose home is in Manassas, but who is employed at the Potomac Yards, suffered so serious an injury to his left leg yesterday morning that it was found necessary to amputate it at the Alexandria Hospital. Dr. M. D. Delaney performed the operation, taking the leg off just above the knee. Thomasson suffered a considerable loss of blood, and his condition is regarded as serious, due to loss of blood and shock.

According to railroad officials, Thomasson stepped in front of a moving string of freight cars and was struck. He was picked up by fellow workmen and placed in an ambulance, which took him to the Alexandria Hospital. He exhibited considerable courage, in spite of his intense suffering, and smoked a cigarette while being taken to the hospital. He has a wife and five children living in Manassas.

Dr. W. Louis Schaffer, of the city health department, announced yesterday that a free chest clinic will be held two days this week in the health office on Cameron street, the hours being from 3 to 5 p. m., tomorrow for white persons, and the same hours Thursday for colored. Dr. H. A. Latane and Dr. Llewellyn Powell will be in charge of the clinic.

CONVICTS' IDLENESS SEEN AS DANGEROUS

Bill Limiting Institutional Products to States Up Before Meeting.

MARKETING IS PROBLEM

Richmond, Va., March 24 (A.P.).—After a full day's discussion of the prison-labor problems of States under the Hawes-Cooper bill passed by Congress, the Eastern-Southern Conference on Institutional Labor today named a committee to give further study to the subject and report its conclusions tomorrow in the form of resolutions.

How best to keep prison inmates gainfully employed and to market their product occupied the afternoon discussion. It was assumed that the Hawes-Cooper bill, which deprives prison-made goods of their interstate character, would become effective four years hence and would greatly reduce the available market.

Warned by John W. Snook, former Atlanta Federal Penitentiary warden, that the "State use" system appeared the only solution, the conference gave full consideration to employment of convict labor in public works and industry for the benefit of State institutions. C. A. Moffett, president of the Alabama Board of Administration, said the problem was particularly acute in his State where there are 5,000 prisoners and the principal prison products are vegetables and textiles. He said the State could not begin to use them all and that he understood Alabama would be prohibited from shipping prison-grown strawberries to Eastern States where there was no competition from the States or local private business.

Idleness of prisoners was characterized by all speakers as both expensive and dangerous.

Eleven States, the District of Columbia, the Federal Government and the national committee on prisons and prison labor were represented at today's sessions.

INSTITUTE OF RURAL AFFAIRS IS PLANNED

New Order in Agriculture Will Be General Theme of Virginia Session.

CONVENES ON JULY 29

Blacksburg, Va., March 24 (A.P.).—"What the new order of things means to agriculture," will be the general theme of the second annual Institute of Rural Affairs to be held at Virginia Polytechnic Institute July 29 to August 1, John R. Hutcheson, director of the agricultural extension division and of the institute, announced today. Because discussions of the economics group will center around the accomplishments and plans of the Federal Farm Board, Alexander Legge, chairman, and James C. Stone, vice chairman, are expected to be present.

The Institute of Rural Affairs will be divided into two general sections, one being devoted to economic questions and the other to sociological problems. Dr. Clyde P. King, Wharton School of Finance of the University of Pennsylvania, will be in charge of the economics group. Dr. King took a leading part in this forum last year. A. F. Woods, director of research, United States Department of Agriculture, also will take an active part.

Rural Ministers to Meet.

The last three days of the ten-day conference of rural ministers probably will be held jointly with the sociological section, which has taken as its general topic "The Farm Home and Rural Church." The leader for the sociological section has not been named.

What adjustments will be necessary on account of the activities of the Federal Farm Board will receive a large amount of the economics group's attention. A distinct effort is being made to give all sides consideration. To carry out this policy, Director Hutcheson has invited a representative of the United States Chamber of Commerce and an official of one of the large tobacco manufacturers to present the point of view of private business on activities of the farm board.

Other leaders in agricultural economics and sociology will be invited to take part.

Interest Is Manifest.

Considerable interest in the coming institute has already been manifested both in Virginia and neighboring States. More than 100 West Virginians have indicated that they will attend. Last year more than 1,500 farmers took part, and Director Hutcheson is expecting over 2,000 this year. Regional problems as well as State questions will be considered.

As last year, the annual State Farmers Institute will be held during the afternoons of the days the Institute of Rural Affairs meets. Technical subject matter, short courses in various agricultural subjects and demonstrations will feature these sessions. The agricultural conference board and the homemakers association also will meet here during the same period.

40 West Virginia Horses Succumb to Influenza

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., March 24.—More than 40 horses in Allegheny County and neighboring sections of West Virginia and Pennsylvania have died from influenza in a month, veterinarians announced today. Although some owners trace the disease to a carload of horses shipped to this section from Virginia about a month ago, others declare they had noticed their horses ailing previous to that time.

Dr. C. A. Matthew, who has been treating horses in Hundman, Bedford and Keyser for six weeks, says that they all show the same symptoms. He likens the disease to influenza which affected humans.

BRISTOW RESIDENCE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fairfax Volunteers Unable to Check Flames Near Accotink.

DOCTOR FREED IN COURT

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 84.

Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed a house occupied by Edwin L. Bristow on the Little River turnpike near Accotink Run, about 2 miles south of Fairfax, yesterday morning. The house is owned by former Senator Joseph L. Bristow, of Kansas, father of the occupant, and was valued at about $4,000. The Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department was called, but the fire had made such headway that they were unable to save the building.

Yesterday afternoon the Fairfax company was called to aid in fighting a forest fire raging in a 5,000-acre tract of woods between Fairfax Station and Clifton. The flames, driven by the winds, made such progress that for some time it was believed several houses were in danger. Late last night the fire was still burning. Fire fighters had backfired in hopes of checking the fire.

Dr. Thomas F. Dodd, a prominent physician living near the Theological Seminary in Fairfax County, was found not guilty on a charge of attempted criminal assault upon Mrs. Bessie Sizemore by a jury in the criminal court of the Fairfax County Circuit Court yesterday.

Joseph Ferguson, colored, of Gum Springs, was arrested Sunday evening by Capt. Haywood J. Durrer and Policeman Lewis L. Pinks for the alleged shooting of his brother, Robert. The alleged shooting occurred at the home of Joseph at Gum Springs, after an alleged argument over Joseph's wife. Robert was taken to the Alexandria Hospital where the doctors are trying to save his leg, but it is believed that it will have to be amputated. Joseph was lodged in Fairfax Jail pending outcome of his brother's injuries.

Policeman Pinks also arrested Pomroy Jackson, colored, charged with being a deserter from the United States Army stationed at Fort Benning, Ga. He was turned over to the military authorities at Fort Humphreys.

Miss Sara E. Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent, will be in charge of the radio broadcast this afternoon over WJSV at Mount Vernon Hills from 5 until 6 o'clock. This program will be under the auspices of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce. Members of the various home demonstration clubs and boys and girls 4-H clubs of the county will participate in the program.

John F. Jerman, 70 years old, a life-time resident of Fairfax County, died at his home in Jermantown Sunday evening. He is a son of the late M. G. Jerman. He is survived by his wife, Marcia J. Jerman, a daughter, Mrs. Norman Speer, of Oakton, Va., and three sons, Wilbur, of Tappahannock, Va., Benjamin D. and J. LaRue, both of Washington. He also leaves a brother Charles H. Jerman, of Washington, and seven sisters, Mrs. Fred Briggs, and Ludema Ellis, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Charles Fritts, of Mount Rainer, Md.; Mrs. R. D. Haines, Mrs. E. S. Whiting and Miss Edna and Bernice Jerman, all of Fairfax.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Methodist Church at Fairfax with the Rev. L. B. Atkins officiating. Interment will be in Flint Hill Cemetery at Oakton.

The deceased was for many years a prominent real estate dealer of Virginia and Washington.

The Rector's Aid Society of St. Timothy's Episcopal Church at Herndon will meet this afternoon at the home of their president, Mrs. James Smart. They will complete arrangements for a series of entertainments to raise funds for the society.

The Robert E. Lee Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. A. Stewart in Falls Church, when the members will bring donations for the fund to aid in restoration of Stratford, birthplace of Robert E. Lee. This will be applied to the quota of the Virginia division of the organization.

The Lenten study class of the auxiliary and Daughters of the King of the Episcopal Church of Falls Church will be held today at the home of Mrs. Harry A. Fellows.

The Eastern Potomac Federation of the Baptist Young People's Union will meet tonight in the Baptist Church at McLean. An entertainment program will be given by the intermediate group of the McLean Church under the direction of Mrs. W. T. Kilby.

The Ladies' Guild of St. John's Episcopal Church at McLean will hold a luncheon and business meeting today at the home of Mrs. Pat Strawser. Mrs. Bruno Wittig, general chairman of the luncheon and card party that is to be given next month, will make the announcement to the personnel of the subcommittees to arrange the party at this time.

Aircraft Inspector Never Up in Plane

Virginia Official Believes Preference for Terra Firma No Handicap.

Richmond, Va., March 24 (A.P.).—James M. Hayes, jr., Virginia's new inspector of aircraft, is not airminded. He admits that he has never been off the ground in an airplane.

However, since his job is to make flying safe—and the experts are agreed that the place to do this is on the ground, not after the plane gets in the air—Mr. Hayes believes his lack of flying instinct won't prove a serious handicap. Just now the inspector of aircraft is spending some time inspecting railroads, which also come under his supervision. His official title is "Inspector of Aircraft and Railroads."

He will make a careful study of the Virginia statutes on aviation control as the first step in taking up his new duties. The Virginia laws carry out regulations of the United States Department of Commerce, with several additional acts with State application only. Mr. Hayes' headquarters will be in the State Corporation Commission offices.

15 TO BE SUMMONED IN QUIZ OF OFFICIALS

Grand Jury in Montgomery Launches Inquiry Into Paper's Charges.

SPECIAL BODY IS DENIED

Fifteen persons will be summoned today to appear before the Montgomery County Grand Jury, which is investigating charges of malfeasance in office preferred by the Montgomery Independent, a weekly newspaper published at Rockville, against county officials. The office of the clerk of the court last night declined to make public the names of those summoned until the summonses had been served. It is understood, however, that the board of directors of the paper and its editorial staff are among those to be called.

The investigation got under way yesterday following the refusal of Judge Robert B. Peter, in Rockville Circuit Court, to dismiss the present grand jury and impanel a special body to inquire into the charges. F. Barnard Welsh, attorney for the Independent, after taking exception to the presence in the grand jury room Wednesday of Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county Democratic leader, and the board of county commissioners, who demanded that the grand jury either indict the county officials or the management of the Independent, Friday set forth three prayers which he asked the court to grant. These were that the present grand jury be dismissed because of the alleged presence on the grand jury of a nephew of one of the county commissioners and an employe of the courthouse, the appointment of a special prosecutor and the appointment of an expert accountant to assist a special grand jury.

Judge Peter declined to take action on any of the pleas, holding that the present grand jury had been legally organized and that he had no authority to appoint a special prosecutor for the grand jury.

Conferred With Other Judges.

The judge made his announcement after asking members of the grand jury to leave the courtroom. He said that he had made a special trip to Frederick to confer with the other two judges in the circuit and that they had agreed with him that there was no justification for dismissing the present body. He declared that one grand jury continues to function until another is appointed and sworn in, and that while there is some conflict on the question of dismissing a grand jury because of alleged unfitness of its personnel "in this case the complaint does not appear to have sufficient merit to justify granting the petition."

Following the judge's decision, the grand jury inaugurated its inquiry into the conduct of the county's business and the handling of the county funds. The first witness called was Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, counsel to the county commissioners, who remained in the jury room for nearly three hours. He was followed by Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners, who also remained for a lengthy period.

The current issue of the Independent charges that Maj. Lee and the county commissioners are attempting to hide behind the grand jury and to throttle criticism of public officials, in an editorial signed by E. Barrett Prettyman, president of the publishing company.

Editorial Is Quoted.

"The Independent has not, since the present ownership acquired it, made a personal attack on any one. It has not and does not charge corruption, graft, criminality, or moral turpitude. It is glad to attest the pride of the county in the honesty and integrity of its officials," the editorial says.

The paper, however, still charges, the editorial states, that "the county administration has been extravagant, wasteful, unwieldly, cumbersome, heedless of statutes, unprogressive, flavored with favoritism toward its own supporters and so arrogant in its lack of response to the demands of the people as to require that it be swept from power."

Another editorial asserts that the paper "stands firmly by its charges—it retracts not one inch," further remarking that "the fact that Lee and his lackeys seek the refuge of the grand jury shows that they can not stand the gaff."

Antiorganization members were observed in close conversation yesterday, and it is believed that they are preparing for the battle with the Lee machine.

RIVER COMMISSION NAMES SUGGESTED

Pollard Considers Men of Northern Virginia for New Group.

POWER WORK CONCERNE

Gov. John Garland Pollard has under consideration the personnel of the Potomac River Commission. The act creating this commission was passed by the Virginia State Legislature during its last session and approved by Gov. Pollard February 18.

The commission is to consist of three members, whose duties are to enter into negotiations with accredited representatives of Maryland, West Virginia and the Federal Government, with a view toward effecting an amicable and equitable agreement respecting the allocation of waters of the Potomac River, with respect to any and all matters that relate to the rights and benefits of the State of Virginia or of the citizens and property owners of Virginia.

The citizens of Northern Virginia are vitally interested in the formation of this commission, as they will be required to deal with the hydroelectric and commercial development of the waters of the Potomac River as it relates to Great Falls and the upper regions of the Potomac.

Names Are Suggested.

Gov. Pollard has been urged to appoint citizens residing in the northern section of the State. It has been suggested to him that he name former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, of Winchester; Representative R. Walton Moore, of the Eighth Congressional District, of Fairfax, and Thomas R. Keith, a prominent northern Virginia attorney, of Fairfax. Some have suggested that an engineer from one of Virginia's State colleges be named.

While it is not known positively who the governor may appoint, yet it is believed that these names will be found among the list of appointees within the next few days.

The movement to have the commission created was originated by the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Keith was chairman of the committee on the hydroelectric development of Great Falls and Potomac Waterways and drafted the bill that was submitted to Gov. Pollard and the Legislature.

Moore in Congress Since 1919.

Representative Moore has represented the Eighth Congressional District, which includes most of the counties in northern Virginia, since the Sixty-sixth Congress, June 3, 1919.

Former Gov. Byrd, a successful business man of Winchester, whom Gov. Pollard succeeded, is the father of many reform movements in the State government, and under his regime the present Virginia highway building program was begun.

The new Potomac River Commission is required to meet immediately upon its organization and endeavor to secure at an early a date as possible meetings with similar commissions or the properly accredited representatives of the other States and the United States.

$1,260,000 SCHOOL FUNDS TO BE DIVIDED

Education Superintendents to Gather in Richmond This Afternoon.

CODE REVISION PLANNED

Richmond, Va., March 24 (A.P.).—Distribution of the State equalization fund of $500,000 and the elementary fund of $760,000 will feature the annual conference of county superintendents of education, which opens at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the hall of the House of Delegates at the State Capitol.

Approximately 90 superintendents are expected to attend the conference, which will continue through Tuesday, ending Tuesday evening with a dinner at the Westmoreland Club to be attended by the superintendents, members of the State Board of Education and the presidents of the four State teachers' colleges.

The superintendents' meeting will be followed by the monthly session of the State Board of Education, to be held Wednesday, beginning at 10:30 a. m. The presidents of the State teachers' colleges will also attend the meeting.

Code Revision to Be Studied.

An important subject to be discussed at both gatherings is the revision of the school code by the 1930 General Assembly. One of these changes was to increase the minimum school term from 140 days, or seven months, to 160 days, or eight months. Among other alterations in the code the General Assembly fixed the retail price of school books at not more than 15 per cent above the wholesale cost, and prohibited loans from the literary fund to counties in default or counties more than six months in arrears in interest payments.

A plan for distribution of the equalization and elementary school funds has been prepared by the State Department of Education, and will be submitted to the superintendents by Harris Hart, superintendent of public instruction. First among the proposals of the plan is a suggestion that appropriations be made to those counties now below the State level of educational efficiency to produce minimum school facilities, this minimum facility to be an eight-month term "taught by a well-trained teacher in sanitary environs."

"The most important factor in equalization is not the length of term, but the quality of instruction," the superintendent's plan states.

Salary Rise Asked.

"A salary scale in the backward counties must be brought up to approximately the scale in the more favored counties, otherwise there can be no equalization of educational opportunities."

The plan proposes a bonus from the elementary fund for counties already maintaining an educational program above the average for the State, the bonus to represent approximately one-half the cost of added facilities above the common minimum for the State.

In order not to discriminate against those counties which have improved instructional methods by consolidations, but which for this reason would be handicapped by the rule allowing one teacher for every 25 pupils in daily attendance, it is proposed to pay all counties approximately $5 for each pupil transported.

The general appropriation bill provides that no county is to receive State aid unless it pays at least 20 per cent of its teachers' salaries, and the State Board of Education is given authority to make exceptions to this rule if it is evident that a county can not pay the required amount.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA, very much impressed, sang the praises of the man who tried to sell her a new dictionary.

"Don't you think he's gorgeous?" asked Luella.

What difference does it make? We have a dictionary—and a good one.

"He's just a bum," I remarked, and meant it, never having liked dictionary salesmen.

"A bum?" she queried. "Who do you think you're talking about? He may be a second Rudy Vallee—working his way through college."

• • • •

BY George, she's right. This guy, selling books today, or trying to sell 'em, may eventually be the greatest publisher in the world. You never can tell. This is America. It was that way with Rudy. He started with nothing and ended with everything.

"Say," I requested, "ask this fellow to come in here—I'd like to have a talk with him."

In a little while the maestro arrived.

"How old are you?" I asked.

"Seventeen," he replied.

"And are you going to do what?" I queried.

"I'm going to be the next world's sensation," he told me, reciting what had been done by some of the great masters, the Rudy Vallees, the Ted Lewises, the Jackie Coogans, the Texas Guinans and the Helen Morgans.

• • • •

SO that was it! "Yes, sir," he said, "more than that. I'm going to make Rudy Vallee and his ilk——"

"His ilk?"

"His ilk," he said, "what are they but his ilk? I'm going to make his ilk look like——"

"Like what?"

"Like a bunch of pikers," he declared. "America is just in it's infancy. What we need is a great man, and I'm——"

"And you're the great man?"

• • • •

HE gave me a dirty look. "I wouldn't be a bit surprised," he said, reaching for his bassviol, "the ukes, and the saxes have had all the best of it so far——"

"Yeah?"

"Yeah!"

You know, he's right! All we need are some good trap drummers, and a few jews' harp players, not to mention dictionary salesmen.

America for the Americans!
